Who Boycotts Whom?
The Hitler News.
"Lefty" O'Doul.
A Funeral, All White.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. DICKINSON, Acting Secretary of Commerce, says:

"Instead of America boycotting Germany, it seems to be the other way around."

Germany's purchases here amounted to fifteen millions odd in March, ten millions in April, six millions in May. There has been no corresponding reduction during those months in our purchases from Germany, according to Mr. Dickinson's statement, which makes it appear that the American boycott of Germany has been largely "conversational."

He says:

The danger in which Chancellor Hitler lives is, apparently, real, for the great British insurance company, Lloyd's, charges 36 per cent a year for insuring his life. The chancellor is very heavily insured, not by himself, but by others interested in a business way in his continued existence.

THE DAILY HERALD, of London, reports Chancellor Hitler "suffering from a severe nervous breakdown, likely to be unfit for work for a long time."

You cannot rely on rumors from Germany. Latest picture of Hitler, taken since the recent upheaval, shows him arm outstretched in the Nazi salute, looking far from "nervous" or broken down.

"LEFTY" O'DOUL, who hits baseballs, "propelled" and "rifled" the ball on Wednesday, so well, that the New York Giants defeated the rival "Pirates."

One baseball game is much like another, but the name "Lefty" O'Doul, is a precious thing, perfect, a name that could not have been invented.

"What's in a name?" everything. Anybody named "Lefty" O'Doul could not possibly be commonplace, or fail to make his mark in some direction.

"Lefty" O'Doul is a finer name than Rory O'More, or Tom O'Shanter. It is a marvelous name and with it goes a marvelous, smiling face. He should be worth, in movies, ten great baseball salaries.

THE DUTCH PRINCE CONSORT, important in Holland because he was the husband of the Queen, died, saying sensibly:

It was a white funeral accordingly, with one million looking on, white hearse, white coffin, white horses, the widowed Queen and Princess Julianas all dressed in white.

Many, before death, request "no mourning," an unreasonable request sometimes since the outward evidence of mourning avoids unpleasant questions and comforts the mourners.

They are sorrowful, and want to look sorrowful. What his widow wore could make little difference to the Dutch prince consort who lies now with thirty-eight Dutch rulers and princes of the family around him.

ALL UNITED STATES Marines are ordered to leave Haiti by August 15. The natives will learn whether they can rule themselves successfully.

Angel Morales, formerly minister to Washington from the Dominician republic, which covers two-thirds of the island of Haiti, predicts revolution there and says that the republic of colored citizens is in danger.

The Santo Domingo republic spends $6,000,000 a year, half of it to keep up an army, which has nothing to do except keep President Tiujillo in power. It seems to be absolute power, for, according to Angel Morales, President Tiujillo has appointed his five-year-old son, Rafael, a "full-fledged lieutenant-colonel in the army, with the pay of that rank."

The appointment is made because of "eminent service to the country" rendered by the five-year-old lieutenant-colonel.

Also, according to Morales, President Tiujillo has changed the constitution to permit industrial monopolies. The Republicans say we have been doing something of that kind here, recently.

Falls 4 Stories

BERNARD CANINSON, 2

BABY PLUNGES FOUR STORIES

A baby of two years tumbled out of his bedroom window today and fell 35 feet to a concrete walk; probably he will not recover.

Bernard Caninson fell from the fourth floor of the Saybrook Apartments in Craft avenue when the window screen gave way.

As he plunged through the air, the shrieks of witnesses in the court told the infant's mother, who was in their apartment.

Abraham Knopf, of Kennett square, picked up the broken body and hurried with the baby to the Magee Hospital nearby.

Bernards skull was fractured.

The baby's father, Nathan Caninson, is a butcher. They had moved into the Saybrook a few months ago.

Sulu's Sultan Mopes Over Murphy's Snub

MANILLA, P. I., July 13.—(INS.)—The political wings of the Sultan of Sulu were clipped today when Governor-General Murphy failed to reappoint him to the Philippine Senate.

In a highly irritated state, caused by the loss of prestige and the $300-per-month income which the job carries with it, the Sultan retired to his Jolo palace to brood over his troubles.

BRITISH WARN HITLER ON SPEECH; REICH PROTESTS JOHNSON ATTACK

BELIEVE HEIR SEIZED FOR RANSOM

BULLETIN.

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 13.—(AP.)—Fresh hope that Bobby Connor is still alive came this afternoon when Greenburgh police found a long-lost rattle belonging to the 18-month-old boy deep in the woods surrounding his home.

It was revealed that an older brother, and at another time, an older sister of Bobby had wandered into the dense growth and been lost for several hours.

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 13.—(AP.)—An army of 500 state troopers, police and volunteers beat through dense woodlands around Hartsdale today for blue-eyed, 18-month-old Bobby Connor, feared kidnaped.

Authorities said they were convinced the child, missing since 6 o'clock last night, was being held for ransom. He is the son of Charles H. Connor, mortgage broker, and the grandson of Charles P. Connor, wealthy retired New England clothier.

Police expressed belief an itinerant peddler, who had called at the Connor home yesterday afternoon, figured in the kidnaping. They said he talked to the child's mother, Mrs. Iola Connor, shortly before the child's absence was discovered. Mrs. Connor is a member of a wealthy Bridgeport (Conn.) family.

The child's parents said the only explanation they could give for the kidnaping was the possibility of a ransom collection from the boy's paternal grandfather, now living at Arlington, Mass.

No ransom demands had been received, the parents said.

Connor returned to Hartsdale from his New York office just after his son's disappearance. He immediately notified police. Alarmed when they were unable to find any trace of the boy, they called in state troopers.

Possibility that the child—about the age of the Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., when he was kidnaped and killed two years ago—had toddled away and become lost faded today as daylight searching parties returned weary, torn by brambles and empty handed, as had hundreds of police, firemen and neighbors who beat the woods all night with flashlights and lanterns. A call was sent for 200 Boy Scouts and they joined the search.

'HUNKY JOE' FINED $400 BY MAYOR

McNair Also Gives 2 Jobless Men Note To Roosevelt

Mayor McNair took over the magisterial duties in South Side Police Court today and emulated Solomon with results that threaten at least one legal kickback.

In the first place, His Honor discharged two drunks and gave each a note to President Roosevelt requesting a job. The notes read:

"Dear Frank: Please give this fellow a job. McNair."

Then His Honor plastered a fine of $400 on "Hunky Joe" Lewandowski, reputed South Side numbers king.

That is the case that threatens a legal kickback. "Hunky Joe's" counsel, Attorney Warren H. Van Kirk, was amazed because the Mayor changed the charge against "Hunky Joe"—that of operating a lottery—to one of violating a city ordinance and then proceeded to fine the defendant on eight counts when there was only one against him originally.

The Mayor said:

The Mayor shot back:

Van Kirk took a transcript of the case preparatory to an appeal. He said:

"One thing the Mayor did for me: he gave me a good break by changing the charge from operating a lottery to violating a city ordinance. I am sure the court will not uphold his decision."

The two men charged with drunkenness and given notes to President Roosevelt by McNair were William Baker, 34, of 2013 Gregory street, and George Berringer, 34, of 2913 Arlington avenue.

Frog Man Accused Of Naughty Letter

Richard G. Shotwell, 36, operator of a frog farm at Elderton, Armstrong County, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal D. A. Goldman today on a charge of sending an obscene letter to a 14-year-old girl. He was held under $500 bond pending a hearing before a United States commissioner tomorrow.

2 New Hollywood Crooners! Bing Crosby Daddy of Twins

'Swell,' Says Singer Of Stork's Gift On Jinx Day

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—Unlucky Friday the 13th will go down as a red letter day in the life of Bing Crosby, noted crooner of stage, screen and radio, for this morning Bing became the father of twin boys—the first twins, as far as it is known, ever to be born to a topnotch Hollywood star. His happy comment was:

"Gee, it's swell."

Bing's wife is Dixie Lee, pretty actress. They are already parparents of a boy 13 months old.

No names have been selected for the double addition of the Crosby family.

"Mother and both babies are doing fine."

That was the comment of the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

The weights of the Crosby heirs were not announced.

Friends of the family pointed to the fact that months ago physicians predicted there would be twins.

Shortly after the birth of his first son, Gary Evan Crosby, the crooner, and his wife announced that they were calling off a planned vacation because of kidnaping threats.

Crosby and his business-manager brother, Everett Crosby, got permits to carry guns and guards were placed on 24-hour duty at the Crosby home.

"Bing" first came to fame as a member of Paul Whiteman's famous Rhythm Boys. Later he went into radio by himself and won a nation-wide reputation which took him to Hollywood, where he won instant success in several pictures.

STEEL BAND ENCIRCLES GERMANY

Dictator to Broadcast Nazi Policy to World

International News Service.

Barely six hours before Chancellor Hitler was scheduled to make before the Reichstag a momentous announcement on the reich's domestic and foreign policies, he learned today that the diplomatic band of steel forged by France about Germany has virtually been completed.

British and Italian support of the French proposal for an Eastern Locarno was announced in the House of Commons by Sir John Simon, who read a letter from Premier Mussolini, backing the project. Neither Britain nor Italy, however, is entering into any new commitments, but merely informing Germany, who has resisted the Eastern Locarno, that they indorse it.

At the same time the British Ambassador at Berlin called at the German Foreign Office and informed the reich of his government's decision. The immediate semi-official reaction in Berlin was that France seeks a Napoleonic hegemony over Europe.

Both steps are believed to have been carefully timed to forestall any protest by Hitler tonight against the French encirclement move, launched at Geneva and hastened by revelations of disunity in Germany when the June 30 "revolution" was launched.

By PIERRE HUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 13.—The British government, only a few hours before Chancellor Hitler was to address the Reichstag with what is expected to be an emphatic protest against the encirclement of Germany, today served formal notice upon the reich that England is supporting the French proposal for an "Eastern Locarno."

Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador, called at the Foreign Office and informed Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Foreign Minister, that Anglo-French collaboration in developing regional mutual assistance pacts to preserve peace on the European continent had been assured as the result of the recent visit to London of Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister.

NEW AGREEMENT

International News Service first carried the news, in dispatches from London and Paris, that such an agreement had been reached.

The British ambassador's visit, it is generally believed, was delib-

2 SLAIN IN RIOT IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, July 13.—(AP.)—Two persons were killed and three seriously wounded in a riot today at the Cuyahoga County relief administration offices in downtown Cleveland.

The gunfire started after someone in a crowd of relief applicants grabbed a riot gun from a policeman in a squad which had been sent to quell a disturbance.

A Negro woman was shot down and died a few minutes later.

A man believed to be named White was shot and killed instantly.

One policeman and a bystander were shot, and as the firing continued another woman fell with wounds.

The man who was killed was caught in the cross-fire.

Plunges 150 Feet Down Hillside

Pittsburgh Men Control Penn and Aldine Theaters

Control of the Penn and Aldine theaters has passed to Pittsburgh interests representing preferred stockholders, it was learned today.

Attorney Roland McCrady, Earl A. Morton, vice president of the Commonwealth Trust Company, and Edwin S. Downes, of Oakmont, have been elected directors of the controlling Penn-Federal Corporation. McCrady was president of the now defunct Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company.

Elected by some 300 preferred stockholders, most of them Pittsburghers, they will meet next week to elect successors to Nicholas M. Schenck, nationally known showman, and David Bernstein. These two resigned as president and vice president with the loss of control.

Actual management of the two theaters (the Aldine is closed) will remain with Loew's and United Artists Theater Circuit, Inc., temporarily at least.

NAZI PROTESTS JOHNSON TALK

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The German embassy today made a formal protest to the American government against Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's verbal attack on the methods used by Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany in "purging" the Nazi party.

This was disclosed by the State Department following a call on Secretary of State Hull by Dr. Rudolph Leitner, the German charge d'affaires.

Secretary Hull called Dr. Leitner's attention to Johnson's statement that he was speaking as an individual. He made no apology for the General's remarks, but told Dr. Leitner it was to be regretted that the General's position in the government made it possible for

All of the 16 five-mile events, both amateur and professional, in which four types of motorboats are entered, will be run off with

River navigation in the Allegheny River at the scene of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Oakmont Boat Club motorboat regatta tomorrow and Sunday will be suspended during the hours required for the staging of the events, by special arrangements with the federal authorities, who will have full control of patrolling the course.

Violations of the orders of the Custom Inspector's boat, flying the ensign of the department, will be punished by arrest and fine. This is for the protection of the drivers and spectators, and the rule applies to pleasure craft as well as barges.

Throng of 100,000 Expected to See Contests

Elaborate preparations have been made to give the Pittsburgh district the finest water carnival ever held here and to prove that development of aquatic sports is a necessity. Interest in the regatta is keen throughout the district, according to the number of inquiries received. Society, business, the professions, industry—all ranks of life—are planning to head toward Oakmont for the two days.

Father Cox Bares Offer Of Fascist Leadership

ROME, July 13.—(AP.)—Father James R. Cox, rector of Old St. Patrick's Church in Pittsburgh, said today he had been offered a job as Fascist leader of the United States.

Father Cox, here guiding an annual pilgrimage to Rome, said Philadelphia leaders of Fascism, who claim organizations in seven states, had offered him the post.

He said he replied that he would accept only if guaranteed the job for 25 years of "final and absolute authority." He continued:

"These terms may be too stiff for them, but I would not accept under any others. I think Fascism would be a good thing for the United States."

Accompanied by five pilgrims, Father Cox said he expected a general audience with the Pope tomorrow, but said he would not be received privately.

CAMPAIGN FOR U. S. CONTROL OF MOVIES SPURRED

CHURCH DRIVE ADDS HOPE FOR LAW

Congress Advocates See Chance for Legislation At Next Session

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—A movement to clamp a strict federal curb on the movies showed signs of reviving today.

Beaten in the last Congress, advocates of so-called "censorship" bills offered by Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, are taking something of a "I told you so" attitude. The Seventy-third Congress had hardly adjourned before the church campaign to improve the movies' morals began.

Proponents of regulatory legislation now are more hopeful that a bill can be put through next session to stop some of the practices they complain against.

Patman insisted he was not asking movie "censorship." He wanted first to stop "block booking," a system under which a theater has to take a group of miscellaneous pictures in order to show one or more popular leading films. He also would bar from interstate commerce pictures "harmfully portraying" the life and manners of any people or race, disrespect for law or other themes deemed contrary to high moral principles.

Hollywood Launches 'New Deal' in Movies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 13.—(INS.)—The motion picture industry's "new deal against immorality in pictures" got under way with a rush in all major studios here today.

Writers and directors have been served with strict orders that there must be nothing in forthcoming pictures to offend the moral sense of any one.

Meanwhile, in the various studios, groups of men spent hour after hour scrutinizing reel after reel of pictures, almost ready for release, and ordering changes here and there.

Chief among those who watched the flickerings on the silver screen of pictures designed for release after July 15 were Will Hays, movie "czar," and Joseph I. Breen, who, under the "new deal in picture morals," becomes a moral dictator for the film world.

After July 15 all pictures released must carry a seal certifying the inoffensiveness of the plot and dialogue.

Before the certification can become effective theater owners have been granted the right to reject any film to which there is a legitimate protest on moral grounds.

Thus the film colony prepared to carry out its promise to parent-teacher, clergy, laity and women's groups that no more smut will be permitted in the movies of the nation.

Cardinal Hayes Acclaims Response to Film Drive

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Patrick Cardinal Hayes said today it was "heartening" to see "the widespread awakening throughout the country to the evil character and shocking debasement of many motion pictures."

Cardinal Hayes' assertion was contained in a letter to be read at all masses on July 15 in the Archdiocese of New York. It urged pastors to prepare for the organization early in October of the Legion of Decency, which he said had already enrolled hundreds of thousands of members throughout the nation. Cardinal Hayes said:

"The American public—Protestant, Jew and Catholic—is rising, thank God, to determined action to put a stop to productions that, for the sake of monetary greed, debauch the sense of America's moral decency which until recently neither stage or screen would dare openly offend as openly and flagrantly as at present."

He declared the moral forces of the nation had been "too patient" in awaiting a step by the motion picture producers to clean "their own house."

Mae's 'Sin' Movie Renamed Third Time

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 13.—(AP.)—For the third time, Mae West's latest and much-discussed picture has been renamed. It will be called "The Belle of the Gay Nineties."

First it was named "It Ain't No Sin," but the New York Censor Board objected to some scenes and the studio revamped it and decided to give it a new name. The second name chosen was "The Belle of New Orleans," but protests from the Louisiana city caused the studio to discard it.

M'CREADY 'ENJOYING' HIS STAY IN JAIL

KINGWOOD, W. Va., July 13.—Playboy Harrison R. McCready wants his Pittsburgh friends to know that he is more sober than he has been in years and is having a wonderful time here in the Preston County Jail.

Putting in the second week of his 60-day sentence for running afoul of the strict West Virginia law against driving while intoxicated, the 27-year-old spendthrift said:

"I'm having a most wonderful rest and a fine time. I go to bed at 10 and get up at 7:30 and read magazines and smoke cigarets all day. But I'm sore because I'm going to miss the boat races at Oakmont."

Sheriff Charles S. Brown said of his prisoner:

"He is a fine fellow and he will be with us until August 15. He is the most famous person we ever had in the jail."

EXTRA SESSION TALK GROWS

Behind the hand:

There is going to be a special session of the Legislature to provide funds for Pennsylvania's needy.

It will begin about August 15.

The Governor is determined to call a session designed to embarrass the Republican organization in the November elections.

He is going to run for United States Senator in 1938, after Senator James J. Davis' term expires.

There isn't going to be a special session.

The Governor is going to run independently in the fall or he is going to retire from politics.

Reports that the special session will be announced before long were persistent, however.

Just before he went to Milford, the Governor said he is doing everything in his power to avoid calling the General Assembly back to Harrisburg.

The federal government, having set aside $21,000,000 for Pennsylvania's relief needs during July and August, has served notice no more money will be granted the Keystone State until Pennsylvania shoulders a "reasonable" portion of the burden.

Pennsylvania has no funds that can be used to benefit its 300,000 citizens who are out of jobs.

Lila Lee Loser Of $9,000 Jewels

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP.)—Lila Lee, film actress, lost $9,000 worth of jewels here July 5, police said today.

Miss Lee and E. Schoesack, a California friend, had lunch at a North Side hotel and took a taxicab to the Union Station. Schoesack called the cab back to recover his topcoat which he had forgotten. Later, on the train, it was discovered that the jewels were missing, too. The case had been in Schoesack's pocket. Police are looking for the gems.

SUN-TELEGRAPH HOST AT PICNIC

The kiddies of Pittsburgh and vicinity are having their big day at Kennywood Park today—participating in the annual Sun-Telegraph outing. Hundreds of strips of tickets were distributed by this newspaper and the rides and attractions were filled with happy youngsters throughout the day. It is estimated that 5,000 children and their parents attended the outing.

During the afternoon the parade of the Sun-Telegraph comics was the big event—with scores of boys and girls impersonating the favorites from the comic pages of the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Splendid prizes were awarded for the best "make-ups." The names of the winners will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

Dog, Blind Man's 'Eyes,' Faces Glut of Food

Elsie V. Adlerberg, the German police dog that faced starvation yesterday, today is threatened with the possibility of being overfed.

Elsie, the "eyes" of J. Fred Altenhof, blind and unemployed, of 1460 Park boulevard, has been costing her master too much to feed out of the $3 a week relief money the Altenhofs have been receiving.

Altenhof asked the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society to do away with Elsie. Officials refused. Then, through a story printed in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, more than a score of offers of help poured in.

W. H. Wentzel, secretary of the Humane Society, said:

"We're going to try to arrange a fund so that the Altenhofs will be able to open a little store and support themselves and dog."

MISS BEESON'S LOSS OF STOCK TOLD JURY

Lost Banker Believed 'Taken for Ride,' Says Cashier

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—An opinion that Ray J. Frisch, missing cashier of the Riverside Bank of Reno, Nev., was "taken for a ride", was given to a federal jury today in the trial of James C. McKay and William J. Graham, Reno gamblers, charged with misuse of the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The statement was made on the stand by Joseph M. Puetsch, assistant cashier of the bank, during cross-examination when counsel for McKay and Graham sought to learn if Frisch told Puetsch he intended to commit suicide, Puetsch said:

"He did not. He told me this, that he would rather be dead than get mixed up with this trial and ruin his charcater. The night he disappeared he was cheerful.

"It was my opinion he was taken for a ride and that's the opinion of everybody in Reno."

BANK HANDLED FUNDS

Feutsch had testified the Riverside Bank was used by McKay and Graham to arrange for transfers of funds and sales of stocks for persons who later were swindled out of the cash by "con" men, one of whom testified that Graham regularly took 15 per cent for police protection and the banking service.

Puetsch said McKay furnished $110,500 of the $177,000 cash which was turned over to Kathrin K. Beeson, of New York and Pittsburgh, for the sale of her stock, principally shares of Pittsburgh Steel.

MISS BEESON VICTIM

Miss Beeson testified she was fleeced of the money on a fake stock deal, in which she was led to believe that she was putting up "credit money" in order to collect profits already won.

The assistant cashier said the bank seldom had enough cash in its own vaults to pay large sums. To pay Miss Beeson, he said, the bank obtained $50,000 from other Reno banks, $15,000 through the sale of cashier's checks and $110,500 from McKay in exchange for a cashier's check.

4 BOYS STAGE 'CRIME WAVE'

Four boys, all under 13, staged a youthful crime wave yesterday, burglarizing a papa's pocketbook, robbing an ice cream truck and stealing an automobile before they were caught in a police dragnet.

Thus equipped, they started on a joy ride until they espied a Mutual ice cream truck which struck their fancy, aroused their appetites, and caused their downfall.

Today the lads were detained for the juvenile court.

'FAGIN' OF HILLS DIES IN BATTLE

TULSA, Okla., July 13.—(AP.)—The Fagin of the Cookson Hills is dead.

Known to peace officers and friends alike as the "Old Man of the Mountains," John R. Goodman, 72, died as he often predicted he would die—"burning it out with a posse."

Identity of Goodman as one of the bandit pair which fell yesterday before the fire of a small town banker, Eaulum Gregory, his son, Luther, and Oscar Blackford, a farm hand, near Ketchum, Okla., was definitely established through fingerprint files.

With the passing of his older pals as the law made heavy inroads into the area's early day criminals, Goodman has turned more and more to younger "assistants" during recent years, police said.

In accepting these younger men Goodman acquired the reputation of a "Fagin," teaching, telling and even demonstrating the intricacies of robbery, burglary and other crimes.

World Sanctuary, No Guns, Urged By Shaw

LONDON, July 13.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw, patterning after the bird-lovers, suggested today turning the world into a sanctuary for humans, with no shooting allowed.

Observing at a luncheon in support of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds that game refuges had spread to many sections of the world, the Irishman of letters remarked:

"That does us humans a great deal of credit, because there are no sanctuaries for human beings."

JUNE FORSAKES REFUGE, TELLS OF REVELS

Courtroom Jammed As 'Wild Party' Details Unfold

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(AP.)—June Delong, film extra, came out of seclusion today to "tell all" concerning the alleged "wild party" which led to the filing of morals charges against two other persons in the film colony.

The flaxen-haired extra has been absent from the crowded courtroom, where David Allen, former manager of Hollywood's Central Casting Corporation, and Gloria Marsh, another motion picture extra, are defending themselves on charges that they and Miss Delong engaged in acts violating a statute pertaining to the public morals.

Prior to the start of the trial and ever since she told her story to the grand jury, the state's star witness has been under constant guard.

In anticipation of her appearance and testimony, sheriff's deputies made preparations to handle the largest crowd yet to attend the trial.

COURTROOM CROWDED

Each day so far every seat in the courtroom has been occupied long before trial sessions began, and hundreds have stood in line outside, waiting for an opportunity of seizing some vacated bench during a recess.

A previous witness, who said she stumbled accidentally onto the party in Miss Delong's apartment here last April 26, held the sweltering courtroom breathless with a description of what she claimed she saw.

She was Mrs. Pearl Owings, who yesterday withstood a severe cross-examination at the hands of Defense Counsel Jerry Geisler, denying repeatedly that she and others had conspired to "frame" Allen.

Disclosure that a "secret organization" of actors once had planned to dramatize the story of the case and had planned to present it in a Hollywood playhouse was made in the trial itself today by a state's witness, Pat Harman, player of "heavy" characters on the screen. Under cross-examination, Harman repeatedly denied he ever had threatened Allen with harm or that he bore any ill will against the accused former head of the Central Casting Corporation, which supplies the movie studios annually with 100,000 extras, many of them girls.

DENY MARRIAGE

Both Mrs. Owings and Harman denied they were man and wife and that Harman frequently had introduced Mrs. Owings as "Mrs. Harman."

Harman, asked by Geisler if he didn't feel Allen was preventing him from obtaining more work in motion pictures, said he didn't "have to get work through Central Casting."

Throughout most of the day the crowded courtroom heard virtually nothing but a series of "noes" and "I did nots" from both witnesses called by the prosecution.

Mrs. Owings answered in the negative when asked if Miss Delong, whom she testified she had known for three years, had not confided to her that she was a woman possessed of abnormal desires.

She gave a similar answer when Geisler asked her if Miss Delong had not said if the "true facts" of her once temporary occupation as "chauffeurette" for an unidentified wealthy woman became known, her reputation would suffer.

Irish Speed M'Donald Sailing for Canada

MacDonald boarded a tender here and was taken to the S. S. Duchess of Richmond on which he will cross the Atlantic.

MENACE KILLER OF GUN GIRL

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 13.—(AP.)—Frank Martin, trusty-convict, who shot to death the fugitive gun girl, Helen Spence Eaton, was protected from any mob violence today by a special guard.

An increased number of deputies was assigned to duty in the jail after Sheriff L. B. Branch heard whispers of a possible attack. He said he did not believe the threats would be fulfilled.

Martin awaited in the jail the results of an investigation to determine whether he is to stand trial for killing the girl Wednesday as she sought to make good her escape from the state farm for women.

An estimated 8,000 men, women and children had come to view the body of the young woman who was serving time for the killing of two men when she made her fifth bid for freedom.

Although no relatives have claimed her body, Helen is to be buried in a "pretty dress" to be furnished by the undertaker.

FATHER CHASES ELOPERS

International News Service.

MALAGA, N. J., July 13.—A young Lochinvar and his 17-year-old sweetheart, apparently bent on marriage, were being hotly pursued today by the youth's angry father and police of two states.

The romantic youth, Thomas E. C. Smith, Jr., 25, according to his father, not only took a girl, Ella Mick, Clayton, N. J., with him, but also "eloped" with $400 of his father's money and a German revolver.

Mary Miles Minter Wins Modiste Suit

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(AP.)—Mary Miles Minter, former screen actress, won a legal battle yesterday with Hilda Deasy, Wilshire boulevard modiste. The Municipal Court found in favor of Miss Minter on her contention that the dressmaker owed her $61, which allegedly was lent to help open the dress shop.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WITH QUEEN AT PARTY

Mother of President Again Meets Mary In Scotland

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 13.—(AP.)—Queen Mary and Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the American President, had another private chat yesterday—similar to the one they enjoyed at Buckingham Palace recently.

While the King and Queen were strolling through the grounds of Holyrood Palace mixing with 10,000 guests who attended a royal garden party there, the Queen noticed Mrs. Roosevelt among the throng.

ROYAL FINERY

The King and Queen themselves set the example. The Queen wore a gown of pale orchid mauve lace, with a silk toque of the same shade and orchids pinned to her waist. She had a necklace of diamonds.

A number of the women guests wore dresses with "sunbathing" backs and without sleeves, but if Queen Mary was displeased she did not give any sign of it.

Toward the end of the afternoon some of the men and women guests lighted cigarets, a thing which is never permitted at Buckingham Palace garden parties.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN BLACK

Mrs. Roosevelt, dressed in a black and white patterned silk gown, mingled with the ladies of the court, talking to the Duchess of Atholl, the Duchess of Richmond and many other prominent society and court figures.

After the reception the President's mother spent several hours in Edinburgh and then started for London by train.

Among those attending the garden party were Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Sir Harry Lauder. Sir Harry wore kilts and was bare-legged like many others.

The King, taking note of the costumes, remarked to Sir Ian Colquhon, as he presented several guests:

"You should have come in kilts and bare-legged instead of morning dress."

ROOSEVELT TO FISH, DEFY JINX

ABOARD U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 13.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt cruised across the Pacific today for Hawaii with his immediate goal a fishing ground off Cocos Island, 500 miles from Panama.

In the waters of this old rendezvous of buccaneers, Mr. Roosevelt has been told, lie the best of the game fish in the Pacific. Late today he is going to defy the superstition of Friday, the thirteenth, to try his luck.

So confident was he of good fishing that the schedule calls for a full day's layover at Cocos. The trip will be resumed tomorrow afternoon.

First Lady Hides, Denies She'll Visit Daughter

ROSEVILLE, Cal., July 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is somewhere in the mountains of California or in Western Nevada today, trying to "get away from being the President's wife."

Seeking to lose herself, she was last seen publicly in a coffee shop, eating peaches and cream, toast and coffee. She had arrived in Sacramento by airplane yesterday and newspapermen followed her automobile to the shop, patronized chiefly by railroad men.

Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied by her friend, Miss Lorena Hickok, who had met her at the airport and had arranged that the President's wife should be taken to a Sacramento hotel which she left through an alley exit within a few minutes.

The First Lady declined to say where she was going. She said she was not in the West to visit her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, who is living in Nevada prior to filing a suit for divorce. She said:

"I want to see California. I'm just on a vacation. I'll know in a couple of days if I can lose myself and get away from being the President's wife.

"I would like to get away by myself at times, to go along quietly. I'm willing to be the President's wife when I join him, but I'd like to get away from that while I'm on this holiday."

When Mrs. Roosevelt was last seen she was headed for the high Sierras, accompanied by Miss Hickok. The road she took leads toward Nevada. Between Roseville and Nevada is Lake Tahoe, where it was said Miss Hickok has leased a cottage.

STATE ASSAILS ENGINEER'S ALIBI

Hickman Shown to Be Innocent of Killing, Defense Asserts

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—(AP.)—Over vigorous protests of defense attorneys, pictures showing the huddled body of Louise Jeppesen, lying face downward in a pool of blood, were handed about today among jurors trying Millard Hickman for her murder.

The pictures were introduced during testimony of John C. Gentry, stableman, who found the Ogden girl's body at the entrance to a tunnel in Golden Gate Park, shortly before daylight the morning of May 13. He said the pictures showed the scene as he saw it on his way to work that morning.

Mrs. Virgil Dunkley, youthful sister of the slain girl, wept softly.

The prosecution announced that "developments over night" had made necessary a switch in plans, and that before completing their case against the middle-aged marine engineer charged with attacking and strangling the Utah girl, they would have "10 or 12 more witnesses" to put on.

FILIPINO TESTIFIES

A Filipino elevator boy, Paterno Natividad, testified that Hickman accompanied Miss Jeppesen out of his hotel a short time before the prosecution contends she was murdered in the park.

Police investigators preceding the trial declared Hickman at first insisted Miss Jeppesen left his apartment by herself, but later said he accompanied her downstairs and started her on her way home.

Harry McKenzie, defense attorney, declared today the state so far had "not proved a thing." He declared:

"By their own witness they put Hickman in the elevator about 4 a. m., and also by another witness of their own, George Neiborger, the dairy deliveryman, who said he heard screams in the park, they have established Miss Jeppesen was killed just about 4 a. m."

Gentry testified of getting up early, setting his watch by that in a service station, taking a street car to the park and finding the body in the tunnel at about 4:30 a. m. He said:

"I saw something in the roadway, but I was not sure what it was until I got closer. Then I saw it was the body of the lady."

STATE'S CONTENTION

The state contends the engineer would have had ample time to commit the murder in the park before going to the apartment of Miss Blanche McKay with whom he said he spent the early hours of May 13, taking her to his own hotel. Defense lawyers sought to fill up the gaps.

A. J. Arroll, night clerk at Miss McKay's hotel, testified he saw her leave her hotel with a man whose face he did not see at about 4:25 a. m.

But he said also Miss McKay had received a telephone call about 3:15 which lasted 15 or 20 minutes, "so long it caused comment," and that about 15 minutes later "a man called and took her out."

CAPT. ROSS WARREN — SERGT. HUGH ABERCROMBIE

WORLD WAR VET GETS MEDAL

A Verona World War hero today was the possessor of a Distinguished Service Cross, won 16 years ago at the second battle of the Marne.

Sergt. Hugo Abercrombie, 38, heard his citation for bravery read at a public military ceremony last night at Cribbs athletic field, Verona. War buddies, friends and Army officials of Allegheny County attended the celebration.

According to the citation, Abercrombie refused to leave his outfit after being wounded, but remained in the midst of battle to direct the movements of ammunition carriers between the guns and the supply stations.

Lying on his back in a shallow trench, he issued orders to his men while the battle raged, and allowed himself to be taken to the rear only after all the guns had been supplied.

Capt. Ross Warren, field artillery instructor of the 99th Division, made the presentation. Speakers included Hyatt N. Cribbs, representing the citizens of Verona; Col. Robert G. Woodside, George Grimm, American Legion county commander; Judge H. H. Rowand and Sergt. J. H. Baird.

ANTS 'VILLAINS' IN PORCH CRASH

BETHESDA, O., July 13.—An attack of insects on the foundation of the Epworth Park Hotel caused the collapse of the front porch that sent 16 elderly women to hospitals and injured a score of others.

Carpenters investigated the porch after the accident yesterday and found wooden girders eaten away by the insects. Weight of more than 50 women on the porch section at the time it broke down weakened the timbers.

None of those taken to hospitals was fatally hurt. Dr. D. M. Murphy said. Broken legs, arms, wrenched backs and cuts were suffered when the women fell.

More than a hundred other women escaped.

Assistant District Attorney Ross Mitchner said today that "any investigation is up to the state building inspector."

Liquor Stores Here Top Philadelphia's

Pittsburgh's two leading liquor stores did more business in the week ending July 7 than Philadelphia's two leaders, according to figures announced today by District Supervisor Philip W. Gundelfinger.

The East North Diamond street store took in $13,108.01, and the Boulevard of Allies downtown store, $13,547.08. The Philadelphia stores' figures were $9,353.29 and $8,980.83.

STATE BEGINS DRIVE AGAINST FAKE CLUBS

'Speakeasies' Now Face Loss of $2,000 Bond Posted for License

The "phoney" one-man club operating under the guise of a legitimate club has grown to the stage where the State Attorney General's office has stepped in.

Determined to clean up the "chartered speakeasies" which violate the law by Sunday liquor sales and faked membership, Attorney John M. Walker, of the Attorney General's staff, is preparing cases against more than a score of "chartered clubs" in this district.

Walker will ask not only for revocation of the license and the charter, but also that the bond of $2,000 posted for the liquor license be forfeited to the state.

RULING WAITED

The actions will be filed in the local courts just as soon as Attorney General William A. Schnader rules on what law violations are necessary to cause forfeiture of the $2,000 bond.

The investigation of the clubs in the county is being made under the direction of E. Jimcousky, head of the Liquor Control Board enforcement division here. The reports are then forwarded to Harrisburg to the office of the Attorney General and later put into Walker's hands for prosecution.

Walker said today that speakeasies operating clubs must go. He declared that while the court action to clean up on the chartered clubs has been delayed, many of the "clubs" will be put out of business before the year is over.

SCORE OF CASES

Walker declared that there are more than a score of cases being prepared. Schnader's ruling on what violations must exist before bond can be forfeited is expected to be made this week. He also is expected to clear up the question of whether sale of liquor on Sunday in the clubs constitutes a violation.

Walker revealed that there are many clubs operating in Allegheny County on certified copies of old charters and that there are several cases where more than one club have copies of the same charter.

When liquor licenses are revoked, the charter also is revoked and this brings about forfeiture of the $2,000 bond each club must post. Once a license has been revoked, the individual having the license is not entitled to apply for another license for five years.

Charges by Jimcousky resulted last night in two operators of drug stores being held for court on charges of violating the liquor laws. Operators of the Young drug store, 4624 Center avenue, and the Melwood drug store, Melwood and Center, were held for court. It was charged both stores sold liquor without prescriptions. The cases were heard before Alderman Raymond E. Schneider.

Why Tempt Jinx? It's Friday 13th!

Bad Day to Dive Into Dry Pool And So Forth

Don't try to fill an inside straight.

Don't resist a holdup man if he has the drop on you.

Don't sneeze if you have false teeth and want to keep them.

The reason—this is Friday the thirteenth and some folks do say the day is dynamite as far as bad luck is concerned.

This jinx idea was laughed off by at least one group, employes of the Homestead steel works. Today was their payday. As far as they're concerned, every day can be the thirteenth if it's payday, too.

BLACK CAT TO LEAP

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(INS.)—Friday the thirteenth. A black cat, an airplane, and all Washington cat lovers are up in the air. So will be the cat—if the scheduled plans reported here are followed.

The cat, "Rattlebones," is scheduled to be dropped from the airplane of his master, Prvt. Ralph Watson, of the 68th Squadron at Kelly Field, Texas. It's Watson's idea of defying superstitution.

Watson will have a parachute. The cat won't.

But the cat has the moral support of Washington animal lovers even if it is black and today is Friday the thirteenth.

The S. P. C. A. has appealed to the War Department to spare the cat's life.

Hurled 50 Feet By Auto on Jinx Day

Friday, the thirteenth jinx, stalked Jacob Pintsner, 53, today, but he escaped, apparently with little injury, after being hurled 50 feet through the air by an automobile.

Pintsner, who lives at 2500 Waterman street, Carrick, was hit as he attempted to cross Saw Mill Run boulevard. Fire Capt. Harry C. Brockett, of Engine Company 59, said he was hurled the whole 50 feet. Brockett arrested the driver of the car.

HILL BILLY LORE

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 13.—(AP.)—Flout the idea of superstitution as you will; queer things happen on Friday the thirteenth.

Ask the Ozark hill native.

If a bat flies into a house, a member of the family will die. Even a bird flying into the house is deadly enough.

That common-enough occurrence—sudden ringing in the ears—is interpreted by true Hillsfolk as "death bells."

To protect a corpse from evil spirits, one should place a saucer of salt or vinegar on the stomach of the dead person.

Should a hen crow, death in

Black Cat Slated To Take Leap From Plane

the family of the owner is indicated.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 13.—(AP.)—Bright and early today Wheeling's noted Anti-Superstition Club hailed Friday the thirteenth by smashing the traditional mirror and generally disporting itself in such a manner as to defy all ill omens, if any.

The head-strong members hied themselves to a high hill even as dawn crossed their path and proceeded to make short work of the perfectly good mirror.

Followed, then, a lot of annual club business which would have made the superstitious-minded shiver in the summer warmth had they been present.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members returned to their homes, going out of their way to walk under ladders and chase a few black cats.

M'NAIR SPEECH 'BALONEY' TO HILL CROWD

Police Answer Riot Call When Mayor Views Eviction

Mayor McNair, who yesterday made himself chief peace officer of the Hill district, was expecting a return call today from William Nichols, Negro, for whom he has promised to find a house.

The Mayor's call on Nichols wasn't exactly a social visit, as His Honor went up to keep peace while Nichols' furniture was being moved into the street from the flat he occupied at 1913 Enoch street.

But after heckling by residents of the district and Communists, who called the Mayor's impromptu single tax speech "baloney," McNair gave Nichols $10 from his purse and promised him more money and a house today.

EMULATES MAHOMET

Like Mahomet, who didn't wait for the mountain to come to him, McNair didn't wait for the Hill. All he needed was a call from Nichols' landlord, William Landis, of 3047 Center avenue, that police had refused protection for the men evicting Nichols.

Rushing to the Hill, McNair mounted an empty pop bottle box and explained that the landlord wasn't the one to be blamed.

High taxes set by Council caused it, the Mayor said, and he had pretty well won the crowd over. He even got one Negro woman to volunteer to take Nichols' family in for the night, and was making a hit with the children, giving them pennies and nickels.

Then along came Phil Frankfeld, Communist leader of the Unemployment Council. Communists are flies in the Mayor's soup and he said frankly he didn't like them.

'BALONEY' SPEECH

Frankfeld mounted the box and called the Mayor's talk "baloney," finally urging his audience of 50 or more to carry all of Nichols' belongings back in the house.

The Mayor stationed himself in the entrance and announced he was going to keep order, and the situation was growing interesting, if not serious, when a dozen police, under Inspector John H. Schnurr, came up the Hill. Someone had sent in a riot call. When the first policeman came through the crowd, the Mayor extended his hand and said:

"Hello, I'm glad to see you. Well, I guess I can go now."

M'NAIR DOCKED 3 DAYS' PAY

Miss May Hart, cost clerk in the Mayor's office, has deducted three days' pay from Mayor McNair's salary for time he spent at the seashore.

There is evidence, however, that the Mayor was quite willing to be shorn of his pay, with the idea of applying the rule to a number of others on the payroll.

He said recently he might consent to have his salary "docked" and would then cut that of some of the Councilmen. However, the Mayor has no direct control over the councilmanic payroll.

The cut taken by the Mayor amounts to $120.96.

Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's three-job secretary, now is away on vacation, and when he returns will find his salary pruned. Only city employes in service for a year or more are considered entitled to vacations.

SIDETRACK VICE IN POLICE QUIZ

Members of the Police Research Commission will meet tomorrow afternoon in private conference to decide what subject the commission will next pursue.

Prof. Elmer D. Graper, chairman, plans to switch the discussion into technical fields, he asserted. Who will be called to the next hearing, which may be held late next week, the commission has to decide.

It was indicated that for the time being underworld topics will be kept out of the hearings, some members feeling that too many thrills might harm the constructive objects of the commission.

BRITAIN WARNS HITLER, REPLY WAITED

crately timed on the very day and a few hours in advance of Hitler's statement to the world, to forestall any declaration on his part that Britain's attitude was not known.

It may cause the Chancellor to make last-minute changes in the speech he is to deliver tonight.

Sir Eric handed Baron von Neurath the drafts of three notes worked out at the British Foreign Office while Barthou was in London.

The first was the outline of a strictly Franco-Russian treaty, the result of many weeks of negotiations between Paris and Moscow, which have been viewed with the greatest suspicion by the German Foreign Office.

EASTERN LOCARNO

The second was the "Eastern Locarno" part, which would bring Russia, Germany, Poland and other eastern powers into an agreement to guarantee one another's territories from invasion.

The third was the draft of a general pact for similar mutual assistance pacts covering all sectors of the European continent. The draft of a Mediterranean pact, which principally concerns France and Italy, was not presented but von Neurath was informed of its existence.

It is the Eastern Locarno pact, obligating Germany to accept her present frontiers and abandon her claims for expansion toward the East that has disturbed the German press. But there are some indications that a compromise may be worked out that might make it acceptable to the reich though it is doubted here that Poland will approve any such arrangement.

Nevertheless there was some bitter comment in government circles. One said:

"France is still trying to carry out Napoleonic plans for European hegemony while Germany is trying to establish European and world peace through individual agreements."

Italy Backs Britain On Locarno Pact

LONDON, July 13.—(INS.)—British and Italian approval of the French plan for an "Eastern Locarno" was announced this afternoon by Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary.

Sir John, who clashed openly with Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, at Geneva, on the armament question, extolled the French foreign minister, who has just concluded a visit of far-reaching importance to London, and the French government, which he said earnestly desires peace. He said:

"The proposal for an eastern pact of mutual guarantee is based on the strictest principles of reciprocity and conceived with the genuine purpose of strengthening the peace of Europe and the world.

"It creates a further basis of reciprocal guarantees and is well deserving the support of the British government and people."

Sir John then read to Commons the text of a note received only this morning from Premier Mussolini, which read as follows:

"The attitude of Italy as a signatory of the pact of Locarno is similar to that of the United Kingdom.

"On the clear understanding that the Eastern pact does not imply any fresh engagement on her part, Italy regards with sympathy proposals which have been made on the basis of absolute reciprocity between all the countries concerned.

"This is particularly the case when such proposals offer fresh possibilities in the field of limitation or reduction of armaments and as regards implicit recognition of equality of rights."

Catholics to Offer Prayers for Nazis

CINCINNATI, July 13.—(INS.)—Roman Catholics will be asked to pray Sunday that "God may grant the blessing of peace that racial hatreds may cease, and that fratricidal carnage and international war may be averted," according to a dispatch sent by Archbishop John T. McNicholas today to all priests of the Cincinnati archdiocese.

The prayers, it was said, are intended to help the German situation.

'Judges of Hell' Bomb Found in Paris

PARIS, July 13.—(AP.)—The "three judges of hell," after three weeks of silence, again put their mark on Paris today.

his remarks to be misconstrued as official.

The remarks which aroused the German embassy were made by Johnson during the first speech of his Western tour. Reviewing recent events incident to the German "blood-bath," Johnson said:

"I have seen something of that sort in Mexico during the Villa ravages and among semi-civilized people or savages half drunk on soto! or marajuna—but that such a thing could happen in some supposed culture passes comprehension."

UPHOLDS STATEMENT

OMAHA, July 13.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, today reiterated, "I meant everything I said," when shown dispatches relating that Dr. Rudolf Leitner, charge d'affairs of the German Embassy, had protested to the State Department Johnson's denunciation of the Hitler "purge" in an address at Waterloo, Ia., last night.

The German charge d'affairs called upon the State Department for an official explanation of Johnson's speech in which he arraigned the German government for allegedly executing men without trial.

"Nothing has impressed me so much as these events in Germany. To me they indicate that when people depart from constitutional rights they enter into uncertainty."

Last night, when told that his speech had created a furor at Washington, he said he had been speaking not for the State Department nor for the administration, but as an individual.

Miss Frances Robinson, the general's executive assistant, today said numerous telegrams had been received from German-Americans praising his stand. He told the Waterloo audience that the German executions made him "sick—not figuratively but physically—and very sick."

WIFE LEAVES TRUST FUND

Mrs. Jane Lloyd Stephenson, daughter of the late David McKay Lloyd, leaves $1,000 each to Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, Children's Hospital and Pennsylvania College for Women, in her will, filed for probate today.

The will disposes of a $7,500 estate. A trust fund, set up for Mrs. Stephenson by her father in 1917, is continued for her husband, Charles M. Stephenson, and a sister, Mary L. McCance; at their death for her brother, Henry Lloyd; then to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie L. Stephenson, and her children.

Mrs. Anne Eliza Adams, of Carnegie, leaves the realty of her $11,500 estate to a daughter, Freda Hard, and the balance to Freda and two other children, James and William McKinley Hard.

DUCE, DOLLFUSS PLAN 'PICNIC DIPLOMACY'

By W. W. CHAPLIN

ROME, July 13.—European politics take numerous strange forms, but Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Dollfuss today were planning something new in their "picnic diplomacy" scheduled for the middle of this month.

Twice before the Austrian Chancellor has visited Il Duce, but both these occasions were of a rather formal nature, though they were never given the circus setting of the Mussolini-Hitler meeting at Venice.

But this time, Dollfuss is to bring his wife and children to Riccione, the Adriatic beach resort near Mussolini's birthplace of Forli. Il Duce will also be accompanied by members of his family.

FOREIGN OFFICE

In fact, Foreign Office statements give the impression that this is to be little more than a meeting of two old friends who want to bring their families together and have a few quiet days of pleasant loafing by the gentle seashore.

Diplomatic circles, however, take a more serious view of the matter. One veteran diplomat in Rome says:

"At Venice Mussolini and Hitler divided all Austria into four parts, and each took three. Now Dollfus wants to know how many parts that leaves him.

"There will be more than 'bologney' in the sandwiches that Mussolini and Dollfus eat with their families on the strand at Riccioni. There will be tough food for both to chew on, and the general belief is that Dollfuss will find it indigestible, but will swallow it because he will have no alternative."

VENICE AGREEMENT

At Venice, Hitler and Mussolini agreed that Austria should retain its independence, and they both deplored the outrages which Austria believes are inspired from Germany.

But the outrages have not ceased. Bombings continue and the tourist trade is destroyed. Austria is free, but some of its citizens are beginning to feel their freedom is only the freedom to starve to death at leisure.

But over the picnic basket at Riccione, while his wife gossips with Mrs. Mussolini and his children paddle in the waves, Dollfuss may be brought to a "better understanding" by the dark-browed dictator of the country on which he depends to hold off the Teuton threat from the north.

NOOSE PERILS SEVEN NAZIS

VIENNA, July 13.—(AP.)—The death of a woman victim of a bombing for which seven Nazi suspects are in jail placed the seven in the shadow of the gallows today—if the bombing can be fastened on them.

No Nazi has yet been hung under the emergency laws for anti-government bombing offenses which have plagued Austria for months.

Meanwhile the strenuous campaign of Maj. Emil Fey against Austrian Nazis, seeking to oust them from positions in the state police, produced a concrete result with the arrest of Edouard Fischer, Salzburg inspector of police.

PRESS ATTACK ANSWERED

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP.)—The Foreign Press Association, an organization of foreign correspondents in Germany, gave its answer today to Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' vitriolic address scoring foreign newspapers and their representatives for reports on the recent revolution.

At a special meeting the association reminded Goebbels by implication that lack of authentic information regarding the events of June 30 and the days following was the chief reason for the currency of erroneous information.

The association refrained, however, from taking issue with the Propaganda Minister, stating that "world public opinion has given its answer" to his strictures.

Another Language Used by Hubby Wins Divorce

Her husband spoke "another language" which was so offensive that the neighbors called their daughters inside when they quarreled, Mrs. Anna Phillips Morgan testified today and won a divorce from David A. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan, who lives at 409 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, told Judge George V. Moore that her husband never supported her. She said she works as assistant cashier for the People's Natural Gas Company.

Her husband, a naturopath, living at 413 North Euclid avenue, told her he wished "something would happen to her," she said. They were married in 1930 and separated last fall, she stated.

Locarno Pact Designed To Balk Invasion

International News Service.

LONDON, July 13.—The Locarno pact, which forms the basis of the so-called "Eastern Locarno" now under discussion, was signed at Locarno, Italy, in 1925 by representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium.

Its purpose was to preserve the peace of Western Europe by guaranteeing the inviolability of the German-Belgian and Franco-German frontiers by pledging that the power that invaded the territory of another would be attacked by all the other signatories to the pact. In effect, it meant that Great Britain and Italy would go to the aid of France if Germany attacked France, or vice versa.

The Eastern Locarno has been drafted along similar lines to include Russia, Poland, Germany and possibly other smaller states.

BATTLE BREWS IN STATE OVER OPEN SUNDAY

HARRISBURG, July 13.—(AP)—Another bitter fight over Pennsylvania's Blue Laws of 1794 is developing seven months in advance of the 1934 Legislature.

Church, civic and political organizations which lost last year's fight to prevent Sunday baseball and football already are preparing to face what they describe as a campaign to further liberalize the Sabbath.

Leaders of these forces assert a movement has been started to "throw Pennsylvania wide open after 1 p. m. on Sundays."

Several bills designed to do this already are being drafted, they assert. One of the bills would legalize Sunday amusements.

SEEK SPORTS REPEAL

Mrs. Ella B. Black, president of the Pennsylvania Women's Christian Temperance Union, says her organization will join other advocates of the old Sabbath law to block any effort for further changes of the Act of 1794.

In addition, Mrs. Black said, the state W. C. T. U. will fight for repeal of the Sunday football and baseball law. Sunday sports will be a topic of the state convention of the W. C. T. U. in Wilkes-Barre this autumn.

The executive committee of the new Pennsylvania Men's Dry League announced some time ago it will battle any attempt to further loosen the old Sunday laws.

HOT BATTLE LIKELY

Legislators expect as spectacular a fight over the blue laws next year as that of 1933, when the football and baseball law was enacted after months of lively argument.

Church and civic leaders from many sections of the state fought champions of Sunday sport at many hearings before the measure sponsored by Representative Louis Schwartz, of Philadelphia, authorizing communities to vote for themselves on the subject, was signed by Gov. Pinchot.

EAST ST. SPAN MADE USEFUL

Thanks to the Relief Work Division, residents of the Spring Garden district today had access to the East Street Bridge.

Finished in 1930, the viaduct, which starts at Charles street near Perrysville avenue and ends in a wooded area isolated from a modern highway, was dubbed "the bridge that leads to nowhere."

A mud road winding through the woods from the end of the bridge stopped abruptly at the shore of a creek known locally as Butcher's Run.

According to persons living in the neighborhood, motorists often traversed the rutted dirt road, only to be stopped at the bank of the creek, on the other side of which is Spring Garden avenue. They were then forced to turn around and go back to the bridge.

But the RWD came to the rescue, and built a culvert across the stream. So residents of the district formally dedicated the structure yesterday at ceremonies which included cracking a bottle full of Butcher's Run water across the culvert hand rail.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND IN SHED

Missing four days, Mrs. Rosa Costello, 74, of 130 Stranahan street, was found asleep in a shed in the rear of her home last night by East End police.

Police were summoned by a neighbor who became alarmed at the aged woman's absence. They hurried to the address and reported finding the aged woman asleep in the shed. She was helped into her home, where she told police that she went to the shed four days ago after a quarrel with her husband, Frank, 69.

Gyro Crash Kills Byrd Aide's Brother

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP.)—The crash of a gyroplane he was testing killed Joseph McCormick, 26.

The young flier, a brother of William S. McCormick, pilot with the Byrd Antarctic expedition, had just taken the new ship into the air when it crashed near Ambler yesterday. His head was crushed.

VACCINATION FOE FREED

CARLISLE, Pa., July 13.—(AP.)—John Marsh, who spent eight months in jail rather than permit vaccination of two children, was a free man again today.

The youngsters, vaccinated two weeks ago as temporary wards of the county, are improving at a hospital and school officials agreed to drop the case against Marsh.

Marsh was sentenced to his forty-ninth five-day term on Tuesday and has enough violations of the school law pending against him to keep him in jail an additional 200 days. The law provides a five-day imprisonment for each school day missed because of non-vaccination.

COURT MAKES YOUTH GO TO HOSPITAL

Religious Scruples Of Father Overridden

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP.)—The law had done today what John Hoffman would not do because of religious scruples—ordered medical attention for the crippled leg of his 16-year-old son.

Still protesting against anything but faith healing of the two-year-old knee fracture which has crippled the boy, the father threatened legal action to stop what he terms an "assault" to the Diety. He declared:

"I'm going to see a lawyer and see what can be done. I've had plenty of sickness in my family, and God has always seen me through. I've seen many people put down with their lives because of medical treatment."

The unbending stand on religious views made no mark on the father's insistence on non-interference with "our own legal rights according to our consciences," and insisted he felt "all right."

Physicians however, told Judge Theodore Rosen in Municipal Court that the son "may lose his leg and part of the bone of the left shoulder, which has also become infected" unless he gets medical treatment.

In ordering the boy to a hospital the Judge assured the father that no "drastic measures will be taken or an operation performed unless you are first consulted."

Bridgeville Man Drowned in Pond

Overcome by cramps while swimming in Scott's pond, near Bridgeville, Frank Marchick, 20, of 42 Mill street, Bridgeville, drowned last night.

Mt. Lebanon police and firemen attempted resuscitation for an hour after recovering his body from the pool.

TRAFFIC SHOWS INCREASE

Traffic on Pittsburgh streets has increased 15 per cent over last year, according to a report by the Bureau of Traffic Planning. Based on statistics compiled by ten hours stationed at downtown corners during May. Vehicles entering and leaving the business district between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. on May 17 totalled 136,597.

The count indicated that traffic has doubled in the city in the past 10 years. Lewis W. Metzger, city traffic engineer, said the number of vehicles in Pittsburgh has shown a steady rise throughout the depression, though the increase dropped from 9 per cent in 1930 to 1.8 per cent in 1932.

U.S. 'KEEPSEYE' ON REPUBLIC STEEL

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—The new steel labor board has detailed James P. Dewey, veteran Labor Department conciliator, to keep an eye on the Republic Steel Corporation situation.

Republic refused to draw up new contracts with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for the employes at its Warren, O., plant.

The corporation said it took that stand because there was danger of the union leadership falling into the hands of the "radical element."

Board officials said Dewey, for the present at least, would work in Pittsburgh. A group of other companies operating in the Middle-west is drawing up union contracts there this week. Republic would have been in the group had its officials not decided to stay out of the negotiations.

Dewey's work is to report what happens rather than to make any official investigation, board officials said.

Meanwhile, the board continued its study of the steel labor situation in general. It has been suggested unofficially they will go to Pittsburgh to gather further data within the next several weeks.

Members also conferred informally with members of several code labor boards. Just what the relationship will be between the new board and the code boards has not been determined.

San Francisco Strike Brings Food Shortage

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—(AP.)—Housewives and men on the street felt the Pacific Coast's maritime strike today as an increasing number of labor unions joined the movement toward a general strike in the San Francisco Bay area.

Shortages of food, gasoline and fuel became an actual threat.

With a move toward a general strike gaining headway in Portland, Ore., and rumblings of a similar movement heard in Los Angeles, the San Francisco strategy committee called a meeting of all unions this afternoon at which a general strike is expected to be demanded.

Nearly 100,000 workers in San Francisco and the transbay cities of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda have pledged themselves to walk out in sympathy with 27,000 striking maritime workers if the strategy committee say the word.

Twenty-five hundred taxicab drivers and chauffeurs walked out here at 5 o'clock this morning bringing to 6,370 the number who have already joined in a protest for immediate settlement of the waterfront strike. Nearly 5,000 more—butchers, laundrymen and retail deliverymen will join them Saturday night.

With garden trucks being halted outside the city, wholesale merchants said San Francisco's fresh fruit and vegetable supply would be exhausted by Saturday night. Sufficient meat is on hand to last five days, but wholesale butchers already have walked out and retail meat cutters will hang up their cleavers Saturday night.

REPUBLIC ALIBI 'BUNK'--TIGHE

Terming it "all bunk," President M. F. Tighe, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, today denounced the reasons given by the Republic Steel Corporation for withdrawal from a wage parley as "just an excuse."

The Republic announced Tuesday it had severed its relations with the union after 20 years' contact because it feared the Amalgamated would be ruled by "radicals."

The wage parley, with the remaining members of the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association, was resumed here this morning, with the Amalgamated ready to reply to a counter proposal of the operators. The conference probably will end today, it was said.

Declaring that the Republic is the "aggressor and has locked out the union men," Tighe declared that the matter already is being investigated by the government's new steel labor board.

Louis Leonard, Amalgamated secretary, said the Weirton situation also has been placed before the new board. Five officers of an Amalgamated lodge in Clarksburg were reported arrested yesterday for alleged intimidation of witnesses in the Weirton controversy.

ALUMINUM CO. PROBE REVIVED

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—Spurred by a federal Circuit Court of Appeals decision adverse to the Aluminum Company of America, the Department of Justice today prepared to press its investigation into alleged monopolistic practices of the huge concern dominated by Andrew W. Mellon and close relatives.

Attorney General Cummings told reporters at his press conference that the recent action of the Appeals Court in New York City ordering a retrial in a $3,000,000 damage suit brought by the Bausch Machine Tool Company, of Springfield, Mass., was "highly important" to the department's inquiry.

Investigation, initiated months ago, had been "more or less" held up during the pendency of the Bausch case, Cummings said.

Of particular interest to the Department of Justice was the Bausch company's successful effort in the lower court to force the Aluminum company to disclose its cost of production through the filing of a bill of discovery. The figures, though used in the case, were not made public.

BAR TO LAUNCH CAMPAIGN ON CRIMINALS

WICHITA, Kan., July 13.—(AP.)—Widespread revisions in criminal law and court procedure as a means of checking crime are to be recommended to the American Bar Association at its annual meeting in Milwaukee August 27, Earle W. Evans, president of the association, announced today.

The recommendations will include creation of state departments of justice, establishment of a permanent committee on criminal justice composed of lawyers and laymen to be charged with the duty of improving and criticizing enforcement of criminal law, an intensive campaign against dishonest and unethical lawyers and extensive changes in the criminal law itself.

CHANGES PROPOSED

The proposals were drawn up by the council of the section of criminal law of the association, of which Justin Miller, dean of the school of law at Duke University, is chairman.

Among the changes in criminal procedure to be suggested will be proposals for permitting an accused person to elect whether he shall be tried by a jury or by the court alone, except in cases where the death penalty may be inflicted; permitting impanelling of alternate or extra jurors to serve in the case of disability or disqualification of any jurors during a trial, and providing for jury verdicts in criminal cases by less than a unanimous vote except in the case of certain major felonies.

Another proposal would permit trial on information as well as indictment.

CURB ON ALIBIS

While recognizing that "in sound practice a grand jury indictment may be desirable on some occasions," the draft of the proposal states "where indictment by a grand jury remains a constitutional requirement, waiver should be allowed."

A curb on alibi or insanity defenses would be provided by requiring advance notice to the prosecution of these defenses and of the circumstances to be offered. In the absence of such notice a plea of insanity or a defense based on an alibi would not be permitted except in extraordinary cases in the discretion of the judge.

Seaplane Cruise By Socialites Starts

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—The ultra fashionable Long Island Aviation Country Club's fourth annual invitation seaplane cruise got under way today after being postponed from yesterday because of heavy fog over Manhasset Bay.

The 18 planes, with Commodore and Mrs. Richard F. Hoyt leading the way, took off without mishap and headed up the Hudson for Wellesley Island in the Thousand Island group.

as that of the famous stentor, who startled the Trojans with a voice as powerful as that of fifty men.

The ladies hop back onto the curb.

It roars at truck-drivers:

Such stentorian trucks should be valuable in our civilization. They might be made useful outside of legislative bodies, the capitol at Washington, and the stock exchanges.

IN CHINA, in the Nungan district, along the Mongolian border Bubonic plague has broken out violently and widespread floods made it impossible to check its spread.

This continent, north and south, has practically conquered yellow fever, that used to kill thousands, as plagues in China have killed millions.

Determined action would probably wipe out China's deadliest plague. If it did, and if famine and brutality of war could be conquered also, it would be necessary for Providence to provide on a great scale for a gigantically increased Mongolian population.

THE BRITISH have common sense, and they keep their heads. A British professor Laski, in Russia, made a speech that may, or may not, have been foolish. He was said to have discussed the probability of revolution in England, and members of the House of Commons got excited about it.

The British government, to all the howling, replies through its spokesman that "Professor Laski's passport was quite in order," and declines to interest itself further.

CHANCELLOR DOLLFUSS of Austria said:

"No more bomb explosions. Deliver your dynamite now, and you will be forgiven. Anybody found with explosives hereafter will be put to death."

Apparently the Austrian dictator has not learned Mussolini's method of securing absolute obedience; two bomb explosions greeted the Dollfuss threat. One bomb, placed in an automobile, injured five. Another damaged the house of an Austrian priest.

FRANCE IS borrowing three billion francs. Money seems to be scarce in Europe, although we sent a good deal abroad.

Russia sends over four and a half million dollars to pay for cotton bought in this country. How do "best minds" explain that? They said Russia would never pay anything.

BOMB SUSPECT FACES COURT

Detectives said Eichenmiller told them Mrs. James had a slot machine in her barbecue, across the road from the Schindler beer garden. Both were arraigned before Alderman Thomas Geary.

BOY MURDERER EXECUTED BY GAS

International News Service.

FLORENCE, Ariz., July 13.—With a crucifix tightly clutched in his right hand and with a telegram from his mother in his left hand, George J. Shaughnessy, 19-year-old "blond killer" of Albany, N. Y., was executed in the lethal gas chamber here at dawn today.

Shaughnessy, who spent his nineteenth birthday in condemned row of the prison here only a few weeks ago, forfeited his life for the brutal slaying of Lon Blankenship, Tucson automobile salesman, whom he shot to death one year ago tomorrow in Nogales, during a holdup.

Clad only in a pair of shorts Shaughnessy was strapped into the death chair, which exactly seven days ago to the minute held the body of Manuel Hernandez, youngest brother of two Mexicans executed for a similar crime.

CARSON CITY, Nev., July 13.—(A.P.)—Joseph Behiter, 36, Syrian, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., was executed in the prison lethal gas chamber at sunrise today.

The convicted slayer of Maxine Armstrong, Las Vegas dance hall girl, whistled a tune as he walked into the small gas chamber. He told prison officials:

"Don't strap me to the chair too tightly. It might keep the gas from my lungs."

OSSINING, N. Y., July 13.—(A.P.)—Silver-haired Frank Canora's lonely wait in Sing Sing Prison's death house is ended. He went to his death in the electric chair last night, paying for the torch slaying of his wife.

For a year Canora had waited, friendless, in the death house. No one ever came to see him except the prison chaplain.

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Nellie May Madison, "sphinx woman" sentenced to the gallows for the murder of her husband, Eric B. Madison, wept yesterday for the first time.

Mrs. Madison broke down as she prepared to leave county jail for the women's prison at Tehachapi. The woman, who had heard a sentence of death passed without flinching, was deeply moved by the farewells of fellow prisoners.

HOLD PODERJAY! PLEA TO VIENNA

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Vienna police were asked today not to release Capt. Ivan Poderjay, husband of the missing Agnes Tufverson, corporation lawyer.

Poderjay, who is being held in Vienna pending the outcome of the investigation into Miss Tufverson's disappearance, was to have received his freedom today.

The request that his freedom be withheld was made by New York police after Assistant District Attorney Hastings announced his intention to go before the grand jury to seek an indictment against Poderjay on a charge of perjury.

The request for the indictment will be based upon new evidence secured by Miss Sally Tufverson, sister of the missing woman, Hastings said.

CITY TO FINISH CWA JOBS

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston has announced the appointment of 10 construction overseers, seven field clerks and 100 laborers who will be employed for about two months.

John D. Stevenson, former division engineer in the Bureau of Bridges, has been appointed a general construction overseer.

Search also was intensified for Neal Myers, pharmacy student, who brought the girl to Mrs. Brown's house Monday night, but disappeared when she suddenly died.

Officials were informed that an automobile containing papers, clothes and Myers' address was found abandoned in Houston, Tex.

Mrs. Brown suggested a cause for the girl's death when she said that Marian had taken six capsules of a supposedly non-poisonous compound and a quantity of medicinal oil a few hours before she died.

SEABURY LOOMS FOR GOVERNOR IN N. Y. FUSION

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP.)—The pre-campaign gubernatorial situation in New York State was given an added fillip today when the name of Samuel Seabury, taciturn and dignified Tammany baiter, was injected into the picture under a state fusion party label.

While there was no confirmation from Judge Seabury or responsible Republican party heads of statements on his possible candidacy appearing in the New York Times, his name is reported to have gained spontaneous prominance in upstate quarters.

HARVEY ALSO NAMED

From Republican sources it is understood that Seabury and George U. Harvey, borough president of Queens, have been the only two possibilities attracting any general interest. Harvey, however, has been borne to the attention of voters on a semi-organized political wave.

The times, quoting "excellent authority," says Seabury has by no means committed himself to the possibility of running on a state fusion ticket.

Although Seabury is a Democrat—he was defeated for Governor in 1915 by Charles S. Whitman, the regular Republican candidate—he commands the admiration of W. Kingsland Macy, Republican state chairman, who sought unsuccessfully to obtain him as counsel for the coming legislative utilities inquiry.

LEHMAN RIVAL SOUGHT

Mention of a Seabury-fusion combination immediately drew from Republican sources today some speculation on a Republican swing in Seabury's direction.

In the event he headed a so-called state fusion ticket, there would be the strong possibility he might also go on the Republican slate. This move was followed successfully in the city election of Mayor LaGuardia.

RELATES THRILL OF SEA FISHING

Deep sea fishing in America provides more thrills and sport than big game hunting in Africa, S. Kip Farrington, Jr., prominent sportsman, writes in the current issue of Cosmopolitan in a story on game fishing in the Atlantic.

A rod and reel battle with a broadbill swordfish, a marlin or a tuna, Farrington says, takes more stamina, physical punishment and agonizing suspense than an encounter with a tiger, wild buffalo or a rhinoceros.

Wife Sues Banker As 'Incapable' Mate

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—(AP.)—Charging that Charles Wesley Biddle, Kobe (Japan) banker, was incapable of being a proper husband, Virginia Hamill Biddle had filed two suits here today, one for annulment and the other for divorce.

The couple married in Kobe, Japan, October 11, 1930, and separated in March, 1933, the complaints said. Last March 25, however, they met in Naples, Italy, and toured Italy and France together. After arriving in New York, they separated again, Mrs. Biddle asserted.

LUPE VISITS TARZAN—RECONCILIATION?

By HARRISON CARROLL
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 15.—Maybe it doesn't mean a thing but just what Hollywood foretold has happened.

Lupe Velez filed suit for divorce Wednesday morning, charging Johnny Weissmuller with tantrums in which he is said to have broken furniture and to have made nasty remarks.

Less than 12 hours later the serenity of the exclusive bachelors' domain on the top floor of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel was shattered when a diminutive but determined young woman popped out of the elevator and made a bee-line for the apartment where Johnny Weissmuller had just been welcomed as a new member of the Bachelors' Club.

Maybe it was Bob Richiem, or William Anthony McGuire, or Sidney Cohen, or Charles Furthman, or Lewis Milestone, or some one else, who happened to park, but the feminine intruder was Lupe Velez.

She entered Johnny's apartment and presently the two of them, emerged together. It was hours later when Johnny returned alone.

Is there to be a reconciliation? Nobody knows, but Hollywood remembers a similar procedure on the occasion of another separation of the scrappy lovers. Lupe got to wondering if Johnny was comfortably settled in his new apartment. She went up to see. Within a couple of days, the row was forgotten and Johnny once more was installed in the Velez household in Beverly Hills.

Winner of National Motto Contest Leaves on Prize Tour of Country!

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen! While we are all awaiting the official results of the many Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derbies which were held throughout the country last week-end, it will be good to hear again about one of the past activities which, by now, you have probably all forgotten about—the National Junior Birdmen Motto contest.

Perhaps many of you were not Junior Birdmen members, for it was the first activity conducting by the organization. Boys and girls in each city throughout the country were invited to submit an official motto that would best describe the aims and purposes of the Junior Birdmen.

While many of you who were members at the time forgot about this activity by now, there is one boy who, as the Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central Railroad pulls into the station at Chicago today, very clearly remembers what it was all about.

He is William Ratcliffe, of Forest Hills, N. Y., who supplied the motto that caused the 20 important judges, picked from 12 different cities in the United States, to give it almost unanimous choice on second ballot. He is the lucky fellow who supplied us with the slogan, "Today's Pilots of Models—Tomorrow's Model Pilots."

He left New York for a 15-day grand tour of the United States as his reward for having taken first place in this gala event which, by now, I am sure, many of you recall. Pleasant trip to you, William!

Many Other Fine Awards

There are many other fine awards which you Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen will have opportunity to win. Just look at those lucky Model Plane Derby champs. They are all winning a free trip to Washington to participate in the National Junior Birdmen All-America Model Plane Championship Contest.

Whoever is skillful enough to win the National Model Plane Championship will have his or her name engraved on the William Randolph Hearst Ten-Year Trophy for 1934 in addition to taking his choice of an aviation scholarship or a trip to Europe.

On Sunday we are announcing our Funnybone Contest and there, too, you will have an opportunity of winning some fine awards—weekly cash prizes for the best aviation jokes sent in. And that's not all, just wait until you hear about the fine fall and winter program being planned for you.

You will be glad that you are a Junior Birdmen, and you will be glad, too, that you encouraged your friends to join so that they will have an opportunity of winning Junior Birdmen Contest prizes as well.

Every boy and girl in your neighborhood, all of your friends and each of your school chums should become members. Tell them about the Junior Birdmen. And let's have that 100,000 membership by the fall.

Air Dictionary Lists in Demand

I almost became pale with airfright the other day. I found a great stack of mail on my desk and thought, sure as your "propwash," it must be a plane load of difficult technical questions to be answered. But I was fooled. Instead, it contained mostly requests and queries regarding the continuance of our Air Dictionary Lists.

This important and popular feature will be resumed tomorrow with List No. 26. This is the first in the second section of our Aviation Nomenclature, as it is technically known—but just Air Dictionary to us.

I was glad to note that even though I hadn't called for any reports from members made out with the test questions on the first group of 25 Air Dictionary Lists, more than 200 wrote to me giving their gradings. And what honesty! Thirty-one admitted that they had not made a passing grade.

Better pay more attention hereafter. Clipping them out for your scrapbook for future use is not enough. Study the definitions now so that you will know their meanings if you come across them when your scrapbook is not available.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

FIRE WARNING BY HEINZ FOR VACATIONISTS

Fire Chief John Heinz today issued a vacation warning of fire and accident hazard to Pittsburghers. Among the safety rules he cites are:

1—When leaving your home for a vacation, be sure all lights and gas fires are out.

2—In a strange hotel, determine the quickest exit as a protection against fire.

3—Screen all open fires.

5—Never light a fire inside a tent.

'High Speed' Touring Brings Warning

HARRISBURG, July 13 — (INS) —Declaring excessive speed is the greatest single cause of all accidents, the Governor's committee on street and highway safety today urged Pennsylvania motorists planning vacation trips to "tour sensibly."

Pointing out that enjoyment and relaxation are the principal elements of a vacation, the committee asserted little can be gained by maintaining a nerve-wracking pace. It said:

"The first rule for an enjoyable vacation of motoring is to plan the trip according to the time in your command. Don't make the mistake of trying to cover a two-week tour in one. It can't be done safely."

Mayview Patient Dies After Plunge

A Frock With a Cape Is Really Two Frocks

Pattern 1876

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

When you come right down to it, it is really a very small cape . . . but what a difference it makes in the frock. It "dresses" a woman for the street. Makes her look more formally clad and feel even more so. Choose your fabric and color right and you can make this frock do double duty. For instance, if you make it of china blue cotton or linen or silk crepe you can wear it with a navy blue hat and little cape, and go almost anywhere on a warm afternoon. Without the cape and hat it becomes the nicest sort of an outfit in which to play a game of tennis.

Pattern 1876 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS.

LUCKY STAR — PATTERN 634

Whether you believe in the influence of the stars or not, you will certainly be convinced that this is a Lucky Star if you are a quiltmaker. The block, simple in structure, has a star all its own and then when the blocks are joined they form a magnificent big star. Made of four materials, it lends itself to interesting color arrangements aside from the fact that it goes together so easily.

Pattern 634 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

FREE FATHER, CHAINED BOY

AKRON, O., July 13 — (AP) — Daniel Thomas, 5½ alleged child torturer was free today — at least temporarily.

A chain he used for six months to make a prisoner of his 8-year-old son, Arthur, "because he kept running away," was locked in a safe.

Hand in hand, the stolid, unemployed father and the blond, skinny son, who was rescued from his chain by police, went home together yesterday.

County Humane Officer John H. Todd decided not to prosecute the father after Thomas promised never to do it again. If he abuses the son, the cruelty warrant will be used against him.

Pittsburgh Group Protests to Germany

The Pittsburgh League Against War and Fascism has filed with John Leibl, German consul here, a protest against the "imprisonment and torture inflicted upon Ernst Thaelmann, Ernst Torgler and all the 200,000 political prisoners held in the jails and concentration camps of Fascist Germany."

The protest was signed by Jessie Lloyd O'Connor, chairman of the executive committee, and by Marion Schmitt and George Simon.

Baer's Own Story of His Life and Loves

Maxie Describes Battle With Carnera

MY LIFE AND LOVES
By MAX BAER
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

CHAPTER XXIII.

Many of your neighbors have told you the story of my fight with Primo Carnera, dipping plenty of details at you, but maybe there are a couple they failed to mark down in their diaries.

During the second round, when I was cracking Primo on the crockery department, the big guy simply insisted that he had to have my delightful companionship on the canvas. So, as he was doing his flopperoos, he'd grab me here or there and snap me down with him, and that was a swell break for the customers because they were seeing a cyclonic, colossal tumbling act and a prize fight all for the price of one admission.

The first time it was all okay with me. I flopped and bounced up. The second time was different. He grabbed me in such a way that when he did this tail-spin all his weight seemed to crash down on my right arm. A terrific pain shot through it and down my body and not until I was back on my feet and gave it a jiggle was I sure it wasn't broken.

Follows Instructions

I fought the kind of fight that had my friends in jitters. I could hear them panning me because I wouldn't keep on at a furious pace round after round. That wasn't my doings. I was following orders from the board of skullduggery and brainy thinking department. Those strategists ruled one round of savage slugging, a round of loafing and relaxing, and so on.

After the fight, Primo showed up with a fractured bone in his ankle. When that happened, I don't know. I didn't notice that he was doing any real limping at any time. He slowed up in his movement as the fight went along, but I figured that was from the clouting he was taking.

But I did notice that late in the tenth he seemed to act as if he were wearing shoes about two sizes too large, meaning he was wearing rowboats. Maybe he got the fracture while the floor was jumping up at him in the tenth. That was just about the wildest round of the fight.

I felt during the middle of the tenth that Primo couldn't go much farther; that all the durability had been pounded out of him and I didn't want to hurt further a game, lion-hearted fellow such as he had proved himself to be. I suddenly remembered Frankie Campbell, stepped back, and looked at Donovan, hoping he would grant my unasked request, and so there was nothing for me to do but go ahead and try for a finish.

Halted by Donovan

I tore in to put Carnera away, knocked him down, and, when he got up, I draped him on the ropes. There he was—eyes glazed, mouth open, his face sickly pale, his arms down, his legs buckling. Two or three more punches and — but

CLIMAX FOR BAER: HOW HE KNOCKED DOWN CARNERA

Donovan stopped me from letting go.

He stepped between us. He pushed me back. He looked at Carnera, a worried expression on his face. I couldn't take aholt at Primo because Donovan was in the way, and, anyway, his actions seemed to mean that he had stopped the fight.

The championship was mine—or wasn't it? I didn't know. No one knew. Outside of the ring there was wild confusion while Donovan stood there protecting Carnera from any attack and doing nothing, saying nothing — just looking at him.

The Winner, Champion!

Ancil Hoffman, who is my Papa Brains, jumped up on the platform, and roared at Donovan, asking him what it was all about. Donovan seemed to come out of his trance. He said nothing — merely started to walk away.

I raced over to Carnera ready to put the crusher on him then, but I hardly had started when Donovan came between us again. The bell had rung, the round was ended — Carnera was still champion of the world.

But he didn't look it.

$2,500 DOLLAR BOUGHT FOR $2

CINCINNATI, July 15.—(AP.)—Worn and hungry looking, a Kentucky mountaineer sought to exchange an old coin for currency more readily negotiable.

Mailed by the sign, "United Bank Building," he wandered into the office of a Cincinnati coin collector, Thomas G. Melish. The numismatist bit, and" for him, gave him $2 for the coin. The Kentuckian vanished.

Only then, said Melish, did he examine the coin closely. It was an 1804 silver dollar. Only 15 are known to exist.

The last one to be sold brought $2,500.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, ladies and gentlemen. Good news from the front!

The beneficiaries of the veterans are now being mailed checks. Thousands of these bonus checks from the state have already been sent out and thousands more are to follow.

It will take some time for the Department of Military Affairs to complete their gigantic task of sending out all the checks, but they will all be sent out.

Those who are waiting need not be alarmed at the delay. If they are entitled to bonus checks they will receive them.

Several veterans' beneficiaries cannot be located and I have been asked to look for MRS. ANNA E. GRAWLEY, last address Finleyville, MRS. CLARA A. WELSHAUS, last address 4922 Kincaid street; MRS. MAY BEATTY, last address 929 Belmont street, Wilkinsburg.

The Lieutenant is also searching for JOHN SPIELER, last address Napoleon street, Dormont, and LOUIS MASTOCHHI, last address Mollenauer. Their checks are waiting for them at his office.

I have another hiccough remedy. T. Norman, of Lexington avenue, suggests an admirable cure.

Place the index finger in the ears and the thumbs against the side of the nose, closing the nostrils and stopping the air from entering the outer ear. Have someone hold a glass and from it take six or seven swallows of water.

I always use this method and it works beautifully.

2 Beg Admission To Reform School

HUTCHINSON, Kan., July 13.—(AP.)—The Hutchinson Reformatory is becoming so popular that those on the outside want in. Noah S. Wiggins, superintendent, has received letters from two youths seeking admission.

Cleanliness Demanded In Radio

By (AIRCASTLE)

Back stage in the radio temples the hired help, especially the employes who handle scripts, are contemplating new orders.

Some are secret and others not so secret. They all enjoin the staffs to keep the white-wash brushes generously applied.

Cleanliness of material, say the orders, at this moment is not only next to godliness, but excellent tactics. Radio, they continue, always has been notably impeccable, but being more or less human, it slips occasionally from its pristine state.

And if it should slip now, when the Legion of Decency is in full cry behind radio's relative, the cinema, it would be unfortunate.

CHASING DIRT

Appended to the orders that have gone out for a strict scrutiny of script and eternal vigilance against any form of "dirt," are dire threats to offenders, sustaining or otherwise—threats that mercilessly say—"instant dismissal if you disobey."

There is no denying that the radio chieftains are shaken by a pretty straight tip received this week that when the Legion of Decency, the wedge of a group of religious institutions now engaged in scourging and purging the films, has completed that job it will turn its eyes to radio.

The legion wants, even now, are keeping a close surveillance on so-called comic material, wherein most of the suggestive and double entendre lines are likely to be found.

It is known that three well-known comedians, not on the air at the moment, incurred the legion's wrath.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 13.—A certain Senator is in a lot of trouble. He made the mistake of promoting a dam site and then buying lots around it.

The Senator figured that he would sell all his holdings at a profit, but the PWA has found out about it.

It has records to show that the Senator used dummy names in buying up the surrounding ground and it is at a loss about what to do about it.

Apparently the Senator and his ex-secretary went in on the deal alone. They bought up land in their far western state adjoining the site of the dam, knowing full well the value of the property would appreciate.

According to present calculations the Senator and his secretary made about 50 per cent on their investment.

INTEREST

It is difficult to judge the success of the Senator's business venture in dollars. He took advantage of the fact that farmers in his state knew little of the expected valuation of their property and he and his secretary bought options for songs.

Today he holds more than anyone else of land to be benefited by the project. This was discovered by the various snoopers Mr. Ickes has put on the job. He has all the facts, but he is in an embarrassing position. The Senator is a good Democrat and a New Dealer.

If Mr. Ickes were sure of his ground, he would have the Senator indicted and tried. But he is not sure. He knows that no other aspersion has been cast upon the Senator's record. He knows the Senator stands well with Postmaster General Farley and all the other New Dealers.

His associates have an idea that the case will be brought to public attention if and when a landowner of the Pacific state sues for redress. They are sure one will. Before that is done, there is nothing Mr. Ickes can do except shoulder upon himself the responsibility of proving a case of gentle grafting against a politician who shares his economic views.

LOOK-UP

Government followers of business indices are hepped up about the reports from Detroit that orders for dies for use in next year's automobile production are the highest since 1928-29.

Coming after the fairly good automobile sales season, this news is interpreted as indicating confidence, which would be a more important factor if it were more widespread in the heavy industries.

WAR

If you have to bet on the European war, please bet that none will be forthcoming during the next six months. That prediction has its uncertainties. But the psychological feeling among the masses of both Germany and France is passive. They won't fight unless they have to. Germany will avoid a war if it is possible to do so.

The best judgment here is that Hitler will be overthrown in a mild sort of a revolution and that the iron men of the Ruhr will speak their piece in one language or another.

That means Hitler is doomed, and a substitute will take his place.

NOTES

Those who want relief loans from the government have succeeded in congressional circles. They have overlooked one thing. The government bureaus affected will announce at the first opportunity those senators who seek relief from them... A New Dealer, arguing with his comrades a few days ago, predicted that the living expenses of the New Deal would reach to eight billion dollars within twelve months. If it does, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau will need a quick brush for his addition.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

BABY STAR ASKS $2,500 WEEK

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—(AP)—Five-year-old Shirley Temple movie star will refuse to go to work the next time the Fox studio calls here unless her father said her salary is increased to $2,500 weekly.

Shirley, who was "discovered" in two-reel comedies by the Fox company, was signed in a less than a year ago for $150 a week. Her popularity has brought her to virtual star rating.

The studio informed Shirley's father, George F. Temple, it would pay $1,000 a week. Temple, a branch bank manager, said he would make no decision until he consulted his attorney.

WIDOW OF VET BEATEN, ROBBED

Police today were searching for a roomer who fled from the home of Mrs. Mae Miller, a World War veteran's widow, of 1016 Sheffield street, North Side, after beating and robbing her of $100, a portion of her husband's soldier bonus.

The assailant, rooming at Mrs. Miller's home for several weeks, felled her with his fists, took the cash from a dresser drawer and fled, last night. The victim told police the roomer identified himself as Edward J. Woods, 34, of Philadelphia. Woods and Miller became acquainted at the Naval Hospital in Philadelphia, where Miller died. Woods also is a war veteran.

SIX LOCAL BOYS GO TO ITALY

They will join four others from Western Pennsylvania in New York and also will meet 140 other boys from throughout the United States who are making the trip as guests of Italy.

The youngsters were selected from the seventh and eighth grades of their parish schools by Vice Consul Leone Sirvana because of their high standing in the classes.

They will visit Rome, Naples and other leading cities and then will stay at a seashore camp.

Those who left over the Pennsylvania today at Penn's Cove, 18: Alfred Bruno, 13; Peter Sesera, 14; Peter Mallenni, 13; Nicholas Gearrusso, 13, and Anthony Calcagno, 13. The boys attended St. Peter's, St. Rita's, St. Michael's in Butler, St. Anthony's Orphanage, Help of Christians and Mother of Good Counsel's schools.

Squad Car Gets Order to Attend Its Own Crash

OAK PARK, Ill., July 13.—(AP.)—The village police are right there in an emergency!

A couple of cars crashed on an Oak Park street and everybody gathered around. From beneath the overturned automobile came a startling voice: "Squad Car No. 548 go to Lake street and Grove avenue. An accident."

If You Suffer from the Heat!

If hot weather gets you, and if you feel tired, run down, and nervously upset when the thermometer begins to soar, probably you're eating wrong.

Wise eating is one secret of not minding the heat. Stop eating heavy breakfasts for a while. Try Shredded Wheat instead. Stop bolting a sandwich for lunch. Eat Shredded Wheat instead, with milk and fruit on the side. You'll be surprised at the difference it makes in your whole life.

Shredded Wheat is whole wheat—nothing added—nothing taken away. It contains the carbohydrates you need for energy; the proteins for tissue building; the mineral salts for bone structure; the vitamins that help you resist disease; and bran to keep you regular. Nature might have made a better food than wheat—but she didn't!

Eat plenty of Shredded Wheat this summer. It will pay you big dividends in health and happiness!

EINSTEIN ERRS, RIVAL SAYS

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—The Einstein theory declares Prof. Emmanuel Carvallo, is out.

Prof. Carvallo, who is more or less to France what Einstein is to the world, offers learned arguments to clinch his claim that Dr. Einstein's famous theory of relativity is now a back number.

1—Einstein based his theory on the principle of the invariance of the speed of light, put forward by Prof. Albert A. Michelson, American authority on such subjects.

2—Two hundred thousand experiments, Prof. Carvallo claims, have shown the Michelson principle, in so many words, to be all wet.

3—It follows then, says the scientist, that the Einstein theory collapses without the support of Michelson's findings.

W. HOMESTEAD ROW UNSETTLED

Failing after a four-hour conference behind closed doors to reach a compromise on the borough's financial policy, the warring factions of West Homestead's Council planned another meeting Monday. The two groups were given until Wednesday to iron out their differences by Judge Samuel H. Gardner, before whom the muddled municipal affairs was argued recently.

The conference yesterday was to determine whether Council would pass the borough millage over Burgess Richard H. Lawry's veto and go along on obtaining a $10,000 loan, or whether the minority bloc would continue to support the burgess' actions. The majority bloc desires the loan to meet the payroll, which has been ignored since March.

Wife in Flight Periled by Scythe

Threats to cut off her legs with a scythe, was Sarah L. Housenberg, 260 Collart street, a divorce from William G. Housenberg. The wife testified before Judge George V. Moore as follows:

"He hit me in the face, gave me a black eye and broke off a tooth. When I went outside to get away from him he got a scythe and started after me. He said he would cut my legs off."

At the time of this incident the couple lived at Universal, Pa. They were married in 1914.

TWO HELD FOR COURT AFTER NORTH SIDE 'BOOKIE' RAID

TRADE BODIES ACT IN AIRPORT RATE TILT

High Landing Charges Held to Violate Spirit Of Municipal Field

Watson M. McKee, secretary of the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to the County Commissioners, charged that refusal of the latter body to reduce commercial landing fees at the County Airport violates the principal on which the field was built. The letter was sent to the Commissioners following the threat of Transcontinental and Western Air to discontinue the use of the port. It read in part:

"Insistence of the Commissioners that the commercial airline companies pay such high rates is not in accord with the idea paramount when the airport was built. At that time the plan was to make Pittsburgh and Allegheny County the outstanding aviation center of the country."

Meanwhile in Pittsburgh, W. D. Moore, secretary of the aeronautics committee of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, had called a meeting of his group to take action on the TWA protest.

The TWA organization has charged that the fees charged by the Commissioners are exorbitant as compared with rates in other cities. Upon their proposal submitted to the Commissioners, a fixed charge would be made on the basis of schedules, rather than on the gross weight of planes, as at present.

The TWA proposes the payment of $7,500 annually for up to five schedules daily; from six to eight, $11,200, and from 9 to 11, $14,000. The average cost of landing a plane at the port now is $11.

WIFE IN ITALY ASKS MERCY

Since her husband was sent to the workhouse last year for faking injuries to obtain insurance, Mrs. Carmela Sampognare has been living on charity in the little village of Siracusa, Italy.

Broken by misfortune and in ill health, the woman has written the court here requesting clemency for her husband, Angelo, who, with about 12 other men who composed the insurance racket ring, was convicted before the late Judge S. J. Snee. Sampognare was given four years.

Judge M. A. Musmanno was given the appeal for disposition and wrote to the prisoner's wife saying he would investigate the case. Disposition may be made in a few days, he asserted. The prisoner may be paroled, it was said, on condition that he leave the country.

Democrats Organize Wilkinsburg Wards

Organization of the three ward committees was perfected last night by the Democratic organization of Wilkinsburg.

In the First Ward, C. V. Jeffries was named chairman; Mrs. Alice King, vice chairman, and Mrs. Alma Kerr, secretary. D. J. McKenzie was elected chairman in the Second Ward; Mrs. Mary Walsh, vice chairman, and Margaret A. Kearney, secretary. In the Third Ward, William Newman was named chairman; Mrs. E. C. Miller, vice chairman, and Mary Maude Shultz, secretary.

BARKER FINED FOR SIDEWALK SELLING

Merchant's Methods Too Strenuous to Suit Magistrate

The campaign of the Better Business Bureau against sidewalk selling by downtown merchants was progressing today following the fining of a clothing salesman for violation of a city "barking" ordinance.

Lewis Cuttler, of the Bell Clothing Company, 13 Sixth street, was fined $5 and costs by Alderman George A. Young after Patsy Pinelli, of Palen way, North Side, testified the salesman solicited him on the sidewalk in front of the store.

John Strebeck, who was with Pinelli, described Cuttler's salesmanship methods, saying:

"He came up to Patsy and put his arm around his neck so hard I thought he was going to choke him."

Pinelli said similar methods employed on previous occasions prompted him to complain to the Better Business Bureau.

Information was then made out before Alderman Young, and Cuttler was arrested Tuesday by Constable T. Norbert Sexton. A traffic officer, William Moore, provided his bond of $300.

URGE POLICE TO CO-OPERATE

Closer co-operation of police chiefs with the state police and highway patrol, and civil service protection for borough police was urged yesterday by Daniel T. McKelvey, of Hazleton, chief of the Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton Railroad Police. He was addressing more than 30 police heads from boroughs of Allegheny and nearby counties in the Courthouse. He said:

"You are the football of politics. You are here today and heaven knows where tomorrow."

The meeting was called to carry out a program sponsored by the Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association which divides the state into zones where police chiefs find common interest and can work together in the suppression of crime.

A wave of lawlessness such as has swept the western states can be expected here, and police should be prepared to combat it, Maj. Lynn G. Adams, head of the State Police, told the meeting.

'My Own Story' -:- :-: By Marie Dressler

Actress Gives Suggestions for Tempting Dishes That Will Keep Restless Men of Family at Home

Marie Dressler, the funniest woman in America, was born in a small town in Canada. After a series of ups and downs on the stage, she decided that in order to achieve success one must keep her troubles to herself. Her first big success was "Tillie's Nightmare," which sent her on the road to "hats with ostrich feathers as long as any in Newport."

Then came reverses on the stage and in her financial investments. She learned that no "vice" is as bad as "advice." Despite pleas and warnings, she set out for Hollywood without a contract and pounded the pavements searching for a job. Her first opportunity came as she was in desperate financial straits. With Polly Moran, she established the game of "Give and Take," which brought her temporary success.

After a bad year, her ship arrived with her performance in "Anna Christie." She bought a house in Hollywood and took great delight in planning meals, using her own recipes which she describes.

CHAPTER V.

Spoil the shape of four pieces of bacon by chopping very fine, treat celery and onions with equal lack of consideration, add seasoning, a bay leaf, and one medium size can of tomatoes. Nonchalantly consign this luscious mixture to a bright clean stewpan and cook until tender (the food, not the pan, will burn if not watched, but can never be made edible even by me.) This done, add one teaspoonful of soda and one pint of milk, if you feel poor, or the same amount of cream, if you feel rich; strain if you are in a Ritz mood or leave as is if you just want food, add chopped parsley to the top and fear nobody.

The beauty of most of my recipes is that you can make them in a mining camp where there is only one store. You don't have to go to a special importer's on an avenue named after a street commissioner to buy what you want. Obviously this keeps your mortgage down. The simple and cheap foods are often the best. Take my now famous codfish balls.

None Will Go to Waste

Everybody knows the brand of codfish which arrives in a plain wooden box minus all frills. Open one of these unostentatious containers, and remove the contents. At this stage the appetite remains limp. You are at the poor fish stage. That, however, is only the beginning. Even a painting requires background work before the real picture emerges. It is necessary to soak the codfish for 30 minutes or more, drain off the water, then boil until tender in a saucepan of fresh water.

Drain the water again, being sure it is all off. Shred the fish carefully and add mashed potatoes equal to the amount of fish used. Beat up an egg, add one teaspoonful of baking powder, combine with the codfish and potatoes, make balls or cakes, drop them into very hot, deep fat, brown, then drain the grease from the balls on heavy paper. Serve immediately garnished with watercress or what have you, and I promise you that nobody will leave the table while a single ball remains on the plate.

Another of my favorite dishes is goose. I've always wondered why people are so afraid to cook one. I take this perfectly tractable fowl, dry it inside and out, rub it like mad with black pepper, fill it with apples, and permit it to cook in its own fat until brown. Then I have goose—and believe me, sauce for this goose is sauce for any gander.

Oyster Stew Keeps Men Home

Another of my suggestions for keeping men home—if you have nothing better—is the oyster stew. Never stew about this stew. Just oysters, a big lump of butter, seasoning and cream. The worst is over quick. On such occasions, men have been known to part with money without using a fountain pen dropper.

Oysters, they tell me, are easily digested and full of many things, including those necessities named after the alphabet which everyone is chasing just now and which in some mirculous way we managed without before some sap hit upon the word vitamin. Now you can't really enjoy any food because you're so busy wondering if A. B. C. D. E. and all the rest are absent. It seems if you don't eat one of these letters, your teeth fall out; the lack of another letter makes you blind.

It was bad enough to learn the alphabet without having to eat it, but it does help when it comes in tasty form. An oyster broiled or baked in the shell with a strip of bacon on top and plenty of seasoning is not only the piece de resistance at Antoine's, the famous New Orleans restaurant, but it starts a meal well anywhere. The same can be said of scalloped oysters. Oysters, cracker crumbs, butter, seasoning and milk thrown together and baked in the oven until brown on top is an idea for next Sunday night if you have to stay home.

We predict that the boy friend who has been reluctant up to this time will decide that he can make more than $35 a week if he had good food at home to give him some pep. A gentle hint to the uneducated is that the less an oyster is cooked the better.

MARIE DRESSLER IN CHARACTER: "HOPPING MAD" IN THE PHOTOPLAY "CAUGHT SHORT"

Dish That Is a Regular Cut-Up

Still another suggestion which I make gratis to the menu-jaded housewife is:

Take some pigeons cut up (if the pigeons are pets, order something else for dinner. If labelled butcher's squab, proceed with a clear conscience), add mushrooms cut up, veal kidneys cut up, onions cut up, pepper, salt, spices and a bay leaf. (I'm a real daughter of Eve. I always have a leaf handy.) Simmer slowly in water for a long time—then eat it. I promise that you will either cut up or coo!

My pet salad consists of an empty green pepper packed solid with cream cheese and chopped nuts, then frozen in the icebox. I next slice this and place the slices on lettuce leaves, covering the whole with French dressing. When I say lettuce leaves, I mean crisp lettuce leaves, not the discouraged looking stuff that some people put on their plates and that not even a chicken would peck at. The vitality of the cook is shown by the condition of the lettuce. If it is limp, be sure that the cook is absolutely lacking in sex appeal.

It is impossible to give all my recipes, but in general I have suggestions to offer. First, I like a dash of onion in everything—I don't practice breath control. Onions, like perfumes, should never be obvious. A subtle touch, as it were, back of the ear. Sneak up behind the other ingredients with the chopped onion and then insinuate it. Let it come on like a chorus supporting the star. Just a merry villager when celery is singing tenor and the tomato yodeling high notes in soprano.

A delicate bay leaf is the ingenue and should have her bit. Onions are the comedians of the cooking pot, but while they furnish fun for the palate they must never interfere with the love interest of the pot.

POLICE ACCEPT RACE BETS BY TELEPHONE

Amplifiers That Took Results to Patrons In Room Seized

As the result of a raid on a newly-equipped horse race bookmaking shop on the second floor of 303 Federal street yesterday, William Harris, 35, of 1472 Fifth avenue, and Ernest Weissman, 38, of 1436 Federal street, were held for court on charges of operating and conducting gambling.

They were arraigned before Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Central Police Court.

The raid was one of eight made yesterday.

Inspector of Detectives Samuel E. Wheeler, Police Inspector Walter Kaiser and Detective William Dorrich invaded the place, arrested two men and seized telephones, a large amplifier that carried the results of the races to the players in the room, large enough to accommodate several hundred persons, Wheeler said.

The raiders stepped in in time to take telephone bets of a few customers on some of the seven telephones in the place.

MOONSHINE SEIZURE

Daniel Kafro, 21, of 6405 Meadow street, and Ray Madden, 36, of 6440 Penn avenue, were arrested at 162 Lowell street, where two gallons of moonshine, numbers slips and money were seized, according to police. They were charged with violating the state liquor law and operating a lottery.

A small quantity of moonshine was confiscated at 6310 Everett street, where Joseph Bundy, 40, was arrested, police reported. Moonshine also was reported seized at 321 Lincoln avenue, James O'Malley, 43, was arrested, police said.

MURPHY HEADS RAIDERS

Numbers lottery slips and books were found at 2219 Webster avenue, where Fred Dolden was arrested on a charge of operating a lottery, according to police.

Edwin Smith, of 1643 Fifth avenue, and Tony Gizzella, of 3 Townsend street, were arrested on charges of violating the state liquor laws and keeping a disorderly house following the seizure of small quantities of moonshine in their homes, police said. Two male visitors also were arrested in Gizzella's home.

Beaver Woman Held In North Side Crash

Anna Huebner, 24, of Beaver, faced a hearing in Traffic Court on charges of violating the state automobile laws. She was arrested by Woods Run police after her auto had figured in a collision at Western and Allegheny avenues. She had no driver's license, police said.

AFRAID OF WIFE, WINS DIVORCE

Alfred T. Beal, 238 Dan drive, Mt. Lebanon, was so afraid of his wife that he slept in his car or in the garage.

On that testimony Judge George V. Moore has granted him a divorce from Clara Beal, of Pius street. Beal said that several years ago he contracted pleurisy, necessitating an operation and the loss of two ribs.

He testified that he was not able to look for a job following his release from the hospital, and that his wife told him he was lazy. He added:

"She scratched me and pulled my hair. Most of the time I slept in the garage or in the car, because she made it too miserable for me."

Beal said that his wife liked "to run around." They were married June 17, 1928.

Much Corn for Thirsty Says Baer Talking of Crops

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Washington reports wheat crop of close to five hundred million bushels.

That's under last year, but the bakers will take care of that by making the labels bigger and the loaves smaller.

All summer we have heard of drought, grasshoppers and dust storms. All that stuff doesn't taste bad in flour.

There will be over two billion bushels of corn for the thirsty and the starving. But the thirsty come first.

The blighted peach crop is almost average. It comes to fifty million bushel baskets, with the good ones on top, as usual.

The harvests are all big, and the farmers can send their scarecrows to the tailors to be measured for their overcoats.

Only the oat crop is a bust. So even the hosses and the children will be happy at breakfast.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.

Just had a fine long visit (and incidentally a good lunch) with the kindliest, friendliest and most able of our diplomats in a long time, Secretary of State Cordell Hull. We talked much of South America, where he made many friends at that conference, and that's the country where we can use some friends, too, that's our alley for our "drummers" is down there. They are finally starting something that should have been started a year ago, and that's this house building and repairing, the local bank, or local organization loans the money, up to two thousand dollars. The government don't spend anything, it only guarantees twenty per cent of it in case of loss. And these loans are made almost entirely on a man's name alone. Well, just the idea of a man being trusted again is going to make the whole thing 100 per cent honest. It's the best of all the plans, and Jimmy Moffett and a fine organization working it. Washington was never prettier, not a Senator or Congressman here.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

LOAFING BENCH MYSTERY SOLVED

M'Nair Seats Found On Rifle Range Of Police

What happened to the loafers' benches at City Hall is no longer a mystery.

They were found today strewn along the police target range in Aspinwall where they had been dumped after someone ordered them removed from the City-County Building.

City Controller James P. Kerr, outside whose offices the benches sat, had requested the Mayor to order the benches removed when he found the Mayor in a good humor.

Subsequently, the benches vanished.

The loafing seats had been delivered originally to the City-County Building by a South Side manufacturer who donated them.

County officials, however, objected to the benches adorning their side of the building and ordered them moved. Mayor McNair himself helped move them inside the building, on the city's side of the first floor corridor.

According to City Detective Guy M. Dailey, the benches originally were intended for the police revolver range, where they finally landed. He lamented:

"Now look at them. Six are broken."

Expert Sees Rye 'Aged' 4 Years in 5 Minutes

Raw whisky "aged" by electricity to remove the headaches will soon be on the market.

Arthur B. Adams, whisky expert for 20 years with the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue here, has returned from Buffalo, where he attended a demonstration of making four-year-old whisky in five minutes by treating it with high frequency current.

Adams, now with the Hostetter Company, pronounces the new method the best system for aging raw liquor he has seen in 35 years as a whisky expert.

Raw liquor, four or five months old, is removed from the barrel, Adams explained, run through an ozonizing machine for two minutes and then a small amount of oak wood shavings is added.

Next the liquor is run through a colloidal mill through which a high frequency electrical current is passed for three minutes.

That's all there is to it. It goes to the bartender, ready for cocktails or highballs.

Adams says his tests have shown this liquor to be as healthful as ordinary liquor aged four years, adding it is not intended to take the place of rare old whisky aged 15 or 16 years in charred oak barrels.

They all carried roses, larkspur, lupine and stock. They included Mrs. Robert T. McCrum, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Henrietta Tinnemeyer, Miss Katherine Miller and Miss Jean Adams.

The bride's mother wore powder blue chiffon and a shoulder corsage of orchids. Victor G. McMillen, of Steubenville, O., was his cousin's best man and ushers were James A. and R. Waldo Wieland, brothers of the bride; Robert T. McCrum and Lee F. Mason.

There was a reception at the Wieland home after the ceremony. Mr. Gibson and his bride left for Bermuda on their honeymoon. Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Dr. K. M. Lomas, Evanston, Ill., aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McMillen, of Steubenville, O.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Dive in, leap in, tumble in—just as you get into the swim. For Summertime is one of the few times that being "all wet" is comme il faut!

Especially . . . if you get wet in a pebbly rubber bathing suit. The kind that moulds and firms and restrains. Fits you like a second skin of your own, and makes you realize that lo! you have something you never thought you had before—a figger!

Now that they're priced at a gasp-promoting sum! Now that they're waiting on the doorstep at one of the stores! Now that you can get them at 59c, in high shades, and not so many gobs and oodles of them at that! Well . . . NOW . . . we think you'd better hurry.

* * *

Ho-hum! Wotta life, wotta life! Everybody but us going away and having fun and doing things . . . and here we go on three legs with our tongue out. Even our spyglass is sorta bleared up from being poked into this and poked into that hopefully.

But . . . something always comes to him who waits! And this time it's an opportunity to do a little plain and fancy grabbing off of new wash silk frocks that hove into view! Just a bare chance that we heard about them! Just a shot in the dark that we fell over it at all. The news that . . .

Women's and misses' new tub-bable silks have arrived today in an assortment of styles and colorings to tempt most Summer-jaded clothes appetite! Such as silk piques, silk seersuckers, berlo cords (those raised corded silks that make such good-looking stripes) washable taffetas, and Bembergs! In sizes 14 to 20 . . . 38 to 44 . . . and priced $3.95.

Note:—take a look at the white silk pique (if you're misses' size) It's a knockout . . . with box pleats at the shoulders, diagonal closing in the front, tied with navy bows . . . and a clever sunback with two stumpy ends knotting across the shoulders!

Gather 'round our footstool—and—take a good look! For these are good for something besides falling over in the middle of the night (errant husbands please note!) They're about 14x10 inches . . . with well padded tops that already have some needlepoint on them. However . . . this isn't our point!

It being simply . . . that many of you have made needlepoint during the past 6 months. And many of you have made it for footstools. And then you've up and decided as how the family budget couldn't stand a footstool just then.

Enter the fairy godmother (that's us, in this case!) And waving our wand we announce that your REALLY GOOD needlepoint on these stools would be a hotsy idea. Because they only cost $1.95 . . . and their legs are nicely carved (not elaborately, of course, but nicely). Now . . . how about it?

Just all broken up! NOT us . . . but the sizes on these corsets. Which is why—

They are appearing on a clearance just now that is nothing short of sensational! Corsets, little loves, that sold from $2.95 to $15 . . . and are now writhing about waiting for you to come and plunk down ¼ or 1-3 or ½ of their former prices to put them out of their misery! Corsets that do everything from uplift work (not on your soul, however!) on through to corsets that go in for just the opposite and turn you out ready for anything . . . mostly hotcha! So that whoever you are . . . or however you are . . . if it's a corset or girdle, or an all-in-one that you want . . . hyar they is!

Also negligees and lingerie! Panties . . . for long-legged gals that have troubles along this line except when they pay lumpish sums! Nighties ditto! Types for the little plump soul, and your mamma, and galloping girl-dom! All types.

And they do superlative fitting, by the way. You can take your old garments in and have them done over . . . for a small consideration! (Even if they weren't bought there . . . these people are big-hearted that way!)

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

PITTSBURGH, A LITTLE SPANISH TOWN

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Andalusian flounces and tiny red ribbon straps and belt style this red-dotted Swiss evening frock. The huge flowers are red Swiss

AL QUE LINDO, mantilla! Mio bueno! You sure look swell in your new linda clothes, sister! It is one of the most refreshing costume revivals of late years, for there are more of us who can get chummy with a pair of clicking castanets and a flounced skirt than there are who can go Victorian and faints, all in one issue of a fashion magazine.

* * *

DOTTED SWISS in town and fashion makes a grand, cool evening frock, and so does organza, bundled in an Andalusian manner instead of half-basted Kate Greenaway style. Your black satin slippers and long black gloves will add an exotic note to any frock of this genre, and if you have your hair still with you, a large wad of it in the base of the neck can support a high comb most effectively. Long earrings—always a welcome accessory in the hidden wardrobe of any woman—are, of course, part of the Spanish recipe, and you can carry a fan to do damage, even if a row between the lamb and a pair of carnations is putting it on a bit thick.

* * *

IN PLAY clothes the Spanish influence is pretty hot, too. We are putting on Basque striped jerseys and Basque berets for beach, deck and tennis court wear; our suits for the sea sport the same stripes, and our feet, if we are lucky about mixing town and country during the hot months, are shod in cotton espadrilles of Spanish peasant persuasion.

Center, an hibiscus red Swiss, dotted with white, shows a deep flounce of accordion pleating and shoulder capes to match. Back and front the neck is deep and square. Red cherries dangle from a self-material belt. Above, a black crepe printed with bright flowers in a mantilla design. Note the ruffle around the camisole neckline, held by narrow black crepe strips. The flower of starched organza (matching the royal blue print flower) is the largest ever seen in these parts.

HOUSE YIELDS HIDDEN RICHES

International News Service.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., July 13.—The home of Mrs. Alice Hayden, 79, who died last week, was under heavy guard today as a search for hidden wealth went on.

Yesterday $62,638, mostly in $500 and $1,000 bills, was found, $58,000 of it in an old laundry bag.

The day of Mrs. Hayden's death $81,000 cash and $374,000 in Liberty bonds were found in the drawer of an old bureau.

With the exception of $5,000, Mrs. Hayden's money goes to a niece, Mrs. William Ittman, of Boston, and the latter's son, William Ittman, Jr.

Mrs. Hayden was the widow of Henry H. Hayden, a prominent attorney.

PITTSBURGH 4 IN SAFETY RACE

New York and Milwaukee, with traffic accident reductions of 8 per cent, lead Pittsburgh and other large cities in the "safest city" contest in 1934, the National Safety Council has informed the Better Traffic Committee.

The New York rate is 11.5, Boston comes next with 13.9 and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are tied for fourth place with a rate of 15.4.

The Private Papers of a Reporter

The Utopians is the name of one of those secret organizations gathering momentum in the Far West . . . It isn't clear what they stand for. Communism, Hitlerism, Bives abortion, Socialism, but they meet secretly and the joiner-getters talk into vore . . . One of them, for instance, is a first aid man on a not so important movie set . . . It is claimed they rolled up 6,000 in one night.

So powerful is the new order already, it is among the legends that a big corporation recently passed out handbills to its employees ordering them not to join the Utopians . . . The handbills were withdrawn when a boycott of 35,000 members was threatened in reprisal.

Not long ago in Hollywood a star (male) startled his best friends by showing up blotto and insulting everybody . . . He drew divided opinions—some summed it up this way: "Good for him—he's only saying what a lot of us think anyway—it's about time someone said those things to some people" Others considered it bad manners, to which sane adults will agree . . . But most startling was the star's picking on an executive he likes and who likes him . . . "And what about you?" harangued the actor, "you got in through the back door by relatives! What do you know about the business—you're a clothier! I got my training in a stock company!" . . . The exec took it gracefully, and taunted: "Quite true, but I'll bet you I'll still be out here when you're back in a stock company."

I'd take part of that bet . . . Figures on a sure-thing weren't too—for the records reveal that the average life of even the better stars out in Hollywood is five years . . . The star in question and all players are recommended to this merciless scene in Hollywood—the best and most heart-rending drama of them all . . . The locale is Hollywood Boulevard (which is similar to New York's Rialto)—and where almost nightly you may see strolling up and down, and down and up, unrecognized favorites of another day—many of whom wish that they had saved even a dollar a week, when they were making hundreds . . . They all have sad eyes, so sad.

Well, I just heard the orchestra at the Paradise in New York via the networks . . . Pretty good, too . . . It's six weeks since I transferred addresses for the summer and the yen to use the return tickets is dormant . . . Those favorite ports of mine will all be there when I get back in latter August, and if they aren't—so all right . . . Some of the scriveners are teasing Mrs. Fred Astaire and myself because at the RKO studios, while watching her groom perform, we sat near a microphone and chatted . . . "The control room and an audience heard them!" continues the item . . . They probably were bored stiff—for Mrs. Astaire must have been . . . I talked about a new alphabet game! . . . Are Dolores Ray and her agent, R. Farnum, secretly merged?

They were talking, the other day, about two pals, well known throughout the country . . . One of them had his first chance on the screen . . . He permitted them to show his pal as a scoundrel, and mutual friends wondered why he was a party to it . . . There is no need wondering . . . It is usually that way—when a man is desperate for recognition in a new field or an old, or for money . . . Friendship isn't considered . . . In this case, however, the "scoundrel" has letters from the alleged friend, in which the latter wrote his gratitude . . . Not many years ago when bookings were scarce and the wage just so-so—the "scoundrel" contributed generously to the other's renown . . . And in various ways helped elevate him into five times the coin . . . The "squarers" are busy—busy wasting their time.

I like making a note like this of a person such as Harriet Hoctor, the loveliest of the Ballerinas . . . She uses a brand new pair of toe shoes every other performance . . . And when doing four and five shows daily the cost is huge—at $5 per pair . . . She gives them to the ladies of the chorus to practice in . . . Add Thumbnail Descriptions: Francess Dee: A ball of soft yarn . . . Carl Laemmle, Jr.: An opera hat with teeth . . . Bette Davis: The debutante who was fined for speeding, again . . . George Bancroft: The ice man in his Sunday suit . . . Joe E. Brown: the tunnel that walks like a man . . . Boris Mallory: A pair of legs Mistinguette (or any woman) wishes were hers.

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—Seeing as how we FINALLY got JOHNNY MASCHIO, one of Hollywood's BEST escort-arounders, married off to the society belle, MISS JEANNE HAVENS MONTEAGLE, it is NICE to know a few HIGHLIGHTS about their but SUDDEN elopement. In the FIRST place, the bride's SISTER, who was with them in Caliente and was SUPPOSED to have stood up with her at the ceremony, didn't even KNOW that they had sneaked away from her for a brief fifteen MINUTES and were MARRIED, until they returned to Los Angeles.

For those of youse who THOUGHT the mid-western DROUGHT did nothing but dry up the crops and KILL off the CATTLE, let it be known that it even AFFECTED the cinema. After many THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS worth of film used for "The Merry Widow" was run off it was found to be DEFECTIVE inasmuch as it FLICKERED when projected. It was FINALLY discovered that seeing as how the PRIME INGREDIENT of FILM is made from cow's HOOFS, and that because of the drought the COWS were not getting enough GREENS to eat, their hoofies DETERIORATED AND SO DID THE film.

WILLIAM ROWLAND, currently producing "The Girl Friend" for Columbia, wrote a letter to the song writing TEAM of ROGERS AND HART in New York, requesting them to dish up the HIT number for his opera and at the END of the letter said, "thank you in advance." Two weeks later the number ARRIVED and IRONICALLY enough it was called "Thank You In Advance." Now, layed end to end, WHAT do you make of it?

Seeing as HOO LEWIS MILESTONE and his "The Captain Hates the Sea" company were sent away on location on a BOAT for ONE WEEK of shooting (which costs FIFTEEN HUNDRED dollars a DAY, not including the cast, crew or food). And OOP to date the company has been gone THREE WEEKS with at LEAST one more necessary to complete the sea stuff, the HEAD MOGULS of Columbia stujeeo are in such a DITHER that they are just about to re-monicker this CLEAN little epic of NEPTUNE and pals, "HARRY COHN, SAM BRISKIN AND The Captain Hate the Sea." Cute.

It is nice to know that GLORIA STUART plus being very BUSY on the screen, is taking KNITTING AND SINGING lessons DAILY, and, furthermore, made changes that WILL stay in the plate "Moonsky," which is being DEBUTED upon the innocent STUDENTS at the University of Chicago. All of which goes to prove that UNDER them thar peroxide LOCKS lies a BRAIN.

NOTE TO MR. RIPLEY: MR. RAYMOND WALTHER, a gentleman now giving of his hysterical HISTRIONICS to Mr. Harry Cohn's emporium, made his INITIAL thespian appearance as a boy in the Broadway production, "Soldiers of Fortune," on the VERY same DAY that the Spanish American War broke LOOSE. Aren't I historical?

Now we will cut back to the pigeons: ALAN HALE, plus being a SUPER-COLOSAL "meanie" on the screen, boasts of his business side-lines, a LARGE interest in a GREASELESS potato chip (the kind guaranteed to stick in your throat) and an even LARGER interest in an AIR PROOF jar top factory which posilutely guarantees to do away with madame's CAN-OPENER. Such FANCY business—but what can you do?

Promotions Come to Girls

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—Hello! Hal Wallis, Warner production chief, promoted Maxine Doyle, who was being groomed for featured roles, right smack into the leading class. She will be the romantic excitement for Joe E. Brown in his "Six-Day Bike Race." Wallis also gave Ann Dvorak a boost. She will play opposite James Cagney in "The Perfect Week-End," with Ray Enright at the megaphone end.

The traditional "show-must-go-on" scene, which usually displays the courage of a performer facing great tragedy was again enacted.

Freki Boris had a death scene with Paul Lukas at RKO. She played the scene so beautifully that studio workers applauded loudly at the completion of the scene. But Freki could not cease her hysterical weeping. Director John Cromwell tried to comfort her. Finally, a tear-stained cable was found in her makeup kit . . . It stated that Freki's sister, Johanna Havar, had died that morning in Budapest . . . Freki's "acting" had been real.

Pat O'Brien was gathering information for his role of the auctioneer in "I'll Sell Anything"—and ended up being stuck with 400 books . . . Dick Powell's taking singing lessons. Irving Foy, of the famous Foy family, is operating a tiny movie in North Hollywood . . . When Jane Baxter arrived in Hollywood to play one of the featured roles in Anna Sten's "We Live Again," she had a letter of introduction to C. Aubrey Smith from her uncle in London. Where do you suppose she found him? Right on the set. And stranger still, Smith was cast for Jane's uncle in the movie.

Comedy Is Better Film Of Two in Warner

By KARL KRUG

An easy-to-take little farce, that makes no pretense of being other than a diverting topic for these warm days and evenings, reached the Warner yesterday. It is "Here Comes the Groom," a comedy carrying considerable zip and verve despite its old plot basis, which has been made to look new through the use of hilarious situations and modern production technique.

"Here Comes the Groom" is a real coming out party for Jack Haley, who used to be very well liked by musical comedy audiences. The droll Haley shows much promise of becoming a real luminary of the screen if his work in this picture may be used as a criterion, and he was fortunate in being cast in such a role as the Mike Scanlon of this Paramount film.

The producers of "Here Comes the Groom" have gone all the way back to the old musical play plots of impersonation and burglars-in-the-house for the motivation of their story, but they have handled it in modern style and with such an eye to continual laughter that the ancient premise of the piece is never a handicap.

FORCED TO MASQUERADE

As a first-class piccolo player, who is forced to masquerade as a radio crooner while he is endeavoring to turn burglar to please the whim of his lady love, Haley is in his element. His crooner impersonation also carries a masquerade as the husband of an heiress and the resulting complications are more than mildly amusing. It is all nonsense of the wildest order with a wild chase episode as a climax that goes over because of its sheer absurdity.

Haley has been backed with a splendid supporting cast. Mary Boland is in it, and, as the fluttering aunt who is continually making a fuss over the pseudo crooner, she is always a delight. Little Isabel Jewell is pertly prominent as Haley's sweetheart, and the droll Sidney Toler, who has a small part, carries it with his usual effectiveness. Patricia Ellis, as the penchalant heiress, is easy on the eyes and ears. Neil Hamilton, the former collar ad model turned screen actor, is as wooden as usual as Patricia's real sweetheart.

What starts out as a promising and workmanlike melodrama suddenly goes to seed, not to pick up again until too near the end to do much good. I refer to "Whirlpool," the second feature on the Warner's new bill, which gave every indication of being a replica of that fine old stage and screen play, "Rilesie," as it got under way.

It is too bad that this picture sags so woefully during its middle stages. It has to a certain extent, the stuff of which real melodrama is made, but some very bad dialogue and direction, and one or two ridiculous situations, carry it far off the course it first pursues. As a starring vehicle for Jack Holt it offers that he-man delineator of film roles his happiest moments during its early sequences.

As a carnival grifter who goes to prison for a murder he didn't commit, Holt is teamed with the always reliable Allen Jenkins, who fills the part of a hypochondriac to perfection. Lila Lee does nicely as the girl Mr. Holt does right by, even though he's a convict, and Jean Arthur and Donald Cook are the love interest when the story which begins in 1910 gets into the present generation.

In the Best of Families

THE EPISODE took place shortly after Christmas of last year. The night is very clear in my mind because it was just about the coldest evening of the winter. The wife had gone to a picture—I hope—and I was working at home.

When I say working, to make myself clear, I mean that I was trying to find a thought for a column. My typewriter before me, I was sitting peacefully in my little den. It is called a den because, if I move one tiny thing out of place, everybody growls.

The door opened and the wife walked in.

"Hello, honey," she said. "How are you feeling, darling?"

That strange feeling came over me again. A "honey" and a "darling" in one sentence! I very quickly locked the drawer that held the bank book.

"I'm just dandy, sweetheart," said I, giving out the old oil. "And I'm happy to see you in such a swell mood. I take it that, any moment, you will tell me you saw the most wonderful bargain just now. A public library at half price, or something."

The lady placed her coat on my typewriter.

"No, dear," she smiled. "I have two surprises for you. One is that I didn't find any bargains today, including you. And the other is that I have a wonderful story for your column."

A story for my column! Here, indeed, was something startling—or, if you wish to put it another way, this was a terrible note. When we were married high on to 74 years ago, we both agreed that it wouldn't be necessary for Mrs. Hellinger to read this column. No use of the two of us suffering.

But once I was very diplomatic about the thing. As Pay Webb once said, discretion is the better part of Vallee.

"Sweetie Pie," I murmured, giving it out hot and heavy, that's grand of you. Never was there a sweeter thought nor a more wonderful girl. I'm the happiest and luckiest man in the world.

"But—and I must get to the point—for goodness sake, don't give me any stories. I have to get to work on a column—and—"

My voice trailed off because Mrs. Hellinger was already talking. I gazed at her gloomily as the words tumbled forth.

"And so," she was saying, "Evelyn and I were walking up Park avenue together. We were talking about different things, including the fact that you hadn't bought me a Christmas present yet, and we suddenly saw the little bootblack."

"A whatblack?" I asked.

"A bootblack," she repeated. "And if my language is too much for a columnist, I'll say it was a guy what shines shoes. He was about 12 years old, and he was just about the cutest little youngster I ever saw. And what do you think honey? He was crying like the devel."

"Probably didn't get out of the stock market in time," I suggested. I immediately received one of those looks, and I settled back with a sigh.

"Evelyn and I stopped to talk to him. We just couldnt help ourselves. You know how cold it is out— and that kid was positively blue. We asked him why he was crying. And, while he wouldn't speak to us at first, he finally told us what the trouble was.

"Seems that he had worked hard all day. He had shined shoes right and left, and had finally earned $2. He was on his way home when two big rough men came along and took his money from him. Then he was afraid to go home. So there he stood, shivering with the cold and crying because he'd be beaten when he got home.

"Well, you don't have to put this in—but Evelyn and I gave him the $2 to take home. And, honey, you should have seen that kid's face. He was so grateful and so happy. I was so glad we were able to help him.

"Isn't that a real story, dear?"

I gulped.

"My dear wife," I said, "it is no story at all. It is strictly a piece of cheese. There is no beginning, no middle and no point. I cannot use it and, if I give it to Winchell, it will only be because I want to get even with him.

"Besides, the thing looks very much to me as though it might be a racket. If the kid's a good crier and picks his spots, he can earn—"

Mrs. Hellinger stood up with her mouth a thin line. It was the line of most resistance.

"Listen, you," she snorted, hurling me from "honey" and "darling" to a plain "you" in the space of five minutes, "this is the last time I'll tell you a story of any kind. You don't have to use it if you don't want to, but I'll trouble you not to call me a fool.

"I know honesty when I see it, and that kid was strictly on the level. With you everything's a racket. You're the most suspicious man in the world. Good night."

"Oh, yeah?" I said.

That was telling her, all right . . .

Yesterday morning, when I was about to leave for the office, Mrs. Hellinger took me to the door. She snapped her fingers suddenly.

"Oh," she said, "I forgot to tell you. Do you remember the story I told you last winter; the one about the little bootblack who was shivering with the cold and who couldn't go home without the $2?"

I nodded.

"Well," she went on, "I met him again yesterday. It wasn't cold but he was still crying. And—"

"And," I interrupted, "he wanted another $2 and you discovered that the whole thing was just a racket. Am I right?"

"Yes," she agreed. "But how did you know?"

And, boy, was I happy! . . .

One of the most awe-inspiring pictures ever brought to the screen comes from the General Electric Laboratory in Pittsfield, Mass., where natural lightning exceeding in force anything yet produced by nature is demonstrated.

HE CAN'T FIND A JOB

Mr. Edwin Carewe, who used to be one of the biggest of the big-wigs among the Hollywood producing fraternity, came to town and said:

"Looking back upon my 15 years of association with the motion picture industry, I feel a great pride in the fact that I have never produced or directed a so-called 'dirty' or 'unclean' picture. . . . Looking into the future, I can see that decency must be adhered to and, if not, present day producers will have to step aside and give way to men of ideals.

"Surely the industry must realize that it holds the power to sway the destinies of many people; the destiny of a nation; the power to influence the youth of our land; the power to sway posterity. Why should not this great power be used for good instead of evil? Why should the dollar mark always be our goal?"

For be it from me to grow facetious, but I can't help wondering if Mr. Carewe's ideas on picture-making have had anything to do with making the demand for his services in the studios practically nil and void during the past two or three years?

ART AND IMPERTINENT

Whether Katharine Hepburn is an actress or "anemia parading as passion," as one of the New York critics described her, will probably be settled after she appears in "Joan of Arc" and "The Little Minister" . . . I don't know whether Pauline Lord will be mad about it or not, but the Paramount publicity department calls attention to the fact that she once toured with Nat Goodwin's stock company . . . That's a long time ago . . . Mae West's entire family has moved in on her in Hollywood. Sister Beverly bringing her husband with her . . . What has become of Joe Wagman, the poster man? . . . If the jews that Gloria Swanson gets the lead in the film version of "Music in the Air" came as a surprise, it may interest you to know that the late Florenz Ziegfeld had picked her to play Mina Tor in the musical of "Sari a Wife" which he was planning when he died . . . The next film in which you will see that appealing kid, George Breakston, will be in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" . . . One of the boys in a vaudeville unit last night, remarked that one thing Will Hays office has accomplished is keeping "leg pictures" from the newspapers . . . What he doesn't know is that the studio publicity sometimes have figured ways and means to outwit Will . . . Jesse Lasky snaps his fingers at censorial wrath by actually going ahead with plans to film "Cleopatra—the Immortal Lover" . . . Ul Shannon Bendigo," banned by the Pennsylvania censors, did $94,500 in opening week in the Music Hall, New York . . . Paramount claims that 99 of its last 33 pictures have been passed nationally without a single elimination.

Yet it took this company three years to get "The Blue Angel" passed in Pennsylvania and now nobody will buy it! . . . Harry Sommers, veteran St. Louis drama editor and screen critic, is retiring to go to Hollywood to live . . . A brave man . . . Theater managers find the greatest difficulty in driving out the "mothers" in that women patrons annoyed won't appear against the ones they accuse in court . . . Knowing this to be the case, the boys often "go to work" on the offenders in a quiet office or a secluded spot in the basement . . . The treatment is effective as the mothers seldom, if ever, come back for more.

The week's best press agent story . . .

Will Rogers and stage Peaches, five players appearing in Irvin S. Cobb's picture, "Judge Priest," were discussing stage performances of Ah, Wilderness," Rogers asked Rogers who played in the piece on the road, why he never faced the audience, whereas George M. Cohan, playing the same role in New York, always does.

"On the stage every big star always does it so there's some place during the evening he can play facing the audience, and count the house," explained Will, lowering his voice. "As long, it isn't necessary for me to do that cause I'm on a straight salary!"

Starlet Has First Screen Role

Barbara Read, 16-year-old Columbia starlet, whose contract with the film concern was recently approved by the courts, has been assigned her first picture role. She will have a bit in Capra's "Broadway Bill," opposite the screen and radio comedian, Sterling Holloway.

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—It may surprise them to know it, but Cecil B. De Mille blames the shortage of competent acting material upon the heads of the great American universities and colleges. The director has just passed the buck in letters to 16 big shots in the world of education.

"What we need is improved methods of teaching English," says De Mille. "American youth apparently doesn't know what a consonant is. They jalk and all you hear is a string of vowels. Slang adds to the complications. The word yes has practically been supplanted by yea."

Among the university heads who'll be startled to receive this clarion call to improve the diction of their charges are Drs. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbus, Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford, James Bryant Conant, of Harvard; James Roland Angell, of Yale, and Robert M. Hutchison, of the University of Chicago.

The low auto row is adither over the special coupe job Greta Garbo has ordered from the makers of a small car of popular price. The Swede is having everything but hot and cold running water installed. All the maker's insignia are being taken off, the running boards are being painted white, a reproduction of a famous painting is being put on the right side of the dashboard and a monogram on the door is to carry the legend, "Verdad y Sidencie"—truth and silence. The order, so far, is in the name of Greta de Acosta, leading gossips to believe the car may be intended as a present to the star's friend, Mercedes de Acosta.

Honeymooners Pat Paterson and Charles Boyer are undaunted by what appears to be a conspiracy of circumstances to part them. Boyer was scheduled to leave here in August to do a picture in France, but now he and Fox have called it quits, leaving him free of present or future motion picture assignments in Hollywood. Miss Paterson, on the other hand has a busy year mapped out for her at Fox.

Ove rthe phone, Boyer said:

"Calling off the Fox deal will have no effect on my plans. I'll stay with Pat until August and she will come to me as soon as she finishes two pictures. Our plans beyond that are not set, but we will try to live one-half of the year in Hollywood and the rest in France."

You puzzle lovers, see if you can identify the actor whose cook is named McCarthy; chauffer, Connolly; nurse, Helen Rafferty; gardener, Murphy; milkman, Kelly, and mailman Callahan.

Yes, of course, it's Pat O'Brien.

What dignified appearing male star, whom you'd never suspect, happened to be on the train that carried the Wampus Baby stars to the Shrine convention and tried to play Romeo to half the pretty travelers?

Hollywood mice thrive on poetry. Elissa Landi made the discovery when she opened the box that once contained manuscripts of her childhood attempts at verse. Only shredded paper remained of the author-actresses' treasured juvenilia. Fortunately, Elissa's mother, the Countess Zanardi-Landi, still possesses faded typewritten copies of the verse and the star is now busy editing them. Of the star's later poetry, a group of six entitled: "An offering to Eros" has recently ben set to music by Abram Chasins, the composer.

Sixteen Wigs For Irene

More than 50 sketches of different coiffures were made for Irene Dunne, RKO star, before the 16 headdresses to be used in her current starring vehicle, "The Age of Innocence," were definitely decided upon.

Mel Burns, head of the studio makeup department, first sketched the proposed coiffures, submitted them to Miss Dunne for her selection and then the chosen ones were worked out in wigs. Then as a final touch, each wig was photographed on the star and the test studied for additional changes.

Her wigs in this picture are a rich red gold. The star's own hair is almost black.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Judith Anderson, one of our better American actresses, has been engaged to appear as guest star with the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse. M. E. Fierst, general manager of the group in the Arnold School Theater for the summer, was apprised yesterday that arrangements for the appearance of Miss Anderson with the Civic players had been completed, and that she would be a stellar attraction early in August. It has not been decided whether she will be presented in one of the regular subscription plays or another to be selected for production between the listed August shows. These are Clare Kummer's "Her Master's Voice," week of August 6, and "The Shining Hour," week of August 20, the latter an English importation from the pen of Keith Winter. The last appearance of Miss Anderson in Pittsburgh was in the role of Vinnie in the Theater Guild presentation of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," in which the other featured role was played by Florence Reed, the company including Thurston Hall. That was in January, 1932. While Miss Anderson has achieved her high reputation in the United States, she is not a native of America, but of Australia, who got a chance to leave her native land with an American company that was touring in the country "down under" in Winchell Smith's "Turn to the Right." That was in 1917. Several years later she woke up famous after the first night of Martin Brown's "Cobra," in which she had a leading role.

Last season started slowly in New York, with comparatively few openings in August and September, and the year turned out to be one of the best. This may have cheered producers, for there already are plans for 11 openings on Broadway in August and 29 in September. Summer tryouts, lack of angels and cold feet probably will cut the number down, but there still should be a sizeable number left, especially since there is likelihood of additions to the tentative list.

YOU CAN'T FOOL JIM!
WHY TRY? NOW IT COSTS SO LITTLE TO SERVE THIS REAL MAYONNAISE HE LOVES ON SALADS!

"JUST think of it! This grand real mayonnaise at this wonderful new low price. Why, now it actually costs only a trifle more than I have been asked to pay for substitutes!

"That's why I say that Hellmann's Mayonnaise is one of the most economical foods I can buy. And, of course, the fine flavor of this real mayonnaise makes salads taste ever so much more delicious!

"That, after all, is only natural! For I know that Hellmann's Mayonnaise is made only with fresh 24-hour salad oils, selected eggs, choice vinegar and imported spices . . . then double-whipped for delicate, velvety smoothness . . . and delivered to my grocer every few days . . . marvelously fresh, always!

"And now there's no reason why I, or any other woman, should ever serve anything but this finest of all real mayonnaises."

NOW EVERY ONE CAN AFFORD REAL MAYONNAISE
You'll be quick to agree that the new low price of Hellmann's Mayonnaise makes it unnecessary for any woman to accept substitutes in place of real mayonnaise.

HINTS TO EASE PREPARING OF MEALS

A personality that revels in disguises, yet belongs in society, is the one we know as gelatin. If fruit palls what is easier than to mold it in glistening gelatin—and then listen to the family clamoring for more? If so much lettuce gets a little monotonous and if there is a collection of leftover vegetables in the refrigerator combine the gelatin and the vegetables and have a salad which will seem something new and novel.

In addition to its ability to make old foods into new ones, gelatin has another virtue which endears it to every housewife. A gelatin dish can be made ahead of time, put into refrigerator and left until needed. It will keep as long as the ingredients in it hold their goodness. This is especially useful when you are having guests for dinner but want to go out to a card party or on a shopping tour in the afternoon before the guests arrive. All you need to do is to make your gelatin dessert or salad the day before and then your mind is at rest as to part of your meal at least.

GOOD CONSOMME

Lots and lots of people turn up their noses and sniff with disdain when jellied consomme is mentioned. They think it is most unappetizing stuff and when I think of some of the consomme I have eaten I can't blame them. Yet jellied consomme can be delicious. You see, what happens is that the chill which accompanies the soup when it is jellied makes its flavor much less apparent to the taste and besides that, any solid hurriedly eaten always seems less flavorful than a liquid.

This gives the key to the making of good jellied consomme. In the first place, have your broth much more concentrated than you would for hot soup. If you buy it in cans, dilute it very little, if at all. If you are making your own stock, use less liquid than usual and be a little more generous with the seasonings. Another thing, many jellied consommes are entirely too stiff. Only enough gelatin should be added to make the soup a solid instead of a liquid. When you are ready to serve it, stir it with a fork so it is thoroughly broken up into irregular pieces which glisten in the light. They should be stiff enough to hold their shape but delicate enough to quiver when the cups are moved. A slice of lemon is served with the consomme so any one who wishes to may squeeze the juice over it.

JELLIED FRUIT CUSTARD—1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup hot milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, 3 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, vanilla, 1 cup cold milk, 1 cup mixed fruits.

Dissolve gelatin with cold water. Add hot milk and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add slightly beaten eggs, sugar and salt. Stir well. Add cold milk and flavoring. Add fruit. Pour into mold and when firm unmold. Serve with a fruit sauce.

CHARM OF UNUSUAL IN RECIPES FROM OTHER LANDS

For many years Mrs. William Pidcon, of 1409 Oak street, Chartwick, has been collecting dishes of other countries and making them her own. So much has she liked them, with their individual flavors, that they have become something valuable, to be passed on to her friends.

Today the Sun-Telegraph gives to you three recipes of lands far older than ours . . . recipes that have passed down through families with the most precious of heirlooms.

Proteins in Meat Needed By Adults, Children

Human Body Requires Protein to Rebuild Worn Out Cells. Prevents Stunted Growth, Tooth Decay And Bone Softness

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

I am often asked whether certain meats have more food value than others. The nutritive values vary in different meats and in different cuts of meats. For example, a flank or tenderloin is a lean cut of meat, because fat does not develop in this strip of muscle. This cut of meat has a low fat content, but it is richer in minerals than a cut of meat containing fat.

The fundamental elements of all meats are similar. They contain protein, fat, minerals and vitamins. We depend largely on meat for supplying the diet with nutrient protein. This substance is used in the body as building material. It is required by every cell of the human structure, for when the cells are worn out they are promptly repaired by the protein intake of the body.

VALUABLE ELEMENT

This valuable element also aids in the normal growth of the body. Growing children require a larger amount of protein than does the average adult. But there are exceptions to this rule. Adults engaged in strenuous athletic work, persons recovering from a wasting disease and expectant mothers, should have a diet liberally composed of foods high in protein content.

When fat is deposited in a layer under the skin of meat, it is generally trimmed or discarded in preparation for cooking. Such fat has little nutritive value. But fat that is found within the meat has a high caloric value. It produces energy and furnishes fuel for the body and gives distinct flavor to the meat.

Meat contains many mineral salts. Chief among them are phosphorus and iron. These minerals which develop strong and sturdy bones, are essential to every living cell of the body because they regulate the neutrality of the blood. In cases of anemia, a blood disease, phosphorus, and particularly iron, must be taken into the body daily to overcome the effects of this weakening ailment.

IMPORTANT VITAMIN

The most important vitamin found in meat is vitamin B. Little of vitamins A and C is found in muscle meat, but meat organs, such as liver and kidney, are good sources of vitamin A, as well as vitamins B and C. These vital substances promote normal growth and development, insure strong and healthy teeth and other bony structures. Disease and infections are checked when an abundant amount of these vitamins are included in the dietary. Without them growth is stunted, the appetite lags, teeth decay and softness of the bones develops.

Meat should be included in the diet frequently. The child of 12 months may have it two or three times a week. The older child may have it more frequently. The cheaper cuts of meat are nutritious as the more expensive cuts. Proper cooking will make any fresh piece of meat tender and delicious.

NEW CAMP POOL OPENING SET

Formal opening of the new $20,000 swimming pool at the Emma Kaufmann Camp, Harmony, Pa., will take place on Sunday afternoon with special exercises.

The new pool, constructed as a memorial to the late Mrs. Belle C. Kaufmann and named in her honor, was built by the Emma Farm Association, which carries on the work of the Emma Kaufmann Camp.

The pool, in a color scheme of silver and green, is equipped with a vacuum cleaning system, water filters and a chlorinating system to insure the purity of the water.

MIAMI NAMED BY TEMPLARS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—(AP.)—Andrew D. Agnew, of Milwaukee, was elected grand master of the Knights Templar at its conclave here yesterday, and Miami was selected as the 1937 convention city.

Agnew has been acting grand master. Other new officers named are Mark Norris, of Grand Rapids, Mich., deputy grand master; Harry G. Pollard, Lowell, Mass., grand generalissimo; John Campbell, Seattle, grand captain general; Charles M. Orr, St. Paul, Minn., grand senior warden; John Tempoe Rice, of El Paso, Tex., grand junior warden; Louis Emmerson, Mt. Vernon, Ill., re-elected grand treasurer, and Adrian Hammersly, Indianapolis, re-elected grand recorder.

AIDE INSPECTS TRAFFIC COURT

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, perhaps the most influential advisor to Mayor McNair, today had added Traffic Court to the city activities in which she is interested.

Mrs. Smith visited Traffic Court yesterday for the first time. She would not admit that her visit was the result of recent criticism of the court.

Magistrate Charles Papale was absent, but Inspector Jerry Deasy played host while Mrs. Smith inspected the building and examined some records.

Take Your Time in Seeking The 'Right Man'

Started out with the boys TOO YOUNG. Running around with the BIG GUYS when she was but 13. And now she has reached the age of 19.

Their ways are old ways to her. The yellow leaf can be likened to the dance and the car drive and the walk in the moonlight.

That is Dora's trouble. And she writes to this column for advice.

Also Dora's ways are not so alluring to some of the fellows. They have known her too long.

Miss Brunot

Not so bad for her. She can't even marry both of them. One is all any girl can lead to the altar at one time.

One, she says, is wealthy and has had many girls. "He loafs with a fast crowd," she admits. "And he made love to me the first evening we were together."

AVOIDS LOVE

But the thing is, Dora has had so much experience that the canker of fear sets in. She cannot let herself fall in love. Not exactly. She is afraid. The first fellow is 27. He spells comfort and security for her. The other fellow—well, somehow, I believe he is the one she likes the better. There is a subtle something in her very lack of description of him that leads me to think this.

It is queer how a girl who has run around too much and who began doing so when she should have been wearing pigtails and pouring over books, will always grow sentimental over the serious young man.

It may be the one thing she has never experienced herself. It may be the attraction of opposites.

SOLVED BY TIME

We hear a great deal about marrying and settling down. We read often that people who have been everywhere, long for the one place. Yet, does it ever turn out as it should? Hasn't the wandering spirit rekindled when finally rested? Will the girl who has had so many beaux, who has enjoyed, just a little recklessly, the social things of youth, become easy-going and mellowed; and settle herself amiably to the fellow who takes life earnestly?

I cannot say. It is a problem only time works out. There are young girls who have only a certain few years of jollity in them, then this merriment burns out as a candle which has been all too short. There is not so much desire, because there is not so much vitality.

But again, there is the healthy, jubilant nature that no amount of imprisonment can quench. There is the lively girl who for awhile has a romantic feeling for the more sober type of young man. But he irks her, by and by. She wants out again, and her wings flap against the cage.

Nineteen may seem a WISE age to you, Dora. Those six years of tramping about may have made you into a worldling. Even so, do not be too much in a hurry. Perhaps neither of these fellows is Johnny Right for you. These are the years when a young woman need not worry over being single. The twenties are twice as valuable as the teens. Perhaps you have had your frolic too young. The dance, the show, the rowing on the lake in the moonlight may be an old story to you.

Yet there are other things. There are jobs. There are professions. There are business careers. And each of these want perusual. We can live more lives than one, you know, sister.

HAS FEW DATES

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 16 and live in a large town. The other girls have plenty of dates. But I don't. The only fellows who ever have asked me for dates have been homely, or something the matter with them. I am not as good looking as some, but I dress neat and come from a good family. What do you think is the matter? I am tired spending my week-ends all alone. I have many girl friends, but in the end, do not get along with them. At school I don't belong to any clubs, and I would like to. I also like any kind of sports. L.

Perhaps you have been thinking too much of that good family of yours and who you are socially. These do not get a girl very far.

It is sweetness of disposition, tolerance, interest in others that is healthful and not selfish. These are the qualities that make for popularity.

Get away from thinking of yourself. Dwell a little in what everyone around you is doing, and swim along with them. You may jump from one being to another. Your writing indicates this. Being touchy doesn't pay, either. Never go about imagining others are against you. Chances are, you aren't even in their thoughts.

Boys like girls that aren't squeamish or faddish. Real playmates. That is what they are after.

WHY NOT LEAD SIMPLE AND GOOD LIFE ALWAYS, ASKS FAY KING

By FAY KING

If there is any doubt in the minds of young persons regarding the worth of a good and simple life, let them consider the attitude of those suddenly called upon to make a favorable impression.

How quickly all the swagger of a wild and wayward life is discarded. Every effort is made to show that in reality they were all the while just simple and sweet and good.

Persons who would have resented more than anything else being called just "nice," are suddenly obsessed with a desire to be thought nothing else.

Well, if a simple and good life can count so much in one's favor in time of trouble and trial, is it not worthwhile to be actually so at all times?

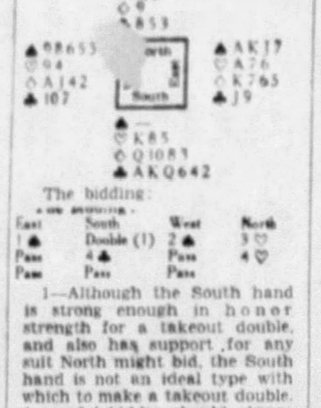
Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Super Safety Play

There are many widely prevalent types of safety plays which should be known to any fairly good Bridge player. These plays usually deal with the play of one particular suit, and they enable the Declarer to restrict his losses in that suit to a minimum number of tricks. There are other types of safety plays, however, which deal with the hand as a whole, and a safety play may be made in one suit to avoid the possibility of losing a trick in another. An example of one of these plays occurs in the hand below.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Double (1)	2 ♠	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Although the South hand is strong enough in honor strength for a takeout double, and also has support for any suit North might bid, the South hand is not an ideal type with which to make a takeout double. A careful bidder should always be aware of the possibility of his partner passing to the takeout double for penalties and of the consequent danger of doubling with an absolute void of the opponents' suit. South, however, is justified in doubling in this particular instance as, since North and South are vulnerable, the North player will not very readily pass for penalties if he sees any hope of a game in the hand for the North-South partnership.

Against North's fine contract of four hearts East quite correctly opened the spade King. This card was trumped in Dummy. With a practically solid club suit available to provide the necessary discards of all of his losers, it is obviously North's correct procedure to get after the trump suit. However, before tackling the heart situation, North must first make a very beautiful entry-killing play which consists of the lead of a diamond from Dummy. Dummy's trumps will be exhausted after the second round of the suit, and if the diamond is not led first, East, after winning the second round of trumps with his Ace, will put his partner in with the diamond Ace for a spade lead through North's Queen. The Declarer will then lose four tricks—one diamond, one heart and two spades.

The diamond lead at trick two prevents this possibility, as the East player, who is most likely to have the heart Ace, is effectually prevented from putting his partner on lead. After the diamond is led and won by either East or West, North wins the next trick (no matter what is played) and then leads a trump. Now even though East holds up his Ace until Dummy's trumps are exhausted, he can cash only one trick, the Ace of spades, as the North player retains a stopper in the suit with the Queen. Thus the contract of four hearts is fulfilled with the loss of only three tricks, a spade, a diamond, and the Ace of trumps.

Stale crusts can be made into appetizing little cakes for breakfast or dinner if soaked in cold water until soft, put through mincer with scraps of meat or bacon fat, onion, pepper, salt and parsley and a dash of nutmeg. Shape into cakes and fry in hot fat.

Pockets on your kitchen apron will not catch on furniture and door knobs if sewn on the inside of the apron. And they are quite as easy to get at if put well to one side.

To remove fruit stains from the hands, rub with half a lemon dipped in salt and wash in cold water.

When washing a hair brush dissolve a piece of soda in warm water and stand the brush in the solution. The water must only cover the bristles, which will become white and clean almost immediately.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mysterious Man Appears

As I listened to Junior's ingenuous chatter to Hugh, interpolated with phrases like "travel in pairs," I realized that he was unconsciously quoting words and phrases which he had heard Hank and Bill use. Junior's vocabulary is not so diversified.

But his answer to Hugh was exceedingly intriguing to me as well as a bit alarming, and I found myself tensely conjecturing what might lie behind this fantastic revelation of Junior's.

Hugh had said that it was from this bit of woods that the shots had been fired at Dicky. But I knew that we must have passed long ago the place where that lurking assassin had hidden. Why should Chinese be coming back to this little clearing, and what connection did Chinese have with that attempted assassination of Dicky?

LEE CHOW'S ORDER?

I knew, of course, one answer to that last query. After Lee Chow's queer behavior, we all had concluded that the high-born Chinese friend of Hugh Grantland, either in a fit of insanity or because of some queer Oriental obsession, had either fired those shots himself or been responsible for someone else doing it. But why were Hank and Bill on the trail of these mysterious Chinese, and what were they doing now, as we waited, shivering, for something—we knew not what—to happen?

Hugh brought his eyes back to Junior for a second.

"Would it be against your rules to tell us what part of the clearing Hank and Bill are guarding?" he asked. And then, at the look on the faces of the small boys, he caught himself up.

"No, I suppose that wouldn't be cricket," he said. "Don't answer that, even if you know. But I think it would be all right for you to tell me if you know whether there are any other trails leading into this clearing, except the one we just came over."

Junior looked at Roderick in mute consultation, and after a second's solemn contemplation of the surrounding atmosphere, Roderick nodded sapiently.

"Go ahead! Tell him!" he counselled largely, and Junior turned back to Hugh.

"Yes, there's one other way," he said. "It's right over there." He indicated a spot almost directly opposite where we were standing, but so choked with underbrush that if some of it had not recently been trampled down, we should have found it difficult to see an opening between the trees.

"We didn't have time to go very far up the path," Junior added, while a little shiver traveled down my spine at the queer and perhaps dangerous paths my small son's feet had found while I slept, not knowing that he had gone from the bed into which I had tucked him so short a time before.

"It isn't so good a path as this," Roderick interpolated, he patently having been deprived of the limelight as long as any small boy could endure missing it. "We couldn't have taken our bicycles up that path; it's too tangled."

MYSTERIOUS CHINAMAN

Hugh nodded, apparently paying flattering attention to both boys. But I noticed that he stole frequent glances at the opening in the trees across from us.

"Speaking of bicycles," he said as if casually, "why did you throw yours right across the trail—so that anybody coming after you would stumble over them?"

So it had been Hugh and Jim who had ranged those bicycles so neatly upon either side of the trail! I saluted my own deduction, as I listened for Junior's answer.

Roderick answered the query eagerly.

"That was just why we did it," he said. "We thought if the ol' Chinaman came up the trail after us, he'd stumble over the bicycles first, and he might break an arm or somepin', and then he'd be easy to get."

Hugh's lips twitched again.

"Did it ever occur to you?" he asked, "that if the Chinese saw those bicycles on the trail, he probably would turn right around and go away?"

A look of chagrin spread over both small faces.

"No, we never thought of that," they chorused. But an instant later I saw an expression of excited triumph replace the chagrin.

"But he didn't come that way," Junior whispered, "because, lookit, Uncle Hugh!"

Picking Up Broken Glass

If glass has been broken and you have swept up most of it but see small fragments which you do not want to handle, what will you do? Take some absorbent cotton, wet it and then pick up the shattered pieces. You will avoid nasty cuts that way.

Clean Water Filter

Something often forgotten is the water filter. Take it off every little while and give it a good, thorough scouring. You'll see that it needs it!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Digestive Disturbances Traced to Faulty Eating

Dr. Copeland

Europeans who visit this country are amazed at the constant rush of the average American. They are astonished to learn of the limited time set aside for luncheon and the lack of rest and relaxation. It may well be that this hustle and bustle explain the common occurrence of digestive disturbances.

Of course, indigestion and similar difficulties are not always the result of hasty and improper chewing of the food. They may indicate some internal disturbance that requires careful and immediate investigation. But unfortunately it is too often traced to faulty eating.

When attacks of indigestion occur periodically, the condition should arouse suspicion of some disorder within the body. If, in addition to indigestion, the victim complains of intestinal sluggishness, headache, lassitude and dizziness, proper medical attention should be sought without delay.

Bear in mind that an upset stomach is not always caused by the food you eat or the manner in which you chew the food. It may be the result of some inflammation or other disturbance of the gall bladder, appendix or intestines. It may even be a sign of something worse.

Repeated attacks of indigestion demand a complete physical overhauling so that the underlying cause may be determined. At times this is a difficult task and requires intensive study. X-ray examinations and special tests. It may even require prolonged and careful observation in a hospital.

Often, as a result of this thorough investigation, the indigestion can be traced to an inflamed gall bladder or gallstones. As a rule, the victim does not suspect the gall bladder to be the seat of the disturbance. If it were not for the X-ray pictures it is probable the stones would never have been detected and consequently the condition neglected. Neglect might lead to serious damage and the necessity of an emergency operation.

It is true that in many cases digestive disturbance is not caused by any organic change, but wholly the result of faulty health habits. With an abundant supply of fresh air and sunshine, proper diet, moderate exercise, the overcoming of faulty elimination, and the adoption of sensible living habits, the digestive distress gradually disappears. It is surprising to see the improvement that follows change of diet and the correction of faulty eating habits.

I cannot overstate the importance of proper diet in removing digestive discomfort. In many instances the sufferer fails to include wholesome and nutritious foodstuffs in the diet. In other cases there is an overindulgence in one food to the exclusion of other necessary and important foods.

The diet should be wholesome, simple, nutritious and easily digested. Avoid fried and greasy foods, an excess of salt, peppers, spices and condiments. Chew your food slowly and carefully. Avoid haste and never eat when you are overtired. Plan your day so you can eat at regular times.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Semi-Formal Prom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to attend a semi-formal junior prom. It is a college affair. Two other young men are going with me, and they are not contemplating wearing tuxedos. As a result of this, we have all decided to wear our light colored summer suits. Please tell me whether this would be proper and if so, should the girls wear formal clothes or must the girls wear informal clothes? N.

Since the prom is semi-formal, the men would be expected to wear tuxedo suits, and the girls would wear dance frocks.

Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just been widowed and have received a sum of money collected by members in my church. I want to send a letter of thanks to each individual and wish you would word such a letter for me. Do not want it to be too formal and still I am not well acquainted with them all. E.

Please may I send to you my deepest sympathy and understanding? And I was deeply touched, as I am sure you were, by such goodness and generosity shown you by the members of your church.

Perhaps your note might read:

Dear Mrs. Wood:

How good and generous and friendly you were to send me such an expression of your understanding of my situation. I was so touched by the thoughtful plan of the members of our church to send me the money that they sent last week. I can't tell you what a life-saver it was, how especially I needed it, and how grateful I am, how very, very grateful. Thank you, dear friend, for your contribution.

I hope that I am to see you very soon, to tell you in person of my thanks. My heart is full of prayer and gratitude for such friendship, such goodness.

Most sincerely yours

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Step out in handsome new shoes. A tweed shoe is a D'Orsay style shoe of brown kid with scalloped edges and gold pipings on the vamp and mating on the heel.

Suspend and foulard, too, is a charming dress and coat of flocked net. The dress has a neckline of white pique gardenias that slips under the ruffled neckline of the jacket, if desired.

Little girls cry because their favorite fabric, dotted swiss, is now worn by mother for her evening frocks. A delicious summer evening frock is of red and white dotted swiss with the whole skirt done in fluffy tiers, and for trimming there is an enormous organdie and velvet red rose to match the very narrowest of red velvet crown shoulder straps.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Carrotnut hats are all to the beauty good. Wear one and be a Maud Muller. They are flattering beyond all looking glass dreams. They serve a good purpose, shading the eyes from sunlight so that you won't get squint creases round them. They protect against swarms of invading freckles. And they are deliciously dinky and youthful looking.

Exercise to put tone and strong fibers in the flabby strong neck. Hands on hips, chest up, head erect. Drop the head slightly, lift it slowly, drawing up the jaw with hard muscle flexing. Keep on until the temperature rises is elevated and the crown of your head is as near your back as you can get it. Back to first position, pulling the spinal column up full length.

To reduce a too ample bust: stand erect, feet wide apart, chest lifted. Hold the hands straight out at the sides. As the right hand is lifted, drop the left hand to the knee; continue this movement, bending the body along with the lowered arm. There will be a flexing of the chest muscles which will shake off surplus fat and tighten up sagging fibers. A rubber reducing brassiere is helpful.

STOCK MARKET WAITS FOR LEADERSHIP

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—The principal question in most financial markets today was "where do we go from here" and, with no immediate answer forthcoming, prices generally displayed irregular trends.

Further heaviness in rails based partly on declining earnings, the pension controversy and prospects for a campaign for higher freight rates, tended to depress the stock list in various departments. The one note of encouragement, however, was that the declining movement was accompanied by extremely dull trading which indicated to the bullish sector that many shareholders were not overly anxious.

Wheat was a little soft, after its yesterday's resistance to profit-taking, but corn showed an inclination to rally. The other cereals were a trifle easier. Cotton recovered nearly as much as it lost Thursday, although there was no buying rush for this staple. Silver and rubber pointed downward. Bonds, as a whole, were hesitant. At the same time some prime investment issues held around their record high levels. The dollar was slightly higher in terms of leading foreign exchanges.

Tobacco stocks failed to show any especial apprehension over the fixing of minimum cigaret prices by the NRA. The leading shares were virtually unchanged.

There was considerable talk around the brokerage offices of higher and more active markets soon but, owing to the fact that most analysts were unable to find any tangible factor upon which to pin such forecasts, the belief was strengthened that the optimism was based largely on hope.

Commentators were bemoaning the lack of market leadership which, veteran traders claim, is necessary for any decisive movement in equities. At the same time, with the new federal regulatory commission on the job, few exchange members would offer a guess as to just how the stock list would be led "out of the wilderness."

CAR LOADINGS UNDER 1933

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—The American Railway Association announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week, ended July 7, were 519,807 cars, a decrease of 124,765 under the preceding week, and 23,703 under the corresponding week of 1933, but an increase of 103,879 above 1932.

The decrease was held by railway officials to have been due to observance of the July 4 holiday.

Miscellaneous freight loaded during the week ended July 7 was 197,568, a decrease of 53,386 under the preceding week, 4,399 under 1933, but 47,298 above 1932.

The drop below the like 1933 period amounted to 4.4 per cent, and wast he first such decrease to be registered this year. The decrease is attributed largely to falling off in industrial activity in the East and high coal prices which went into effect July 1. The week-to-week decline occasioned by the holiday was larger this ear than usually occurs.

GRAIN PRICES EXTEND LOSS

CHICAGO, July 13.—Grain prices went lower early today. Rain in spring wheat territory both sides of the Canadian border, as well as in parts of the corn belt, had a bearish effect.

Opening at ½ cent decline to ⅞c advance, September new, 94¼ to 94⅞c; wheat later underwent a general sag. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜c higher, and subsequently declined all around.

Happiness Depends on One's Self

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT MOST of us want—in addition to being useful—is to enjoy happiness. How can we?

HAVING CROSSED the half-century mark and having mingled intimately with both high and low, rich and poor, I am convinced that happiness depends more upon one's disposition than one's possessions. More upon one's mental slant on life than on money.

Mr. Forbes

Some of the most miserable and pitiable specimens have been millionaires and multi-millionaires.

But I have encountered many unhappy individuals in very modest circumstances and also many happy persons among the wealthy.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, for example, was happy when a whistling stage-coach driver and has been sunny and happy during many years of millionairedom.

James Stillman, who built up the biggest bank in America and was a multimillionaire, was about as lonely and unhappy a mortal as I have ever known. Not long before he died he confessed to me that, notwithstanding his great wealth, he felt that his life had been rather a tragic failure, that there was only one human in the world whom he could count upon as a staunch, loyal friend.

John D. Rockefeller has enjoyed life for the past 40 years or more. John D., Jr., takes life and his responsibilities so tremendously seriously that he hardly ever smiles. When I remarked upon this contrast to John D., Jr., he replied:

"I have oftener than once said to father, 'Father, you are young enough to be my son and I am old enough to be your father.'"

Owen D. Young, sympathizing with me a year ago on a major domestic tragedy similar to what he had experienced, made the penetrating remark that one secret of happiness is, "Don't expect too much from life."

MANY MEN become sore and sour because they fail to realize their youthful dreams of becoming distinguished, famous, rich. What unhappiness would be avoided if everybody took to heart this eminently common sense definition of success, enunciated by the president of the largest enterprise in the world, Walter S. Gifford, of American Telephone and Telegraph:

"Success in life is relative. In my judgment, success means making the most of such ability, personality and physique as you have. Don't measure your success against others, but against your own potentialities. Never fret because somebody else has done better. If you become imbued with this philosophy of life and sincerely try to do the best you can, and achieve the sincere feeling that you are doing the best you are capable of, you have attained as much success as any man can attain. More than that, you will, on that basis, go just as far as you can go."

THESE REFLECTIONS are inspired by two conversations the other day, one with a youngish taxi driver, the other with an elderly driver.

The younger man's mind overflowed with dissatisfaction, discontent, grouchiness; everything in the world was wrong. Like Job, he cursed the day he was born.

BUT LISTEN to the older taxi driver's philosophy:

"Things ain't so bad. A lot o' young kids in this business yelp a lot about hard times; but you can take it from me that it's because they don't work hard enough—they like to get together and chew the rag or hang around pool rooms.

"I get out every afternoon at 4 o'clock and keep going until 4 o'clock in the morning. I make over $40 some weeks and never take home to the missus less than $30 . . . My boy wants to be a doctor and he's going to be a doctor."

I asked:

"What? You can afford to put your son through college and medical college?"

"He's going through, all right. I help him out, but he helps himself. He's a husky and he gets good money posing for art classes. You should see his muscles. He's a good lad, doesn't drink or smoke or waste time with the girls. He'll get through, all right. I know he'll take care of his mother and me if I run short when we are old."

May this humble, industrious servant's talk and attitude towards life cheer you up as it did me.

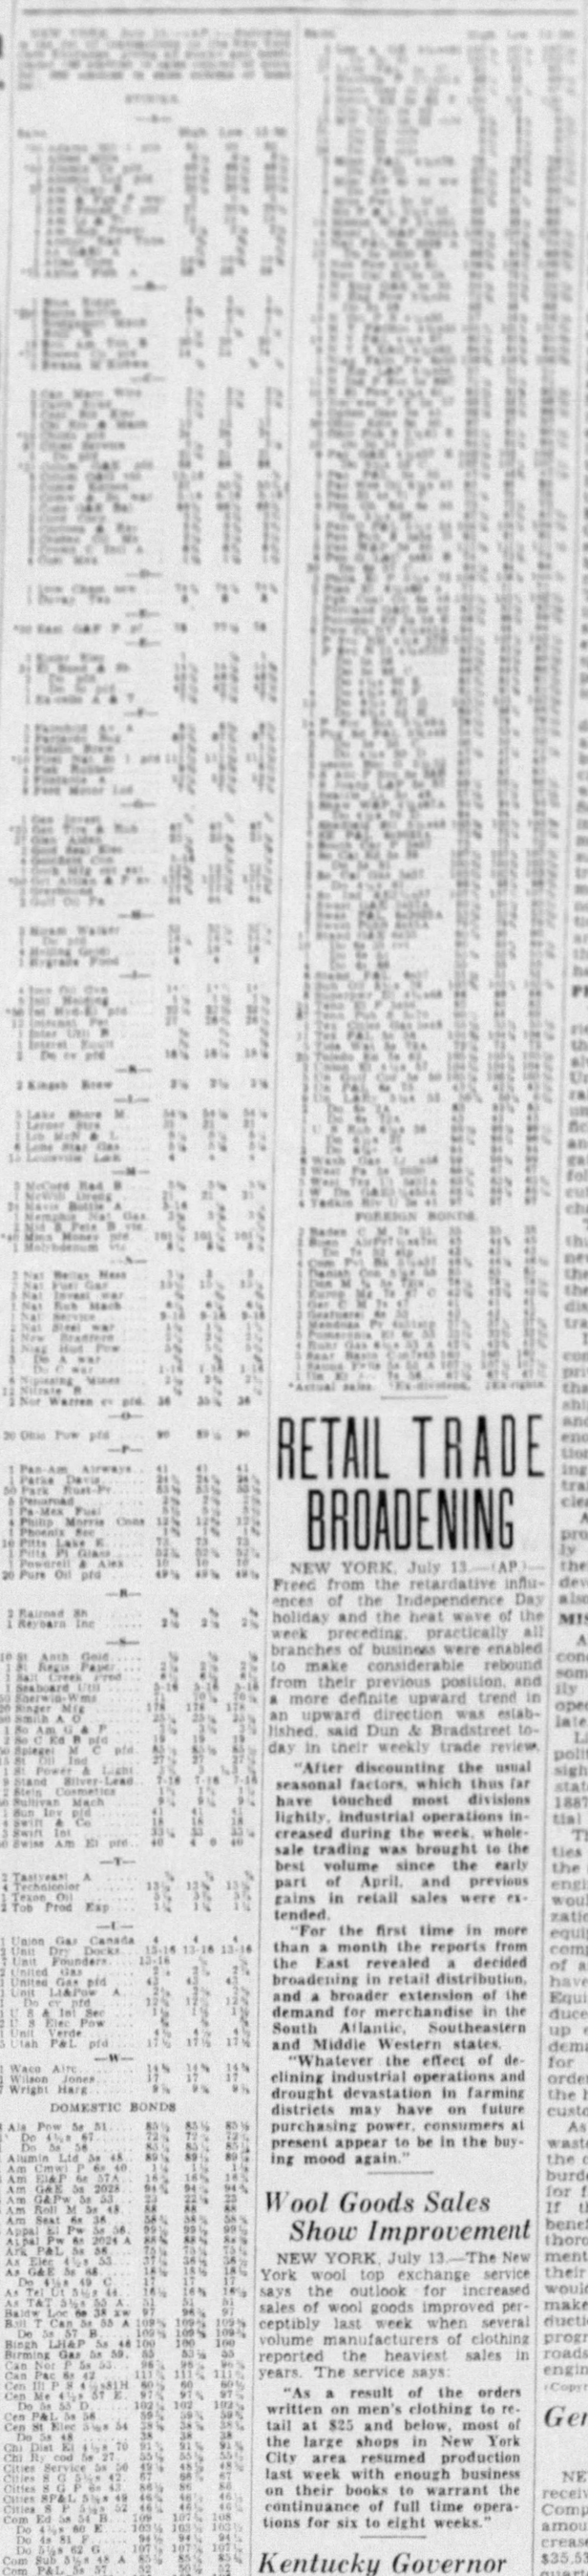
NEW YORK CURB MARKET



RAIL LEADERS AWAKENING AT LAST

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

EN ROUTE TO MINNEAPOLIS, July 13—After nine long and expensive concessions, the nine railroad executives are in the process of awakening.

Instead of passively waiting for the traveling public to avail themselves of railroad facilities, the railroads are at length showing a real capacity for merchandising. They are enticing the public to get on trains by ballyhooing the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago (second edition) and the beauties of the national parks. They are breaking down consumer resistance even more effectively by holding special sales in transportation, appealing to the well-known American bargain hunter.

Mr. Rukeyser

They not only offer greater reduced summer round trip fares and cheap week-end excursions but also hold out the lure of especially reduced fares to those who will set forth on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Formerly the operating executives sat back and bemoaned the peaks and valleys resulting from the natural habit of travelers. Now by price inducements, they speed up travel on the normally dull days by price variation. Thus instead of dragging around half empty trains, they fill them up. They have learned that half a loaf is better than none.

PROGRESS MADE

Taking a leaf from the experience of the stock exchange, they have found that there will always be a demand at a price. Until comparatively recently, the railroads were discouraging volume by holding out for an artificially high price. The Louisville and Nashville pioneered in bargain rates, and the western roads followed along enthusiastically, cutting out various penalty charges and surtaxes.

The public has responded enthusiastically to evidences of a new progressivism on the part of the carriers. At the Chicago Fair, there is immense interest in the displays of the new streamlined trains.

In fighting back against the competition of the bus and the private automobile, the railroads, thanks to the pioneering leadership of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Chesapeake and Ohio, enormously improved their position by introducing air conditioning. This not only makes the trains cooler, but also infinitely cleaner.

After long years of lack of progress, the railroads have greatly improved the character of their de luxe equipment recently, developing the bedroom cars and also cruising pleasure cars.

MISTAKE CITED

Like the railroad operators, the political reformers were shortsighted in setting up the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1887. They omitted one essential regulation.

The railroads got into difficulties because of backwardness in the matter of setting up a central engineering conference, which would provide for the standardization of routine equipment. If equipment and parts had been completely standardized, like those of an automobile, the cost would have been sensationally reduced. Equipment makers could have produced more regularly, and stored up equipment in anticipation of demand. Instead they had to wait for the specifications of actual orders and in doing so, incurred the high operating costs of virtual custom makers.

As a result of this economic waste, railroad costs went up, and the carriers had to pass along the burden in the form of high rates for freight and passenger service. If they had achieved the full benefits of mass production of thoroughly standardized equipment, they would have augmented their profits so much that they would have been in position to make frequent voluntary rate reductions. As compared with their progressive competitor, the railroads long suffered from obsolete engineering technique.

RETAIL TRADE BROADENING

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—Freed from the retardative influences of the Independence Day holiday and the heat wave of the week preceding, practically all branches of business were enabled to make considerable rebound from their previous position, and a more definite upward trend in an upward direction was established, said Dun & Bradstreet today in their weekly trade review.

"After discounting the usual seasonal factors, which thus far have touched most divisions lightly, industrial operations increased during the week, wholesale trading was brought to the best volume since the early part of April, and previous gains in retail sales were extended.

"For the first time in more than a month the reports from the East revealed a decided broadening in retail distribution, and a broader extension of the demand for merchandise in the South Atlantic, Southeastern and Middle Western states.

"Whatever the effect of declining industrial operations and drought devastation in farming districts may have on future purchasing power, consumers at present appear to be in the buying mood again."

Wool Goods Sales Show Improvement

NEW YORK, July 13.—The New York wool top exchange service says the outlook for increased sales of wool goods improved perceptibly last week when several volume manufacturers of clothing reported the heaviest sales in years. The service says:

"As a result of the orders written on men's clothing to retail at $25 and below, most of the large shops in New York City area resumed production last week with enough business on their books to warrant the continuance of full time operations for six to eight weeks."

Kentucky Governor Vetoes Liquor Tax

LOUISVILLE, July 13. — The Governor of Kentucky has vetoed a bill which provided an additional tax on whisky manufactured in Kentucky.

This bill was regarded by distillers as a serious menace, which threatened their industry in the state.

RFC Can't Handle New York City Financing

NEW YORK, July 13.—Jesse Jones, chairman of the R. F. C., told Dow, Jones & Co., Inc., his federal agency was not interested in the type of securities totaling $70,000,000 on which New York City rejected bids Tuesday. He continued:

"In fact, we haven't the authority to undertake that character of financing."

However, Mr. Jones has been lending his services as a sort of mediator between city officials and the bankers in hope that an early agreement can be reached.

General Electric Orders Show Gain

NEW YORK, July 13.—Orders received by the General Electric Company in the second quarter amounted to $54,005,988, an increase of 52 per cent over the $35,539,858 reported in the second quarter of 1933, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. The second quarter bookins were the largest since the third quarter of 1931.

Orders received for the first six months totaled $92,154,642 compared with $61,051,502 in the first half of 1933, an increase of 51 per cent.

Less Butter, Eggs In Cold Storage

CHICAGO, July 13.— (AP.) — Cold storage supplies of butter and eggs in the United States on July 1 were less than a year ago, the Department of Agriculture's monthly estimate showed today.

Butter holdings amounted to 70,249,000 pounds, a decrease of 36,129,000 pounds from a year ago and 25,412,000 pounds under the five-year average.

Egg holdings were 8,963,000 cases, a decline of 401,000 cases from last year, but 70,000 cases more than the five-year average.

NRA TRYING TO FORCE TRADES INTO CODES

By LEWIS HANEY

NEW YORK, July 13.—The NRA is making a last desperate effort to force all trades into codes. This is referred to as entering the "second stage" and entering the "administrative stage."

Apparently a controversy is to replace Gen. Johnson who has made a signal failure in building up an administrative organization.

Such recalcitrant industries as trucking are to be put under the codes of related trades are likely to be forced under a new blanket code. This will serve as a sort of standard and its terms are therefore of great interest. In brief summary they are as follows:

1—Minimum wages and hours are prescribed for labor.

2—Child labor is abolished and women's wages are protected.

3—Collective bargaining is provided as under Section 7A of NRA.

4—Open prices are to be required.

One interesting fact is that after all the roaring and teeth-gnashing by Johnson and Richberg, the position taken by Darrow and the Federal Trade Commission is practically sustained. Thus, instead of the scheme of "self government" by industry, subject to regulation only by NRA, and virtually replacing the anti-trust laws, we are apparently going back to anti-trust law enforcement and fair competition. Much solicitude is shown for "small enterprise," and it is provided that "no member of the industry shall enter into any agreement, understanding or conspiracy to fix or maintain price trends." (The latter provision should be quite unnecessary, since it's the existing law).

RIGHT STEP

This, I think, is a step in the right direction (for reasons set forth in my book on business organization and combination).

Other good features are some flexibility in wages and hours, the apparent requirement of an agreement by 75 per cent of a trade for the adoption of fair trade practices, and the possibility that a reasonable "open price" system may be more widely adopted.

There seems to be much lack of clarity in some provisions, however, and some are probably bad.

Thus the rule against reductions in wages, if clear, is drastic and inflexible. Section 7A of NRA (collective bargaining) is to apply, with all its uncertainties. (A case initiated by building material concerns is now pending to determine whether NRA codes allow the "closed shop" and the exclusion of non-union workers.)

We find the vicious tendency, which is so characteristic of the New Deal, to force code signers to agree to things not specified. Thus, article 5A says, "it shall be an unfair method of competition to violate any rule of fair trade practice even if not herein contained." There is also the question whether anyone who is virtually compelled to sign the code gives up his constitutional rights.

The code authority is empowered to require burdensome reports.

TESTS DANGEROUS

Apparently certain new tests of "unfair competition" are set up which are likely to be dangerous. These are (1) "imperiling small enterprise" and (2) "impairing code wages" (regulations, C, 1A). If competition is to be restricted when it hurts an inefficient business because it is "small," or because it threatens a code wage even though that wage is too high, the thing will be bad.

The whole scheme of "emergency" price-fixing is perhaps the most dangerous part. The code administration is to decide when an "emergency" exists, and then may fix a minimum price. Its decision is to be based upon a finding of any adverse effect upon (1) small enterprise, or (2) wages or labor conditions, or (3) any tendency toward monopoly or (4) "other acute conditions which tend to defeat the purposes of the act!"

Surely that is broad enough! The code authority can fix a price just about wherever it wants to.

BANK RESERVES AT NEW HIGH

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board today reported an increase in member bank reserve balances of $156,000,000 during the week ending July 11, bringing the total to a new high of $3,902,000,000.

Accompanying this were decreases of $53,000,000 of money in circulation and $99,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks.

On July 11 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,468,000,000, a decrease of $20,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with the decrease of $53,000,000 in money in circulation, $99,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks, and $8,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and an increase of $15,000,000 in monetary gold stock offset in part by an increase of $156,000,000 in member bank reserve balances.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP.)—The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent.

RECORD ENTRY SEEN FOR REGATTA AT OAKMONT

SPORTS COMMENT BY HARRY KECK

Davis Cup Hopes.
They're Looking Up.
Cycles of Tennis.
British Sports Boom.
Echo of Olympics.
About Bill Yocke.

Although the United States fared badly in the closing stages of the Wimbledon tennis tournament, in which England flashed to the fore to win both the men's and women's singles titles, a ray of hope for the United States Davis Cup team can be seen in studying the results.

They reveal that England's Davis Cup stars are not invincible and that the same thing is true of the Australian team, which likely will be the foe of the United States in the final round to provide a challenger for the British cup holders.

Frank Shields beat Bunny Austin, of England, and Fred Perry, the champion, had his hands full beating George Lott, Jr., and Perry defeated Jack Crawford, the Australian, in the final round after Crawford had been extended to beat Lester Stoefen and Shields, the Americans. Perry had to play his best game to defeat Sidney Wood, Jr., of the United States, in the semi-finals.

It is not entirely without the bounds of possibility that the United States forces, reinforced by the addition of Wilmer Allison for the doubles, will beat both Australia and England and bring back the cup so long absent from these shores. It is a big contract, to be sure, but a far from hopeless one.

JOHN BULL SPREADS HIMSELF

The patient British must be getting quite a kick out of their comeback in major sports this year. They have taken back the national open golf title, through Henry Cotton; made that cleanup at Wimbledon, mopped up the Henley regatta and beaten Australia in cricket. In beating Miss Helen Jacobs in the final at Wimbledon, Miss Dorothy Round won over the twice American women's tennis champion and actually established herself as the world's queen of the courts, while Perry ranks as the No. 1 man player.

So far as the tennis end of this remarkable return to power is concerned, it is apropos to note that in this sport leadership seems to run in cycles. Years ago England was the ruler of the tennis courts. Then Australia, with its Brookes and Wilding, wrested control for a number of seasons. Came then the American forces of Maurice McLoughlin, Billy Johnston, R. N. Williams, Bill Tilden and a few others to ride the crest of the wave. When they began to fade, the Borotras, Cochets and Brugnons of France usurped power. England crushed their reign last year and its young stars are still carrying on.

COWBOY MAKES $250,000 IN RING

Remember Cowboy Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming, who gave us several good displays of fistic work in local rings a few years ago? He's still fighting after almost 400 engagements, not as frequently as before and not as successfully, but still fighting. He says he has made a quarter of a million dollars in his time through his fists and that he has saved some of this and has some more salted away in insurance and doesn't have to worry.

Anderson always was a good showman, a boxer who could win the crowds. He fought in flurries which aroused the fans and made him a favorite in many cities.

JAPS' INHALATION OF OXYGEN

After the 1932 Olympic Games there was quite a commotion over the statement that Japanese swimmers, who made a surprising showing, had been aided by stimulants. Here is some interesting comment on the situation from the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association:

"In the Olympic games held in California in 1932 the Japanese swimming team inhaled oxygen for five minutes about half an hour before competition. The charge was made that such inhalations were unethical and that they were largely responsible for the successful showing of the Japanese competitors. Karpovich has recently made available the reports of an investigation of the possibilities. His experiments follow others which establish fairly well the fact that the breathing of oxygen is an immediate aid to an athletic performance if taken just before exercise.

"Leonard Hill and Martin Flack found in 1910 that preliminary inhalation of oxygen is useful in running short distances only. Karpovich tested the effects of two deep inhalations of pure oxygen immediately before plunging into water. In 11 out of 17 cases, men who did this were able to break their own unofficial records. Moreover, of six who could not break their own records, four did not follow instructions and exhaled the oxygen before striking the water. However, swimmers who inhaled oxygen for a period of from three to five minutes and discontinued it from four to five minutes before a 100-yard swim found that the inhalation had no noticeable effect on the speed of swimming. It was found that the inhalation of oxygen after any athletic activity hastens recovery.

"Karpovich concludes that oxygen taken immediately before strenuous exercise does benefit the athlete, but that oxygen taken a long interval before the exercise has little, if any, effect. He explains the value of oxygen inhalations immediately before swimming by the fact that respiratory movements retard speed and that oxygen inhalations make respiratory movements unnecessary for a certain length of time. The interesting fact was established that after three inhalations of oxygen a person can hold the breath in a lying position up to 6 minutes and 30 seconds."

BILL YOCKE PROMISING PITCHER

Read about one of the best young pitchers in the new Pennsylvania State Association, Elmer Daily's baby minor league, which is coming along in fine style. The young man is Bill Yocke, a 6 foot 3-inch blond Dutchman from Wheeling, who is a southpaw thrower for the Washington (Pa.) team. Yocke's record of six games won and three lost in the first half-season is not exceptional, but other statistics bear out Manager Ben Bengough's opinion that he is a highly valuable hurler and a "comer." Yocke struck out 70 batters and allowed only 65 hits in 67 innings. His feat of allowing an average of less than one hit an inning has offset the 17 walks he has issued. As pitchers go, his batting average of .206 isn't bad.

Yocke was an outstanding athlete at Triadelphia (W. Va.) High School, from which he was graduated in 1929. He was selected All-West Virginia center to climax four years of varsity service in basketball, played first base for his high school nine four years, and played one year of football. In 1931, he was sent by the Pirates to their Wichita team in the Western League and stayed there a month as a relief pitcher. Then he was shipped to Columbia, S. C., in the now-extinct Sally League, but, after winning his only start, he became involved in a salary dispute and asked for his release. He wound up the year with the Wheeling team in the Middle Atlantic League, winning three out of five games.

Due to a siege of pneumonia and resultant complications, Bill remained out of organized baseball for the next two years. Last year he joined a Bellaire (O.) sandlot team and, after turning in a sensational string of victories, including a remarkable total of five no-hit, no-run games, he was signed up by Wheeling for this year. After working with the Stogies in pre-season practice, he was shipped to Washington. Bill is a son of William E. Yocke, of Wheeling, who was good enough in his heyday to get an offer from John McGraw, then manager of the Baltimore Orioles, which he turned down.

KAUFFMANN'S QUALIFICATION POPULAR

You can kick it around that everybody was pleased to see Carl F. Kauffmann qualify again for the National Public Parks golf tournament which will be played here in a few weeks. The three-times winner of the title will be the big attraction of the play carded for the first time in his home city.

HOUSEBOAT TOWING BARGES INTO POSITION TO BE USED AS RACING PITS FOR SUN-TELEGRAPH MOTORBOAT REGATTA AT OAKMONT COURSE

SUN-TELEGRAPH NET ENTRIES TOTAL 162

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Right now, with two days' mail still to be inspected, the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh parks tennis championships flash a total of 162 entrants. Of this tremendous throng, there are 135 men and 27 women, and it is exceedingly probable that by the time the last returns are in at noon tomorrow the 200 mark will have been passed and a new record hung up for sanctioned net competition in this district. Meanwhile tardy aspirants are urged to clip entry blanks from the Sun-Telegraph sports page today and to file their names in writing thereon prior to the deadline. Positively no entries will be accepted by 'phone.

The rapid rate at which the contenders' list has mounted throughout the current week is gratifying, but not at all surprising when one considers the remarkable general increase in racquet interest here since start of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association extension program four seasons ago—and when one considers further the imposing flock of more than 30 awards placed up by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for successful contestants in the individual parks' events at Frick, Highland, Schenley, Olympia, West, North and South from Tuesday, July 17, to Saturday, July 21, and in the traditional inter-park elimination series wherein victors in the preliminary play will tangle at Frick and South on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, July 25, 26 and 28.

PRIZE ARRAY FINE

The prize array includes not only valuable remembrances for winners and runners-up in men's and women's singles in each of the seven individual parks, but also first legs on the new Sun-Telegraph challenge trophies, handsome permanent souvenirs, and trips as Pittsburgh representatives and Sun-Telegraph guests to the National Public Parks championships at Minneapolis, August 13 to 19, for the city champions.

Yesterday saw no less than 47 performers—11 feminine and 36 masculine—added to the municipal roster. Frick Park, with an even dozen neophytes, benefited most by the Thursday deluge. The Forbes-Braddock bailiwick now boasts 28 delegates and rates third position in the entry race, South leading with 34 and West ranking second with 31, of whom nine are of the fair sex. The following lists shows graphically the present status of the entrance ledger:

Park.	Men.	Women	Tri.
South	27	7	34
West	22	9	31
Frick	24	4	28
North	18	3	21
Highland	16	1	17
Schenley	14	3	17
Olympia	14	0	14
Grand totals	135	27	162

It was announced this morning by the tournament chairman that Bill Purcell, Duquesne University court captain the past spring, has been appointed to handle the jousting at West Park. Purcell, who arrived in town yesterday morning after a lengthy mid-western and Great Lakes tour, graciously consented to handle the lower North Side assignment and his name was promptly inscribed upon the committee sheet. The Duke star's alignment leaves only the North Park post vacant and it is hoped that even this will be filled before tonight.

JUNIORS, BOYS READY

Entries for the annual Western Pennsylvania junior and boys' championships will close at noon tomorrow. Competition will get under way on the four clay courts of the University of Pittsburgh at 9 a. m. on Monday and will continue throughout the ensuing three or four days. Co-Chairman Bob Grier is receiving names of prospective participants by 'phone at Atlantic 1375 during the day and at Lehigh 5863-J in the evening. His address is 146 Woodhaven drive, Mt. Lebanon. An extremely large field is expected in both divisions of play. It has been decided to pass up doubles as a 1934 feature of the tourney.

GIANTS' LEAD IN RACE CUT

NEW YORK, July 13.—The New York Giants' lead in the National League pennant race was reduced to a single game yesterday as the Terryman broke even in a doubleheader with the Pirates at the Polo Grounds here while the Cubs were defeating the Braves, 7-4, at Boston.

Larry French was Pittsburgh's means of breaking a "jinx" which had cost the Bucs six straight games against New York. He turned in a fine six-hit game to win, 3-1, in the opener, in which Gus Suhr and Earl Grace hit home runs to aid the Corsair cause.

The Giants concentrated their hitting in the second game when they belted Ralph Birkofer out to score six runs in the first inning and won, 11 to 1, with 16 blows to back Carl Hubbell's six-hit flinging. Hubbell, winning his thirteenth game of the year, allowed only one hit in the first five frames. Fred Lindstrom hit a pinch-hit home run in the sixth.

The Detroit Tigers regained the lead in the American League race by defeating the Yankees, 4 to 2, before a crowd of 20,000 at Detroit.

Mermaids Headline Horne Picnic Card

Tennis matches and horseshoe pitching will precede a mushball game between the McKees Rocks and Joseph Horne Company teams at 6:30 p. m., and a golf putting tournament for merchandise prizes, at 7 p. m.

With first place at stake and probably the bracket championship, the Commercial Garage and the Elwyn A. C. teams, both undefeated in bracket V, meet this evening in a senior division game on the Elwyn Field in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament.

The Commercials scored triumphs over Fort Black, E. J. McAvoys and the Andersons, while the Elwyn outfit defeated Snubs A. C., Overbrook Independents and Dragons. In the three contests, the Commercials scored 58 runs, while Elwyn tallied 24 times. Bob Korpp, Elwyn star pitcher, will probably get the pitching assignment.

Pollock's American Fruit Growers will try to extend their winning streak to six straight when they play the Federal Reserve Bankers on the Schenley Oval No. 1 field this evening in bracket I of the senior competition, while the Koppers Coal outfit opposes the Commonwealth Trust team in the same bracket on the Oval No. 2 diamond.

The Snubs defeated the E. J. McAvoys, 7 to 6, in a thrilling game in bracket V of the senior division before a large crowd on the Armstrong Playgrounds yesterday. Third Baseman L. Hunter, of the losers, played a great game.

Anthony Oskin turned in his third straight shutout victory as the Campbell Box Lunch team defeated the Homewood Playgrounds, 2-0, in a Bracket III game of the senior division. Oskin has hurled 29 successive scoreless innings.

MEET MAY SET ALL-TIME HIGH MARK

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Pittsburgh's first annual motorboat regatta may set an all-time record for entries in such affairs for the United States.

With more than 60 drivers already entered for 127 starts, and others not yet registered, indications today were that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Oakmont Boat Club's meet would set a mark that may stand for a long, long time, and give the old established regatta clubs a real high notch at which to shoot.

Up to this morning the list showed 43 registered starters among the amateurs and 84 in the professional classes. The total of drivers before post time at 2 p. m. tomorrow may be 100 drivers and more than 150 starters, necessitating qualifying heats in some of the events.

HEAVY PRO FIELD

Little difficulty is expected in disposing of the amateur events, but the professional classes present a problem for the officials. It is doubtful if more than 20 drivers can be started in a race, and there are this many in the professional B class, 27 among the Cs and 23 among the Fs, with more to come. There are 14 in the A class.

The amateurs listed so far are: Class A, 7; Class B, 12; Class C, 11, and Class F, 13.

Amateurs—Paul B. Sawyer, Jr., of Pocono Lakes, Pa., a junior at Yale and a winner in the recent intercollegiate meet at Worcester, Mass.; Joel Thorne, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Rutgers, intercollegiate champion; Bud Oliver, of River Forest, Ill., and John Plunkitt, of Brooklyn.

Professional—Sam Henry and Irv Le Roy, of Youngstown, and Harry J. Kiefaber, of Dayton, O., and M. Berling, of Clifton, N. J.

MARATHONERS TO COMPETE

No less than seven of the racers who competed in the New York-to-Albany marathon, including the winner, Charles H. Johnson, are in the field, the others being Thorne, Cab Waller, Jr., of Syracuse; Fred Jacoby, Jr., of Bergen, N. J.; Fred C. Weissell, Jr., of North Arlington, N. J.; Plunkitt and Gordon Orstadt, of Niagara Falls. Jacoby was the winner of the Trenton-to-Philadelphia marathon.

Famous officials from other cities were arriving today to augment the local staff. They included Charles F. Chapman, of New York, editor of Motor Boating and secretary of the National Racing Commission; James W. Mulroy, of Chicago, executive secretary of the National Outboard Association; L. Gordon Leech, of Washington, D. C., and A. A. Duryea, of City Island, N. Y. Chapman will serve as honorary referee, Duryea as advisory measurer, Leech as one of the official scorers and Mulroy in another important capacity.

MEETINGS FOR DRIVERS

Announcement was made today that all drivers must report for registering at the Oakmont Boat Club at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. A drivers' meeting will be held each day at that time. Prizes will be distributed in the club house following the final race on Sunday.

Plenty of space is available on both banks of the Allegheny River for the free accomodations of spectators. The Sun-Telegraph is presenting the two days' carnival free. A number of seats have been erected adjoining the clubhouse by outside interests which are being sold to persons desiring them, but the Sun-Telegraph is not identified with this enterprise.

The races will be broadcast each day by WCAE through microphones installed at both the judges' barge and the pits. These broadcasts will be on the air from 3 to 4 o'clock tomorrow and from 2:30 to 3 and from 3:30 to 4:30 on Sunday. Sound movies will be made by Paramount.

Arrangements have been made for complete policing of the river and the shore lines and owners of river craft are warned not to infringe upon the racing zone under penalty of arrest and fine. Sea Scouts and Boy Scouts will serve as ushers in the special guest section in front of the clubhouse. The police boat Monogahela will not be in condition for patrol duty, as previously announced, and another boat will be used in its place, bearing the flag of authority of the Customs Department.

DEMPSEY TO APPEAR AS REFEREE AT MONESSEN TONIGHT

Believe It Or Not — By Ripley

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: 81 YEARS AND EDIBLE—The 81-year-old can of beef was found on a sled belonging to the ill-fated Arctic expedition of Sir John Franklin, which perished in 1853. A rescue expedition located only one abandoned sledge on which an old can of beef was found and later preserved in Liverpool. In 1934, the official city bacteriologist pronounced the beef in the can perfectly fresh and fit for human consumption. TRICK SHOTS—Joe Kirkwood, famous trick shot artist from Australia, has mastered many seemingly impossible shots in golf and many that no other golfer has duplicated. His demonstrations at many of the well-known country clubs all over the world always are tremendously interesting, but probably the most difficult and unbelievable is when he takes three irons with heads a few inches apart and drives three balls a distance of 150 yards each.

TOMORROW: THE LAST PRISONER OF THE BASTILE.

FORMER CHAMP ARRIVES HERE WITH WAXMAN

Jack Dempsey came to town today. The former heavyweight champion of the world varied these parts to serve as referee of a benefit boxing show at Tinplate Field, Monessen, tonight, and detrained at the Pennsylvania Station in early afternoon. He will speak over WCAE with Louis L. Kaufman, the Globe Trotter, at 6:30 p. m., and then move to Monessen.

The show is being staged under the direction of Mayor J. C. Gold, who is being aided by Angelo Meyers, former local promoter. Between them they have tossed together one of the best balanced cards presented in those parts in a long time. The show will be the first professional venture in Monessen in something like 20 years and is expected to draw a large throng. It will not get under way until 8:30, standard time, or 9:30, eastern daylight saving time, which will give the Pittsburgh fans plenty of opportunity to get there for the first bout. Dempsey will referee the last two bouts.

Max Waxman, manager of Vince Dundee, the middleweight champion, who has been ordered by the New York Athletic Commission to accept the challenge of Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, within 30 days or lose his titular claims so far as that state is concerned, is Dempsey's booking manager and is here with him. Over the long distance telephone last night he declared that the ultimatum of the commission meant nothing to him or his fighter, adding:

"The rule of the commission is that a champion must defend his title at least once every six months, which Dundee has done—so what? He'll fight Yarosz if the price is right, but so far it isn't. We have been offered $15,000 to fight Yarosz in Pittsburgh and can get more than that to take on Young Corbett in California, and Corbett is the former welterweight champion. He recently knocked out Young Terry, and Terry holds a victory over Yarosz."

Tiger Joe Randall and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe hit the 10-round main bout at Monessen. Randall hails from Elizabeth and Wolfe from Memphis. They are good welterweights.

NEAL RUMSEY, KNOCHE BEAT O'LOUGHLINS

Neal Rumsey and E. A. Knoche, clever Shaston Heights pair from Mount Lebanon, stole the show at the third annual Fox Chapel Golf Club invitation men's doubles turf court tennis tournament yesterday by eliminating Dr. John and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. aces and odds-on favorites, in a protracted quarter-final fracas 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The Winged Headers, who landed the Fox Chapel event last year and recently swept to overwhelming triumphs in the Western Pennsylvania and the Allegheny County dual championships, were expected to have a virtually unopposed gallop through the somewhat depleted O'Hara Township field, but their aging steady, and hard-hitting Shaston rivals got to Dr. John after the initial set, centered their fire on him as they perceived that he was having one of his erratic days, and carved out well-merited victory in spite of the gallant efforts of Dr. Dave to swing the tide to the Red and Gray.

Meanwhile another pair of Lebanonians, Eddie Alcorn and Russ Unger, were joining their fellow-townsmen in the semi-finals, the youthful Pitt-Westminster combination of Joe Madden and Bobby Dyer having the sting of 6-3, 6-3 defeat under heavy pressure and because of numerous errors of omission. Knoche Rumsey partner Andy Black made a belated debut by closing out the veteran Greenhagen, Tack Hammer and Don Snyder, 6-1, 1-6.

At the weekly meeting of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association executive committee at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club yesterday, postponed P. T. A. Inter-Club league matches were re-scheduled as follows:

S. HILLS NINE ELIMINATED

The quest of the South Hills American Legion Junior baseball nine for the state championship was effectively sidetracked last evening on the Dormont High School diamond as the South Hillsmen lost their second game in as many evenings to the crack New Kensington Legion nine. The score was 10 to 2. New Kensington won the first game of the series the evening previous at New Kensington, 13 to 3.

Hitting at timely moments behind the great pitching of Bob Playfair, New Kensington experienced little difficulty in beating the locals. Playfair limited South Hills to two hits, one by Valenti and the other by Taylor. A pair of homers in the first inning, one hit by Sproul and the other by Delino, sent New Kensington off to a running start and the team maintained its advantage throughout.

New Kensington will meet the Northern Pennsylvania champions in the next series of state eliminations, the dates and sites to be set later. Last evening's score:

BOOKS BATTLE HOMEWOOD

East End followers of the City League will witness the feature game of the second half chase this evening when the Book nine, first half champion, stops off at Homewood to meet Bill Dalzell's Homewood club.

Homewood, with Joe Beggs pitching stellar baseball, finished just one half a game behind the Book aggregation in the first half campaign. Many followers of the Homewood club feel that with Elmer Knetzer added to the pitching staff that their favorites can nose out Heinie Boll and his club.

At Dormont, Immaculate Heart will test the South Hills club.

The third game in the circuit finds Mt. Oliver clashing with the Vaughans at the Salt Works grounds.

At Mt. Oliver, Dormont took over the Business Men, 3 to 5, to remain in the running for the second half crown. Immaculate Heart nosed out Homewood, 2 to 1, at Homewood.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Rip Vogel matchmaker of Hickey Park, Millvale, completed his card for next Monday night with the pairing of Paddy Gray and Utah Jimmy Perry for the opening of the triple wingding. To the top bout of the triple wingding, Harry Weekly meets Charley Burns, Rick Fields takes on Davie Marmo, of Detroit, in the first 10, and Mike Harris tangles with Eddie Andrews in the other feature. Charley Baxter clashes with Len Sheppard in a five-rounder.

An eight-bout amateur boxing show will be staged by the Court Athletic Club, of McKees Rocks, tonight at the Stowe High School Field. Lee Kennedy meets Charles Berley in the star embroglio.

Yarosz, awaiting a title match with Vince Dundee, has a busy schedule ahead of him, in addition to boxing Tait Laffman at Chicago next Wednesday night, he shows at Milwaukee on August 6, at Rigel, Liverpool, O., on August 9 and in a benefit show for School Board and Association of Women's Clubs at Conneaut Lake August 14. He also has offers for bouts with Young Stribling at Detroit, July 25, and with Leo Brouillard at Boston.

ROYSTON, BEYER GAIN STATE AMATEUR FINAL

PHILADELPHIAN TOPS RALSTON BY 2 AND 1

By TOM BIRKS

Joe Royston, of the Highland Country Club, medalist in the tourney, is meeting Lloyd Beyer, of the Aronomink County Club, Philadelphia, in the 18-hole final round in the Pennsylvania State amateur golf championship at the Fox Chapel Golf Club this afternoon.

The long-hitting Royston experienced little difficulty eliminating young Francis J. Allen, of the Fox Hill County Club, Pittston, 5 and 4, this morning. Beyer gained the final by defeating Dr. S. B. Ralston, of the Oakmont Country Club, 2and 1, in a dine-dong battle which was close from start to finish.

BEYER AIMS TO REPEAT

Beyer, who captained the Penn State golf team in 1932, and who won the title at the Merion Cricket Club in 1931, has a chance to write his name on the trophy for the second time, and also give the Aronomink Club a chance to hold the trophy on its sideboard for the fourth straight year.

Royston played brilliant golf to eliminate the youngster from the hard coal regions. Allen, who never won a hole, was handicapped by his inability to putt. Royston won the fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth holes, and three-putted the fifth and eighth, but got halves.

Rogers also three-putted the tenth hole, and then halved the eleventh and twelfth holes in par. A birdie four on the long thirteenth made him five up, and then a half on the fourteenth finished the match.

THRILLING BATTLE

The Beyer-Ralston match was close throughout. Although the rivallead alternated repeatedly, Philadelphian and his Oakmont rival rounded the turn all square. Beyer took the lead on the tenth green with a par 4, and the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth holes were halved. Beyer missed a short putt on the fourteenth, and Ralston squared the match.

Beyer turned in a sensational chip shot on the fifteenth hole for a par 4 which won when the Oakmonter was trapped. He was dormie on the sixteenth green when Dr. Ralston missed a short chip, and the match finished on the seventeenth hole where both had par 3's. Both played out the last hole, apparently for the medal score, Beyer having a 75, and Dr. Ralston turning in a 76. The cards:

Beyer, in	434	444	433—38
Ralston, in	534	444	554—36
Royston, out	553	453	464—38
Allen, out	553	554	555—42
Royston, in	534	44
Allen, in	534	54

Golfers from the Highland Country Club set a record in the turney, placing finalists in three divisions. The results of semi-final round matches in the second, third and fourth divisions:

SECOND DIVISION

C. D. Cramer defeated T. E. Hemelright, 5 and 4.

THIRD DIVISION

W. C. Farquhar defeated Dr. Stanger, 3 and 1.

FOURTH DIVISION

Richard Boucek defeated R. B. Parker, 2 and 1.

Ned Phillips defeated Lawrence Dilworth, 1 up, 19 holes.

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

This is the day when everybody is supposed to look out. It is bad enough to be the thirteenth, but with Friday as well — my, oh! my. Many people think baseball players are more superstitious than other people. I think that is just so much apple sauce. You'll find one here and there who thinks he won't make a base hit if he Honus Wagner doesn't rub his chin or something, but all in all, you'll find that true in any walk of life. Besides, if it makes him feel better, why not let him? And as for not walking under a ladder—that's not superstition. It's caution.

HONUS WAGNER.

TUBERS ANNEX SLAB DUEL

Victor in one of the best pitched games of the Penn State Association race, McKeesport defeated Charleroi, 4 to 2, at Charleroi yesterday.

WORLD HARNESS RACING MARKS EQUALED

TOLEDO, July 13.—(AP.)—The world record for 4-year-old trotters was equaled here last night when Brown Berry, driven by Fred Egan, won the free-for-all trot on the Grand Circuit program.

After Hollyrood Portia, handled by Harry Stokes, had won the opening heat, Egan brought Brown Berry through the stretch under a furious drive and finished in 2:01 with Hollyrood Portia second. The time was the fastest of the year for trotters and ties the mark held jointly by Guy Fletcher and Calumet Bush, now campaigning in Europe, and Vansandt.

Brown Berry won the third heat in similar fashion. In each mile Calumet Crusader, Will Hodson's heavily played favorite, took command on the back stretch, but wilted when the field turned for home.

The world record for four heats trotting was equaled as Johnny Caton, the 20-year-old eastern driver, piloted Ali Pep, owned by Martin B. Dobb, of Norwalk, Conn., to victory in the 17-class trot. The miles were reeled off in 2:04, 2:02, 2:01¾ and 2:04½.

WHAT "COOL-A-GRAMS" ARE:

Cool-a-Grams are short, snappy descriptions of the cool places, services and aids that appear in the "KEEP COOL!" hot weather guide published in this section of the Sun-Telegraph on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday.

1—COOL... as a pent-house in Siberia!
2—COOL... as a pocket-full of ice!
3—COOL... as an Eskimo's nose!
4—COOL... as an Arctic breeze!

WHAT COOL-A-GRAMS ARE WORTH TO YOU!

The Sun-Telegraph will pay

ONE DOLLAR

HOW TO SUBMIT COOL-A-GRAMS:

Type or write legibly the Cool-a-Gram you wish to submit on an individual sheet of paper and forward it with your name and address to the COOL-A-GRAM EDITOR, in care of the Sun-Telegraph. You may submit as many Cool-a-Grams as you wish. For each one accepted and published, you will receive a check for one dollar. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their relatives are not eligible to enter the Cool-a-Gram contest.

IN MEMORIAM 4

CLARK—Annie. In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, who died one year ago:

We did not know the pain you had
Or hear your final sigh.
We only know you passed away
Without a last goodby.
Gone, dear mother, gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth could take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
But death has left loneliness
The world can never fill.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXXIV.

On Monday night John left to go back to Omaha. Susan went with him to the station and, on their way downtown in the Fifth street trolley car, he asked Susan what her plans for the future were.

"Why don't you come out to me and Connie when the girls go south?" he asked. He often referred to his aunts as "the girls," and Susan never knew whether he did it with humor or simply because his father and Uncle Worthy had always called them girls.

"No. I may go over to the Cullens' and get something to do—a job, I mean. That's what I probably will do, John. I haven't thought much about myself for the last few days—everything's been so topsy-turvy," she answered. "I've been half expecting to hear from Allen, but evidently he's still furious with me."

She had told John the whole Allen story from the moment when Uncle Worthy ordered him out of the house until the night when she had refused to marry him. "I know just how he feels," she said now. "As if I've double-crossed him. But what could I have done that I didn't do?"

John was silent for a minute while the car slid along under the shiny trolley wires. "Well you could have walked out with him that first night when he asked you to," he said at last. "You should have, as a matter of fact, when they were virtually kicking him out."

Susan seized his hand. "You don't think he's ever coming back to me?" she asked, the words coming out on a gasping breath.

Owe Them Something

"I couldn't have done anything but what I have done," Susan declared. "After all, we do owe something to Aunt Edna and Lutie. They brought us up."

John's eyebrows knotted and a little muscle in the side of his cheek twitched. "As a matter of fact, they lived in the same house with us and that's about all—as I've often pointed out to you," he said. "They used to pick out your clothes when you were a kid, but if you think back, you won't be able to remember much of anything else that they ever did for either of us except to tell us to run away and not bother them. If we ever had any real mothering we had it from Anna. Who else ever took us to a circus or a movie or trimmed a Christmas tree for us? Dad supported us, of course, and we do owe him something. But there isn't anyone else for whom you ought to ruin your life, so far as I can dope it out. Yet you're going to marry Wallie pretty soon because the family want you to—and you think you owe it to them to do it." He finished on a note of high sarcasm.

"What makes you think I'm going to marry Wallace?" asked Susan. "Nothing's further from my mind!"

"You'll do it just the same. Lutie and Aunt Edna will wear you down about it just as they've always talked you out of everything that you've ever wanted to do. Allen, probably through with you—and they'll keep reminding you of it and advising you to take Wallace, and you'll do it. But why anybody should take their advice about anything is a mystery to me. If ever a crowd of people did not know how to manage themselves and their affairs, it's our family. They've thrown away a fortune the last 20 years—a big fortune, too—like kids putting nickels in a slot machine."

"And now that you've done everything that they wanted you to do, what do they do for you?" John was asking her now. "Why, they make their own plans for a grand getaway to some warm spot where they won't need you, and if you don't marry Wallie, why, it's just too bad, but you'll have to shift for yourself."

It was true, Susan admitted to herself. Not for one second had they stopped to ask her what she was going to do.

"I'll get along. The Cullen girls can show me how to go about getting some work to do, and I'm not going to marry Wallace," she said. "If I'd just had some kind of practical training, John!—" Susan's hands, which had been linked over her knee, fell apart and hung at her sides in an unconsciously helpless movement.

"Well, it's your own fault that you haven't had any," John answered. "You've talked around for years about a business course, but you never had the crust to stand up to the family and tell them that you were going to take one. You've had money from time to time. You could have saved it, and have done what you pleased with it—if you'd just had the spunk to do it. You're too darned easy with people, Susan. You let them walk all over you with hobnailed shoes—twice on the soft places."

Too Easy

At the station, just as his train was pulling out, he spoke to her again about coming out to Omaha to him and Connie. "We'll send you the money when you want it," he called from the platform as she walked along beside the slowly moving coach. "You know we'll be crazy to have you—" And then he was gone.

Susan stood on the windswept platform until the train was just a red pinpoint in the darkness. A train eastbound for New York, came thundering down the tracks on the other side of the platform, stopped for two or three minutes, and went thundering on. Still she stood there, thinking over what John had told her.

It was all true.

Through some flaw in herself—some weakness, the thing that John called "the soft places" in her character—she had let the family keep her from the things that she wanted most in life . . . Friends, when she was a little girl in school . . . The business course that would have made her independent later on . . . And now, last of all, Allen—

She had been made to give them all up because they weren't "just the people for her" or "just the thing for her" in their silly family pride, their feeling that the Brodericks were a bit better than the ordinary run of nice unassuming people in the world—the "hoi polloi," as Uncle Worthy had always called their neighbors—they had spoiled everything for her.

Well, it would all be different from now on, Susan promised herself. She would lead her own life, make her own mistakes, and her own successes, do the things she had always wanted to do—and somehow she would get Allen back, make things clear and right between herself and him once more.

That night Mary Cullen telephoned her and asked her to come over for dinner on Tuesday. "You've heard the news, haven't you?" she asked when Susan had told her that she didn't want to leave Aunt Edna and Lutie in the evening until they were better.

Allen Rooming at Cullens

"News?" Susan repeated. There was always some sort of news at the Cullens'. The girls might be having Sunday night supper and inviting Susan, or Uncle Art might have traded in the old car on a new one. The Cullens' news was usually the pleasant kind.

"Yes. Allen's living here with us," came Mary's answer. "He's taken Connie's old room. We're so glad to have him here." Her own satisfaction at having him in the house was in her voice. She had always been half in love with Allen. Susan reflected as she said goodby and put the receiver back upon its hook. It was Mary no doubt who had asked him to go to the Cullens' to board.

"Well!" she said aloud to the empty hall. She was so astonished that it was two or three minutes before she began to realize what Allen's going to live with the Cullens had done to her own plans . . . She couldn't go there now while she looked around for something to do, for some way of supporting herself. That was "out," as John would have put it. Not only was there no room for her at the Cullens' now, but she would not move one step in what would look like pursuit of Allen, who was certainly not pursuing her these days. He might, she thought, have at least telephoned her at the time of Uncle Worthy's death. He must have heard about it from the Cullens. From Mary—

She went back through the house to the kitchen, where she was finishing the dinner dishes. Through the hall where Allen had been talking to her the other night while Wallace watched him from the darkness of the old parlor. Through the dining room where Allen had held her in his arms the night Lutie found them together.

The house was no longer the place of enchantment that it had been during the weeks when Allen had lived in it. It was once more the same shabby old place that it had always been, as far back as Susan could remember.

Furniture Sold

On Thursday afternoon Anna Oberg came to the house, wearing a new suit of pale and spring-like green and bringing a large coffee cake of her own making for the family.

Lutie and Aunt Edna were sitting at the dining room table, counting the flat silver, when she knocked on the kitchen door, and Susan sat at the other end wrapping the pieces of Grandmother Broderick's Crown Derby tea set in tissue paper. Everything in the house except the clothing, the family pictures and the monogrammed articles of silver and linen had been sold the day before to a woman whom Wallace had sent to the house—a business-like, aggressive woman named Vera Whittall, who owned the Whittall Galleries—"Modern and Antique Furniture"—downtown near the public square. All her life Susan had seen the place from the windows of the Fifth street car, never dreaming that some day her own bed and dressing table would be there on sale.

It was hard to believe it even now. It was unthinkable that on Saturday the old piano and the Oriental rugs and the long dining room table would be carried out of the house. That the statue of the Greek Slave would no longer glimmer from its shadowy corner in the front parlor and that the glittering prisms of the crystal chandeliers in the back parlor would never tinkle again as hurrying footsteps passed across the second floor rooms. That the three armchairs would be moved away from the white marble fireplace at last—

It was impossible to believe that soon the old house would be gone, too, to make room for a modern store building or apartment house, according to Wallace. Susan had only half believed him. It seemed to her, somehow, that the house would always stand there, guarded by the elm tree, where it had stood so long with its plate-glass windows turning blind eyes to Center street in which it had had no interest since Center street ceased to be fashionable. It had stood there, but it had never been part of the busy noisy life that went on in the new little shops and the new crowded little houses that sprang up around it . . . A snobbish old house.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

You want to enter this contest, fellows!

What we want to know is, what is the good deed you are proudest of since you became a Junior Patrol member? Write us a letter and tell us about it—make it the best letter you can write.

It doesn't have to be on fine paper—any kind will do and you can write it in pencil.

The contest will last one week. First announcement was yesterday, and next Thursday, July 19, will be the last day. To enter the contest you must have your letter into the Junior Patrol headquarters, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, before midnight, July 19.

Prizes will be $2.50, $1.50 and $1.

Only Junior Patrol members can enter, so put your badge number on your letter. If you don't belong now, send your pledge signed up right away.

You can send as many letters as you want. But don't tell about more than one good deed in each letter. Write a different letter for each good deed.

Be sure to address your letters to Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Your letter must be of 100 words or less. So now let's go, fellows. Start writing your letter now. Remember, you have just as good a chance of winning as the next member.

This letter is from John Roberts, of 460 Grace street, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh. He says:

"I am joining the patrol. I hope to be of a lot of help and at the same time make someone happy by keeping my pledge.

"I have sang at school halls, theaters and at benefits. I hope I can sing on the radio with the 'Junior Patrol' with the other boys and girls."

Many thanks for your offer, John. We will get in touch with you, most probably. And we hope there are other boys who can sing well, too. They should let us know if they can.

Love Game for Alice

Daily Short Short-Story

By VICTOR WILLIAMS

Alice, her eyes flashing and her cheeks flushed, shook her defeated opponent's hand and turned swiftly to the group of friends who were already around her and complimenting her. Harry was standing on the outer edge of the crowd, but because of his six feet two inches of height could be plainly seen.

"I knew you'd do it," his smiling eyes said as Alice looked at him over the heads of others.

He stood his ground as the others swept by and as she came toward him.

"Is my nose terribly shiny?" she whispered as she came up to him and caught his arm. Cameras were clicking all around her.

"Every freckle is glistening," said Harry.

"I guess not," Harry agreed solemnly.

The evening was cool and blue and Alice lay on the cushions which she had heaped up on the floor. Harry sat in his shirt sleeves and in the big leather rocking chair and puffed at a cigaret.

"I don't see why it should make any difference," Harry said, and added: "I suppose I don't understand."

"No, Harry, really you don't. You see, tomorrow's game is going to be easier than today's, so I'm sure to win the championship."

"Then, of course——"

"Then, of course, you're going to Hollywood," Harry interrupted.

"Yes, and that's why we can't be married now. It would spoil everything."

"Would it?"

"How can you ask? You know how things are there, and I'd never have a chance if I married you now. Besides, I don't see why you object so to waiting a year. I've got to wait for you just as well."

"I don't know why I should object, except that we had planned to be married next month."

"Of course, but I didn't think I'd really have a chance of winning the championship."

"No, you didn't. But it seems to me our getting married is more important and oughtn't to be put off for this or anything else."

"You just won't understand, Harry."

Alice looked out at the cool evening, at a white cloud that swam across the sky. It had just been for the fun of it that she entered the tennis tourney in the beginning; it was just because she hadn't anything to do before marrying Harry. But she had kept on winning, one game after another, and tomorrow was the finals, and it didn't look nearly as difficult a game as she had had today.

Everybody knew she would win, even Hollywood thought so. When Harry had come in she had shown him a telegram which she had just received. If she won she would be offered a contract. And that changed everything. It even changed things a little bit with respect to Harry. She couldn't rush off and marry him now as they had planned because now she had a career in front of her. It would interfere with everything right now. Of course she loved him; she couldn't think of loving any one else, but that didn't mean they couldn't wait a year. Then everything would be settled, she would be a famous movie star . . . She didn't understand why Harry objected so to putting things off for a year.

She looked out at the blue sky. Well, she'd try making him understand once more. She turned over on her side. The big leather rocking chair was empty. Alice sat up. Yes, it was empty. So he had got up and left just like that without saying a word. Well, if that's the way he felt about it—

Alice stood poised on her toes, smiling and glancing out of the corner of her eye. No, Harry wasn't in the stands . . . gone off sulking and was staring away—staring away on this the most important day in her life. Alice bit her lip . . . Well, it didn't make any difference. She turned, ready to serve.

Things started right, then turned wrong, and continued wrong. She seemed to be off her stride—she couldn't get the ball back over the net. The quick chop strokes of her antagonist bewildered her, though they shouldn't have. She became overeager and she lost.

For the first time as she left the net there was no crowd of friends around her complimenting her and praising her game. Everything was gone now—the championship, the contract for Hollywood stardom, and—

Alice felt some one's arm around her . . . She looked nervously up.

"Harry, I—"

"You know, Harry," Alice said a month later as they leaned over the railing of the boat which was taking them across the Atlantic on their honeymoon, "you know, I think I was awfully lucky to lose that championship." Harry grinned, and Alice went on. "But I don't think I really lost, do you? I think I won a love game."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Miser or Wastrel

Youth sometimes a miser seems,
Hoarding precious hopes and dreams
Cherishing with happy smiles
Thoughts of reaping, after while,
Promised ecstasy.

Sometimes youth a wastrel goes,
Spending till each bright day's close
Goods of priceless worth:
Flinging all his strength away
In the moment's work or play,
In despair or mirth.

Miser, waster, what you will,
Youth is lord of living still,
And with dross or gold
Still he clasps the hour's bliss.
Promise lures him with her kiss.
Glad, new realms unfold!

Insurance for old age looks very attractive to the voters. We are hopeful that way exists. And there is nothing more necessary than to relate generally to the aim of state pension governments.

The scheme may not appeal to the young and active. But the old members and the collateral patriarchs are for it.

In addition to fire and theft insurance on a fish board we will also take out a $500 deductible on loaded sodas and hammer toes.

This feature enthusiasm wears you out and wraps you up when you are almost fit. There are more old men just starting life than there are finishing it.

By the time a lad worries his underneath way through high school, prep academy and college, he has the footings of the bread-spheres on his shoulders and is older than a dinosaur son.

He worries about a million things. But one of which is his pen. The result is that he is ready for the classic platform when he is about 31.

Fourteen years of learning and 14 years of hoeing liquor cabinets the health insurance of the middle-aged man of today. However, all new insurance will keep him out of the clubs that count. No more will the landlord throw you out on the street and wrap the rent around your neck.

You can judge a nation by the way it treats its babies and its old folks. We know that federal insurance means a full bottle for trips and automats. At the same time we trust the contents will be different.

Furthermore, we make a premature demand on the commissariat. We like our eggs fried in the shell. That's an impossible order. But inurres us of something to complain about. The bacon must be lean and brittle. That's essential for a one-toothed sufferer of wars, depressions and recoveries.

We will register on the dotted line and skip premiums like a goat coasting down a hill. That's the best endowment gag we have heard. And we've heard them all twice, thanks to Connie Titub, George Cuxy and Jack Hamilton.

Prosperity's Parasites

Sellers of Worthless Stocks Become More Aggressive as Times Get Better

Judge M. A. Musmanno sentenced a man to two years in prison yesterday for swindling people through sales of securities.

In this connection a timely warning comes from Pittsburgh's Better Business Bureau. The bureau reports that the improvement in business conditions is bringing an increase in fraud.

Worthless stocks and bonds are being unloaded on the gullible to a greater extent than a year ago. Crooks who found it unprofitable to try to promote bogus companies when the industrial depression was at its worst, have now resumed aggressive operations.

Fashions in fraud have changed, but the swindlers are just as unscrupulous as ever.

The rise in the price of gold encouraged them to sell shares in worthless mines. Within the last couple of weeks "cease and desist" orders have been issued against two such operations.

Shady dealers in "oil royalties" are also active.

But the crooks against whom Pittsburgh investors are particularly warned to be on guard at the present time are the "switch and sell" operators. The plan of these gentry, the Better Business Bureau reports, is to gain the confidence of their victims by buying for them, without charging a commission, legitimate securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and then, having won their trust, persuade them to sell the securities and put the money into worthless or nearly worthless stocks in which the swindlers are personally interested. A case is cited in which a "switch and sell" operator thus succeeded in unloading on Pittsburghers at $5 a share stocks which he had bought at 10 cents a share.

The Pennsylvania Securities Commission gave up its Pittsburgh office a little more than a year ago.

A Journal's Degradation

The Berliner Tageblatt Illustrates the Evil of Government Control of Newspapers

On Monday, July 2, when the newspapers of the world were devoting four and five pages of a single issue to the printing of every scrap of information which came out of censored Germany, as to the violence and killings that were sweeping over that unhappy country, the Berliner Tageblatt published only 25 lines that could be deemed even indirectly to have bearing upon the situation.

This extremely limited reference to a crisis of the first magnitude, and to a subject of the most vital news importance, consisted of a mere reprint of the Minister of the Interior's decree calling on civil servants to support Adolf Hitler.

This appeared as an official bulletin on the front page—a sort of notice which ordinarily would attract but few readers.

The remainder of the page was devoted to a story from Paris about the French Foreign Minister, Louis Barthou, and his approaching visit in London; two news stories from Moscow, and an article relating to an agreement between China and Tibet.

Until the freedom of the press ceased to exist in Germany, as the result of Hitler's decrees, the Berliner Tageblatt was a modern, enterprising, metropolitan newspaper. It had a self-respecting newspaper's sense of its duty to the news—to collect it diligently, sift it impartially and present it adequately.

It possessed prestige and exerted a wide influence. NOW IT IS FALLEN—OR RATHER STRICKEN!

It is not a newspaper at all—only a nondescript, make-believe "newspaper," a poor pretense of what a newspaper should be.

Its former readers are lost to it. Influence no longer attaches to it. Public thinking in Germany is deprived of the nutriment which its columns used to provide, in the days, now gone, of unfettered news and uncowed opinion.

To such a melancholy fate does tyranny reduce the organs of liberty.

"CONGRESS SHALL MAKE NO LAW," says the Constitution of the United States, "respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or ABRIDGING THE FREEDOM of speech, or OF THE PRESS, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Let us be thankful AGAIN and AGAIN for our Constitution—the bulwark of our liberty and an eternal warning to all tyranny.

The State's Population

Pennsylvania's Ten Million Present a Rich Potential Market for Many Products

The State Chamber of Commerce has just issued an estimate, based on public school attendance, that Pennsylvania's population, reckoned at more than ten million in 1932, has advanced still farther towards the eleven million mark.

Pennsylvania has more people than any of 18 European countries.

It has more people than any South American nation except Argentina and Brazil, and its population is scarcely a million short of that of Argentina.

Quality rather than quantity is the desirable thing in the population of a state; but quantity is not to be despised.

Think what a rich potential as well as actual market for all kinds of products may be found in a population of more than ten millions.

The Bucket of Oats

Recent news from Europe has it that France is again seeking "security pacts."

If Europe wants or needs such alliances that is EUROPE'S BUSINESS—and certainly none of OUR business.

Years ago the Senate rejected a projected "security pact" which would have obligated us to get into a future European war.

So far, we are informed, the American representatives at the "conferences" now going on in London have not been "consulted" regarding the proposed new agreement. And let us hope they will not be, whether now or later.

Richard Washburn Child, our former Ambassador to Italy, who has just returned from official observations in Europe, expressed the idea perfectly when he said:

"How wise for us to mind our own business and turn our backs upon 'peace pacts' which, with the masks off, are MILITARY ALLIANCES.

A Great Reform Begun

New York Leads the Way With the Creation of a Law Revision Commission

EVERY state in the Union suffers grievously from bad laws. All kinds of measures have been written into the statute books by all kinds of legislatures, without any planning and without any guidance. Frequently, laws have been made to benefit criminals and known litigants instead of the public.

The result has been a disorderly mass of what is called "substantive law" which no lawyer is capable of entirely understanding and which judges have constant difficulty in interpreting.

This chaotic condition has been one of the great obstacles to civil and criminal law enforcement, and thorough and scientific revision of the numerous codes has been one of the major reforms which the Hearst newspapers have advocated.

With the appointment of a law revision commission created by the 1934 Legislature, New York now becomes the first state to undertake this reform. Moreover, by making the commission a permanent adjunct of its government, New York assures that the work of law revision will be both continuous and enduring.

In accordance with the best thought on the subject, two of the five appointive members are deans of law schools—Prof. Charles Burdick, of Cornell, and Prof. Young B. Smith, of Columbia.

Bruce Smith, of the Institute of Public Administration, is noted as a police organizer and expert in the fields of applied and punitive justice.

Warnick J. Kernan, of Utica, and Walter H. Pollak, of New York City, represent the practicing legal profession, while the ex-officio membership of the chairmen of the Senate and Assembly Judiciary committees provide liaison with the Legislature.

Briefly, it is the duty of the commission to "modify or eliminate antiquated and inequitable rules of law and to bring the law of the state, civil and criminal, into harmony with modern conditions."

Taken in conjunction with the new Judicial Council, which has been established to supervise the judges and to devise court reforms, New York at last has official machinery for effecting a thorough and much needed reorganization and revitalization of its whole judicial and legal system.

But—with civil and criminal justice in the low regard to which both have fallen—public opinion will undoubtedly compel legislatures to accept and to enact the salutary changes that may be recommended.

Justice Cardozo, of the United States Supreme Court, originated the law revision commission idea when he was a member of the New York Court of Appeals. He described such a group as a permanent "ministry of justice."

The commission on the administration of justice, headed by Senator Buckley, wrote the New York bill creating the commission.

Gov. Lehman, in commenting on the action, said:

"I consider the law revision commission one of the most important agencies of government created in recent years in this state.

"It marks a progressive development in the administration of justice not only within this state, but throughout the country."

And, in point of fact, all other states should, in the interests of justice and law enforcement, follow New York's leadership and establish permanent law revision commissions.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 13.—Thoughts while strolling: No one had the bouncey walk of the late Hal Skelly. Margaret Sullavan could pose for the coiffure ads. The blarney of Fifth avenue bus conductors. Those bicycles with flying fur tails. Ray Long and Ernest Truex look alike. Ed Frayne, grand old Roman of sports.

One word description of Clark Gable—eerie. What wide eyes Jimmy Savo has. Cobina Wright not only likes her cigars black but long and strong. Don't ever remember seeing Jim Barton off the stage. Central Park looks the shabbiest I ever saw. The candy striped awnings on Billy Seeman's pent house.

If you remember Reisenweber's, you'll remember that fellow—John Steinberg. First to put up a silk entrance rope. What became of Oscar Shaw? Those shady hotels faintly flagrant of opium. Burton Rascoe writes of literature as though he might have a long white beard. But looks almost collegiate.

Always too much kidding about prunes. They're a swell dish. The dish to kid is parsnips. The Joe Penner vogue goes as quickly as it came. A big store opens on the Empire's ground floor—hooray! Wall street seems just sitting around waiting for grass to grow in the street.

One of my favorite people—Erskine Gwynne. The eternally hopeful small bit actors in front of the Somerset, next door to the old Palace. Jed Harris didn't seem to make that great comeback. Fading bankrupt bond house sign: "Safety Guaranteed." Sir Galahad was probably the first sissy.

Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn youth who won fame as a matador in the Spanish bull ring, has turned author. His first story, with a bullfight setting, is to appear shortly in a widely circulated weekly. Franklin will also do the illustrations. His turn at literature was inspired by Ernest Hemingway, who wrote the bullfight epic, "Death in the Afternoon." Franklin had helped Hemingway gather much of the material in Spain. One day he told the author he had always wanted to write. He was coached, and a first successful story is the result.

There is always a sharp memory, in passing the Hippodrome, of a triviality that etched a lasting impression. It was during the blackest days of the World War. On a fire escape one evening I saw little Bluch, Hip clown, silhouetted in hunched-over dejection. He showed a telegram just received from the War Department, announcing the death in battle of a greatly loved nephew. While our conversation took on the strain tragedy imposes, a call-boy came for Bluch to go on. He was going to try in the depth of his dolor to make a big audience laugh. There are many "show must go on" stories going around. This is one I actually encountered.

Now and then the first lady of the household goes on a fine comb rampage. She seems to think a good scalp scraping not only strengthens the hair, but hardens the gums and tones up the complexion. She just looked in with a fine comb glint. Any minute she'll swoop down. And like the Maine farmer going down to Bangor on a big drunk, "Gosh, how I dread it!"

ISN'T IT SO?

The man who thinks the world owes him a living will find that it costs more to collect it than it's worth.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

In Love With Yourself?

These new young Soviet writers are all "in love with themselves," according to Maxim Gorky, Russian author.

* * *

Naturally! Aren't we ALL? I mean when we are young and feel that we are setting the world on fire. Youth is in love with itself, just as a baby is in love with his own toes. As a kitten chases its own tail, a young writer is intrigued and fascinated by his own brilliant ideas.

And it is good for him, no matter how hard it may be on the rest of us, who are forced to put up with his cynicism or his cockiness. We HAVE to be in love with ourselves or with what we fondly fancy is our genius, just at first, or we should never have the courage to start anything.

* * *

Later on, when life has handed us a few Maxie Baer punches and editors, publishers and other employers have failed to drop dead at the discovery of our dazzling wit or remarkable erudition, we settle down to real hard WORK and become almost human.

* * *

A very young man may not be in love with his charm or his beauty, like Narcissus, but he is quite apt to be infatuated with his astuteness in political matters, his keen analytical judgment of "wimmen," his taste in cravats, his line, or his Big Talent for writing. He can TELL you ANYTHING!

* * *

This is a good, healthy sign; and it is a tragedy only when it lasts too long. The man who never gets over being "in love with himself," never really grows up.

* * *

I have known all kinds of writers; but I have never met a great writer or even a popular writer, who was not secretly filled with a shyness, timidity and sensitiveness, and often with a hidden inferiority complex. The writer who lets his success go to his head and falls back in love with himself, soon goes to seed.

* * *

So what? So, it's a hard life, mates, to cover up that timidity and sensitiveness with a cocky, professional pose and to choke down that inferiority complex. And almost any GOOD writer's best friend is the one who tells him how WONDERFUL he is. There'll always be plenty to tell him the other thing, and reduce the temporary swelling.

To produce his best in any line, a man (or woman) must feel PLEASED with himself—and yet not SATISFIED with himself, if you get what I mean. And that's about as easy as balancing yourself on a slack wire!

* * *

Yet, whether he ever amounts to anything or not, the person I envy most in this world is the one who goes through life always "in love with himself." That is the only love which will never fail him!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

String Along With the Crowd!

You say you "want to be by yourself" . . . people make you tired, they're so insincere" . . . you "just hate vulgar crowds."

And you're proud of this feeling, aren't you? You honestly believe it shows fastidiousness, strength of character. But does it?

A certain yearning for privacy is natural. A certain amount of seclusion is necessary. People who "can't bear to be alone" are as unbalanced as people who "can't bear to mix." But a constant desire for isolation isn't healthy. It's the sign of a sick and frightened spirit and, if indulged, is utterly demoralizing.

NO HUMAN BEING CAN LIVE BY HIMSELF WITHOUT BECOMING SPIRITUALLY MALNOURISHED, NEUROTIC.

Human beings are like trees. The strength of a tree depends upon its roots. It breathes and drinks through its bark and leaves, but its chief nourishment comes from the soil. The deeper the root-spread through the soil, the firmer the root-grip, the healthier will be the tree. Without roots no tree can survive. Nor can any human.

Human life must also root in the rich soil of common experience. It, too, must be nourished and braced by an earthly medium outside itself. A handful of mud seems far removed from the golden beauty of a peach. Yet the peach depends for its beauty on that black mud. The silliness and stupidity of crowds, their viciousness and vulgarity, seem far removed from the beauty of great thoughts and noble acts. Yet the finest brain is sustained and stabilized by its contact with the mob—and, lacking it, becomes unbalanced.

Those very things that irritate you in other people are the things you most need. You need the hurry and hustle . . . the competition and criticism . . . the indifference and unfairness . . . the general give and take of massed humanity to give you stamina and perspective.

Nor are other people necessary merely for their friction value. There is a mysterious potency in people, beneath all their surface foolishness and brutality. The most frivolous woman may teach you a lesson in kindliness. The most stupid man may have it all over a genius in courage and honesty.

As half of a tree lies underground in its root system, mingled with the common earth, so half of each individual's existence lies in those secret bonds by which it is united to a common life.

There may be a world in which spirits exist for themselves and by themselves; in which angels may squat on isolated clouds twanging solitary harps, achieving merit thereby; but in this present existence we're only valuable in our relationship to the rest of the crowd.

Our thoughts are noble, our characters are strong, only to the extent that they click with life and the other fellow.

What happens when we go off by ourselves and cease being part of the human scene?

Very delightful things happen at first. We are no longer nagged by irksome responsibilities or irritated by unpleasant contacts. We can think or do whatever we please without challenge. In short, we have moved over into a new world of our own.

But presently a darkness begins to creep over that world. We are obsessed by strange fears and furies. The most trivial unhappy incident becomes magnified into a tragedy. We brood over pinpricks . . . flee from shadows.

And the more we try to escape, the more we indulge our hunger for solitude, the harder it is to co-operate with other humans when we're forced to do so.

Few of us can go into actual exile. Our minds may become hermits, but our bodies must go on in the same old jobs, meeting the same old neighbors and strangers. Presently this contact becomes torture. The other fellow decides that we are "snooty" or "screwy," and avoids or punishes us accordingly.

We fled from people because we wanted more life, finer life, a greater chance to be ourselves. We end by having less life, harder life, a poor chance to express ourselves.

Stop trying to escape life. Stop kidding yourself that you do it because you're sensitive, frightened, selfish and egotistical. Nothing unusual about that. We're all in the same boat. But it will do us no good to run away. Our salvation lies in sticking together.

SO—STRING ALONG WITH THE CROWD. IT HAS WHAT YOU NEED. WITHOUT IT, YOU'RE LOST.

WISE WORDS

To the glass you meet a smile.
—Carey.

Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness. —Keats.

It is the little rift within the lute,
That by and by will make the music mute.
—Tennyson.

Similarities Between Hitler and Robespierre Raise the Question If the German Will Pass Like the Frenchman

By Edwin C. Hill

THE Romans had a name for it: "Whom the gods would destroy . . ." Soaring ego followed by madness and blood lust. The road that Robespierre traveled in one short year of power. Is that the road the feet of Adolph Hitler are set upon? Certainly, there are curious and striking similarities and coincidents in the careers of the two dictators.

Hitler killed his best friend. So did Robespierre. Hitler seeks to preserve his regime and himself in power by sheer terror. So also sought that little monster of cruelty, Maximilian Marie Isidore Robespierre.

In truth, the resemblance of the two are so striking that the question arises of its own buoyancy: Will Hitler pass as Robespierre passed? It was not until the French Revolution was in full tide, not, indeed, until the latter part of July, 1793, that Robespierre, the young lawyer from Arras, became a real power in the revolutionary government, and one of the actual rulers of bleeding France.

Dark intrigues and desperate schemes followed his rise to power, exactly as they have accompanied Hitler's rise in the past few months. One of Robespierre's first acts of authority was to send to the guillotine his lifelong friend and schoolfellow, Camille Desmoulins. For the next three months after that deed he reigned supreme, and his victims were numbered by the thousand.

And, again so curiously like Hitler, Robespierre, while the heads were falling in the sands, was evolving a new religion, or a new form of religion—the foundation of a new regime of public morality. One by one Robespierre sent his most dangerous enemies to their deaths.

Almost up to the moment of his fall (a phenomenon useful to keep in mind at all times when considering the careers and possible fate of all dictators) Robespierre seemed impregnable, invulnerable, armed like a very Jove with the terrible lightning bolts of authority. And then an unknown deputy named Louchet got up in the convention and proposed that Robespierre be arrested.

With those few, fatal words the power of the dictator crumbled into fragments. He was placed under arrest. The convention outlawed him. A shot fired by a gendarme broke his jaw. And on the twenty-eighth day of July, in the year 1794, the miserable, trembling victim died, along with the horrible Saint Just.

Russian Monster Worse Than Hitler

HERR HITLER has certainly spilled buckets of blood in the past fortnight or so. It is not known now and maybe it never will be known how much blood, how many lives have been taken. But ruthless as he has shown himself to be, cruel as he has proved himself to be, his record of slaughter is not very impressive when compared with the killings of Robespierre, or of that horrible monster of the Russian Bolshevik revolution, Felix Dzershinsky, who was the head of the secret police, the dreaded Gay-Payoo.

We read that Hitler is enlarging his secret police organization of "purging." It was Felix Dzershinsky who created the Gay-Payoo which was and is the invisible government of Russia, answerable only to the dictator himself, Joseph Stalin. It was created to deal with the counter-revolutionists, "our enemies," and, eventually and principally, to cover up the blunders of the Soviet industrial and financial programs.

If there is anything in historical precedent, Hitler's secret police may grow in numbers and authority for exactly the same reason.

Its model, indeed, is said to be the Russian Gay-Payoo. That organization was and is a combination of the star chamber of the Tudor kings, the Spanish Inquisition and Mafia. It knows no law.

The law courts and the secret police, the Gay-Payoo, exist not to enforce the law, but to enforce the political policies of the Dictatorship. It knows no law, the Gay-Payoo, and it respects no person. Life and death are in its hands. It gives neither the benefit of judge nor jury.

No Appeal From Sentence

ANY offense, criminal or political is, in Russia, an infringement of the social order, and as such is answerable to the Gay-Payoo, a board of whose officers does the sentencing. Be it liberty, Siberia or a bullet through the back of the head in the dungeons of Lubianka, there is no appeal and no interference.

A mild-mannered monster, with the dreamy eyes and sensitive face of a musician or a poet was the creator of the terrible Gay-Payoo. But the melodies that soothed his soul were the screams of tortured women and the shrieks of strong men driven to uncontrollable agony before there came to them the happy release of death.

Felix Dzershinsky was by birth a Pole. He was a close friend of Lenin. Not since the days of Robespierre, in more than one hundred years, was the hands of a man plunged so deeply in blood. He inaugurated a reign of terror after the assassination of the Communist leaders, Volodarski and Uritzki, and after an attempt on the life of Lenin. This was back in 1917, when the Gay Payoo was known as the Cheka, and when the firing squads worked in eight-hour shifts, 24 hours a day in Lubianka Prison.
